Brave Little Soldier

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN Neb. (AP) — Robert M. Ruddell says that when he winds up a career of working with disadvantaged children and youth, he hopes to write a book entitled "Brave Little Soldiers."

"It's going to be a book about little kids who've been forced to make adult decisions and who have had to try to understand why big people do some of the stupid things that big people do," he said.

And one of the book's characters, he's certain, will be 5-year-old Bruce Edward Sherer.

Bruce is the boy who captured attention last month when he was turned out of the family car near Falls City, Neb., to fend for himself.

About 11 p.m. on Aug. 13, Bruce knocked on the door of the Quallis Mc Ginnis home outside Falls City.

"Daddy told me to get out and then he closed the car door," he explained to a reporter later, referring to his stepfather. "I tried to get back in, but he drove off so fast I couldn't."

About a week later, the boy's mother, Mrs. Sharon Bell, 24, and stepfather, James Marion Bell, 29, of Mission, Kan., formerly of Edina, Minn., were taken into custody in Kansas. They subsequently pleaded guilty to child neglect charges and were sentenced to three months in jail, a term they are still serving.

Mrs. Bell and two younger children were in the auto when Bruce was forced out. The younger children, a boy and a girl, were placed in an Olathe, Kan., welfare home when the Bells went to jail.

Children's Center

Young Bruce was placed in the custody of the Nebraska Welfare Department and was delivered initially to the Nebraska Center for Children and Youth, which Rudell serves as superintendent.

It was a brief stopover.

A potential adoptive home already had been lined up, and within hours, Bruce was beginning to make a slight and tentative attachment to new "parents."

"From what I can gather, he is doing real well and I think it's great that on the surface, at least, he is making this transition," Rudell said.

The location of the youngster is a closely protected secret.

"It isn't good for a little guy to be a celebrity," Rudell explained.

Many persons, responding to publicity, had ideas of their own about Bruce's future, he said.

"We've had people walk in, we've had letters and we've counted 50 telephone calls from people who wanted the boy. The social service department downtown has had 41 inquiries.'

But anonymity is the objective now, he said.

"He's had enough publicity. What he needs is to get lost in the crowd with other 5-year-olds and begin to let some of the memories of the past fade, and have the experiences of a normal boy."

Nixon, Hirohito Visit in Brief, Historic Meeting

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) —President Nixon and Japan's 70-year-old Emperor Hirohito stood stiffly at attention as red-jacketed U.S. Marines, heirs to men who fought Japan on dozens of Pacific battlefields in World War II passed in review.

Nixon and the Emperor—the first reigning Japanese monarch ever to leave his homeland—met for more than an hour on American soil late Sunday night. For those present, it clearly was a moving and historic moment, symbolizing the postwar alliance of onetime enemies.

As Hirohito later boarded his Amerian-made jet transport for an over-the-pole flight to Copenhagen, the Alaskan night sky was illuminated brilliantly by a spectacular display of the Northern Lights.

Before the Emperor's arrival Nixon attended a reception at the anchorage home of Walter J. Hickel, the man he dismissed as interior secretary less than a year ago.

First Visit

Nixon made an 8,140-mile round trip to Alaska to become the first U.S. president ever to meet with an emperor of Japan.

Their talks were general in nature—a circumstance dictated by the Emperor's position as one whose influence on Japanese policy can be exercised only in subtle ways.

There was no immediate word on the content of any of the talks, however, and no communique was issued at the conclusion of the royal visit.

The President, welcoming Hirohito at Elmendorf Air Force Base, said:

"Your journey to Alaska symbolizes Japan's growing position in world affairs. We meet in . . . a place which is approximately the same distance between Tokyo and Washington D.C. This fact reminds us that for the past quarter century that we have built a structure of political, economic and cultural ties which spans the space between our two countries . . ."

Work Together

Nixon said he hoped their meeting would "demonstrate for all the years to come a determination of our two great peoples to work together in friendship for peace and prosperity for the Pacific and for all people in the word."

Hirohito said he was "deeply moved" that the President and Mrs. Nixon had undertaken a long journey to meet the Emperor and Empress—Nagako on what was ostensibly a simple refueling stop en route to Europe.

The Emperor, who was commander in chief of Japanese forces that invaded and occupied parts of Alaska's Aleutian Islands chain nearly 30 years ago, expressed "my most sincere gratitude" for what he termed America's "unstinted assistance, materially and morally, after the end of the war in the restoration and building up of our country."

The Nixon-Hirohito meeting was heavy with protocol and ceremony. For the occasion, Army and Marine Corps musical units were flown in from Washington; and the Army "Herald Trumpets" greeted Hirohito by playing a special fanfare composed in his honor by their director.

Formal Meeting

The formal meeting between the President and Emperor took place at the floodlit two-story frame residence of Elal.

With their wives, they sat patiently on beige and white brocade armchairs while photographers filed through their sitting room in four waves.

"Bad custom," Mrs. Nixon remarked to the Emperor by way of explaining the procession of lensmen. As interpreter translated her comment and Hirohito giggled. The Emperor, in fact, laughed with increasing frequency as more and more photographers came and went.

As the seating arrangements were laid out, the Emperor and Empress sat on either side of an American flag which stood in a brass standard. The Nixons were separated by the Rising Sun emblem of Japan.

Holding Flags

The route between their meeting place and the emperor's chartered airliner was lined by troops standing at attention and alternately holding American and Japanese flags.

Although the occasion was longer on ceremony than substance, aides to the President and the Emperor—headed by U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda—conferred separately and presumably dealt with significant issues.

At the moment, major differences between the United States and Japan center on international economic matters, particularly Nixon's new economic policy of Aug. 15 which is aimed in part at restraining Japanese exports to this country.

While Hirohito headed off to begin a seven-nation European tour, the Nixons spent the night in Anchorage before flying back to Washington.

Common Cause Demands Political Donation Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Common Cause the self-styled citizens lobby, has asked a federal court to order a former White House aide to open his records on an estimated $2 million pumped into key Republican races for the Senate last year.

Attorneys for Nixon fund-raiser Jack A. Gleason are fighting the court move with a request to curtail any pretrial questioning and keep his testimony sealed under court order.

The move to open the records is part of a Common Cause suit filed against the Republican and Democratic parties to enforce present federal limits on campaign contributions and spending.

Gleason left the White House last fall to run the fund-raising effort that channeled as much as $2 million into a dozen states where GOP candidates were locked in tight races trying to win control of the Senate.

Nixon Ambassadors

A number of President Nixon's ambassadors have been identified as donors through Gleason. Other Nixon backers, including two members of the Republican National Finance Committee, also steered money through him, according to a GOP campaign official in one key state.

Gleason's court motion two weeks ago asker that pretrial questioning be limited to the fall of 1968 when Gleason was a major Nixon presidential fundraiser as assistant chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee.

It said any deposition taken from Gleason should be sealed and then "opened only by order of the court." To do otherwise, Gleason's attorneys said, would cause him "unreasonable annoyance, embarrassment and oppression."

Common Cause, in a 10-pake reply last week, said "any embarrassment which he may encounter is the product of his own efforts."

Private Firm

Gleason was a White House assistant to political aide Harry Dent before moving into the fund-raising operation last fall. He is now working with a private Washington consulting firm.

Gleason's name appears on Indiana campaign records of defeated GOP candidate Richard L. Roudebush as the sole donor of $117,000 in cashier's checks last fall.

Roudebush's campaign manager, Gordon K. Durnil, listed Gleason as the source of an over-all total of $150,000. He said other checks forwarded by Gleason came from such figures as the ambassador to France, Arthur K. Watson, and two GOP finance leaders, Detroit industrialist Max M. Fisher and Boston executive Thomas A. Pappas.

Other Races

Gleason also was known to be active in Republican Senate races in North Dakota, Florida and Maryland, although officials in othe rstates generally denied any link with the fund-raising operation.

Gleason is listed on Florida records as forwarding one check for $2,500 from the ambassador to New Zealand, oilman Kenneth Franzheim II. Maryland reports show another $2,500 check from Walter M. Annenberg, ambassador to Great Britain, also came through Gleason.

Gleason has refused to comment to newsmen on the fund-raising activities.

Common Cause said in its court reply it wants to question Gleason on Republican fund-raising efforts, links with various finance committees and identity of GOP donors.

Expulsion to Proceed

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

LONDON (AP) — Britain said today 105 Russians branded as spies will be ejected despite a Soviet warning of retaliation.

A Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference the expulsion order stands as the first official reply to a Soviet government demand that it be canceled.

The accused Soviet spies seemed in no hurry to move. They have been given two weeks to get out. A half-empty Soviet jetliner took off during the day for Moscow.

Aeroflot, the Soviet national airline named by the British Foreign Office as part of a spy ring, had announced earlier that all 140 seats on the flight were reserved. That led observers to predict the 90 blackballed Russians would leave Britain today.

But Aeroflot's Ilushin IL62 took off for Moscow with 88 empty seats. Only two passengers boarded at London heading for Moscow. Two others were on their way to Tokyo, and the other 48 passengers had arrived from New York.

The Foreign Office, in its expulsion order last Friday, gave the alleged spies two weeks to leave the country. The crackdown followed what the British said was the defection of a high agent of the KGB, the Soviet intelligence—gathering bureau similar to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The cloak-and-dagger Russians, most of whom live in the fashionable Highgate district of London near the tomb of Karl Marx, worked in the Soviet Embassy, Aeroflot, the Intourist travel agency, the Russian trade center, the Moscow Narondy Bank and other offices, the British said.

There are 550 Soviet officials in Britain with diplomatic passports.

Scotland Yard detectives and the Foreign Office, meanwhile, kept strict secrecy over the defector. He reportedly stole a car three weeks ago, sped to a British government office with a load of secret documents on the spy ring and asked for asylum.

Sources disclosed only that he was still under constant questioning somewhere outside London and at least part of the information he was disclosing was being turned over to the American CIA and other Western intelligence services.

The state-supported British Broadcasting Corp., indicated that its newsmen had identified the alleged KGB agent as a commercial executive in the Soviet Embassy who was frequently seen in night spots and expensive restaurants.

The defector's wife was reported in Moscow with their son, but a daughter was said to be in school in England.

First reports said the defector's documents showed the Soviet network had plans to sabotage the Concorde supersonic airplane and other projects.

Surcharge Removal Urged

Monetary Crisis Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, put pressure today on the United States for quick removal of its 10 per cent import surcharge.

Schweitzer also called on the major industrialized countries to get a new set of values for their currencies to help resolve the international monetary deadlock.

In his prepared opening address to the opening session of the annual IMF meeting, Schweitzer also urged all nations concerned to contribute to currency realignment.

The United States has been resisting devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold, action which many countries believe should be the United States' contribution to settling the impasse.

Balance of Payments

"The surcharge can be justified as a means of improving the U.S. blance of payments only until it is possible to supplant it by effective action in the exchange rate field," Schweitzer said. "Let me stress the importance of moving to an agreed solution on these two issues without delay."

The major 10 industrialized non-Communist nations agreed Sunday on a plan to resolve the international crisis by the end of the year, with meetings scheduled in mid-October and late November focusing first on currency realignment and removal of the surcharge.

Karl Schiller, West Germany's minister of finance and economic affairs, urged longer-term aims: reforms to create a new international reserve system and a new mechanism for changing exchange rates.

"Perhaps we will not be able to get together this week on a unified plan," Schiller said in a speech to the delegates. "But I hope that as a result of our discussion we can express a joint will for a solution of the problem."

International Deadlock

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally has said that a dollar-devaluing boost in the price of gold would not break the international monetary deadlock.

But, while downplaying the role of gold as the keystone to the world monetary system, Connally left the devaluation issue unsettled, dodging a direct question on whether it is a

Soviets Threaten Retaliation

MOSCOW (AP) — A strong Soviet protest note against the expulsion of 105 Russian officials from Britain threatens retaliation against Britons in this country.

The note, given Sunday to Sir John Killick, Britain's ambassador to Moscow, said: "If the British side leaves these measures in force, the Soviet side will have nothing to do but take corresponding reply measures."

Diplomatic observers in Moscow doubted a mass expulsion of British officials, but expected some of the embassy's 78-member staff to be ousted.

The British Foreign Office announced Friday the defection of a Soviet agent had led to the conclusion that mass espionage was being carried out by members of the Soviet Embassy, the Russian airline Aeroflot, the Moscow Narodny bank, Intourist and the Russian trade mission.

"The ministry flatly rejects the allegations that the staff of Soviet institutions in Britain are engaging in activities constituting a threat to Britain's securty, as ungrounded and fabricated with obviously provocative aims, hostile to the Soviet Union," the protest note said.

It charged that the unusually severe diplomatic step taken by Britain was only the latest action "to create obstacles on the road to a relaxation of tensions, especially in European affairs . . ."

As stern as the official Soviet reaction was, the official news agency, Tass, made a more blistering attack, charging that the British spy accusations were "deliberately false" and designed to obstruct detente in Europe.

Supreme Court Appointment Possible for One

Potential Woman Justice Nominees Won't Speculate

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three women President Nixon has appointed to the federal bench are exercising judicious, if not judicial, discretion, each declining to comment on her chances of becoming the first female Supreme Court justice.

Although no one can be sure of the President's support, Mrs. Nixon told reporters Thursday she was "talking it up" with her husband to appoint a woman to the high court. She mentioned that the President had appointed three women to federal courts—Cornelia G. Kennedy of the U.S. District Court in Michigan and Sylvia Bacon and both of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia.

In case "they don't get one this time," Mrs. Nixon said, "they're grooming them. They'll be moved up to other courts."

The next day, Mrs. Nixon said the White House is giving careful consideration to the idea of a woman on the court but added: "The trouble is, the best qualified women are too old."

Other Possibilities

In addition to the three women singled out by Mrs. Nixon, others being mentioned in speculation include Shirley M. Hufstedler, who as a member of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is the nation's highest-ranking woman judge; Rita Hauser, a New York Republican once named by Nixon as a United Nations representative, and Mary Gardner Jones, a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

President Nixon, asked Thursday night about the possibility of appointing a woman, told the Detroit Economic Club that he is more interested in a candidates judicial philosophy than anything else, and reiterated that he wants nominees who are "strict constructionists" of the Constitution.

Judge Kennedy of Grosse Point Woods was the first woman in Michigan history appointed to the federal bench. She is regarded by her colleagues as a moderate in her application of the law.

Detroit Native

Born Aug. 4, 1923, Judge Kennedy grew up in Detroit, attended the University of Michigan and graduated from the University's law school in 1947, a member of the prestigious law review.

She then clerked for a year for the late U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Harold M. Stephens at a time when few women were awarded such positions. Afterwards, she returned to Detroit to practice law with her father, Elmer H. Groefsema, a noted trial attorney.

From 1952 until 1967, when she was elected to the 3rd Judicial Circuit Court in Wayne County, Judge Kennedy was a partner in the Detroit firm of Markle and Markle.

Asked whether she thinks women have been discriminated against in the field of law, Judge Kennedy said, "Sometimes a woman has to be more fully prepared and has to do a lot better than a man, but personally I've been fortunate."

D.C. Courts

Judges Bacon and Johnson were both appointed to the District of Columbia court a year ago.

Judge Bacon, 40 and Republican, was executive assistant to the U.S. attorney here when she moved to the bench.

Defining her legal philosophy as "generally that of a strict constructionist," Judge Bacon added: "Of course, the case and issue rather than the label are determinative."

She said she is "particularly concerned about the lack of public confidence in the court system, that the courts are bearing the brunt of a certain amount of antiestablishment feeling."

Born July 9, 1931, in Watertown, S.D., the daughter of a newspaper publisher, Miss Bacon attended public schools before going East to Vassar College where she graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1952. She was also active in the Young Republicans.

After passing her bar examination in Washington, Judge Bacon was appointed assistant U.S. attorney in the Civil Division of the Justice Department where she served until 1965 under former Attys. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Ramsey Clark.

Reorganization Bill

Saigon Jarred By New Protests Against Election

SAIGON (AP) — An estimated 200 disabled war veterans, some armed with hand grenades, rioted in protest against the government today in Da Nang and national police used tear gas to herd them off the streets.

Other demonstrations broke out in Qui Nhon on the central coast, in Saigon and at Can Tho in the Mekong Delta.

At least five policemen were wounded before the Da Nang outburst was calmed and the protesters were confined to their shantytown

Sources said five policemen were hurt by hand grenades lobbed at them. One policeman was reported in serious condition with a head wound.

The protest, near the Da Nang airbase at the edge of the city, began with about 50 veterans and quickly swelled to 200, the sources said.

In Qui Nhon, some 2,000 disabled veterans and students marched peacefully in a demonstration against President Nguyen Van Thieu's uncontested campaign for re-election next Sunday. The march was by far the largest anti-Thieu demonstration of the past three weeks. Police made no effort to break it up.

Burn Posters

The demonstrators burned Thieu posters and voting cards Leaders said the groups would "react strongly" if Thieu did not resign. But they did not elaborate on what they would do

In Can Tho, about 100 veterans also demonstrated against Thieu and terrorists attempted to firebomb three American vehicles One station wagon was damaged and there were no American casualties.

In Saigon, a spokesman for the Disabled Veterans' Association said the veterans' demonstrations were coordinated

About 20 disabled veterans also took to the street in Saigon in the first progoverment demonstration of the election campaign. The demonstration was in front of the National Assembly building on the capital's main square. Participants arrived and left in a government truck

Police Act

Police broke up the demonstration after about an hour, scuffling with several veterans and firing a handful of tear gas cannisters. Vietnamese observers said police intervened to lend an air of authenticity to the demonstration, which they said was government-inspired

The demonstrators were first allowed through a barricade, surrounding the well-guarded assembly building They erected pro-Thieu banners on the steps and handed out leaflets proclaiming support for Thieu's anti-Communist "four noes":-No coalition, no neutrality, no concession of land to the communists, and no political activity by Communists in South Vietnam

The veterans, calling themselves the Veterans Committee for the Right to Live, said in their leaflets that "the Communists and their henchmen" were responsible for recent antigovernment protests.

Enemy Attacks Result In Heavy Casualties

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces mounted heavy attacks today along South Vietnam's border with Cambodia for the second day, reportedly inflicting heavy losses on South Vietnamese forces

Two U.S aircraft supporting the South Vietnamese were shot down with five Americans wounded. the U S Command said.

Field reports said the South Vietnamese lost at least 20 men killed about 100 wounded and a number of artillery pieces, tanks and armored cars destroyed. some of them apparently by sappers who broke into the government positions hurling satchel charges

Sapper Killed

The South Vietnamese Command reported that 92 North Vietnamese troops were killed, many of them by U S helicopter gunships, fighter-bombers and artillery

On the outskirts of Saigon, two Viet Cong sappers were detected attempting to penetrate an ammunition depot near Tan Son Nhut air base, South Vietnamese headquarters said. One of them was killed and the second escaped, a communique said A series of explosions ripped through a section of the dump a week ago, destroying 300 tons of ammunition.

Viet Cong sappers used a mine to blow up a train traveling from Qui Nhon to Tuy Hoa on the central coast The Saigon Command said one civilian was killed and six were wounded, adding that the locomotive was destroyed and three cars were damaged

U S. officers said the attacks along the Cambodian border and the increase in sapper activity are probably timed to take advantage of political unrest and divisioness among the South Vietnamese

Heath Calls Irish Leaders To London for Conference

LONDON (AP) — Three prime ministers met today in a crucial summit session aimed at dragging Ireland from the jaws of civil war.

Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath was host in the calm of the English countryside to Northern Ireland's Brian Faulkner and the Irish republic's Jack Lynch

Even as they met at Chequers, Heath's country residence, the turmoil ground on in embattled Northern Ireland.

A major riot erupted in Belfast's New Lodge Road as British troops swooped in a search for suspected guerrilas of the outlawed Irish Republican Army

A hail of gasoline bombs met a bulldozer sent in to tear down barricades Men of the Duke of Wellington's Regiment opened fire and reported one rioter was shot

Nine men were arrested in the Belfast swoop Ten others were taken in a dawn raid at Bellaghy, a village 30 miles northwest of Belfast

Met Privately

The three prime ministers met at noon Earlier, Lynch had a private 90-minute session with Heath

Faulkner had a similar session with Heath Sunday night Informed sources said Faulkner impressed on Heath the need, as he sees it, for firmer action by Lynch to control manufacture and distribution of explosives in the Irish republic

The republic produces three million pounds of gelignite a year for use in mining and road construction Faulkner's aides are convinced that some of it crosses the border into Northern Ireland to make bombs for the IRA's sabotage campaign

Officials on all three sides cautioned against any quick solutions to the turmoil, which in two years has cost 110 dead in Northern Ireland The victims include 24 British soldiers sent to keep the peace between the province's feuding Protestant and Roman catholic communities

Rates Up

The rate of killing—more than 50 in the past two months—has increased drastically as the urban guerrillas of the outlawed Irish Republican Army have stepped up their campaign for a united Ireland

The guerrillas have sworn that predominantly protestant Northern Ireland must be merged with Lynch's republic, which is 95 per cent Roman Catholic

Lynch said Sunday he expects nothing spectacular to result, but added he is optimistic

"What we are looking for," he said, "is some means of opening the way to peace in the north and, I hope, the ultimate unification of Ireland."

He said he would be willing to return for similar talks "even if these talks go against me" Today's session is the first of its kind since 1925, when the border between Northern Ireland and the republic was defined

Lynch has frequently condemned the violence But many of Northern Ireland's more militant Protestants charge that he is pushing politically for unification and has been lenient with terrorists who seek refuge in the republic Faulkner has asked Lynch to crack down on IRA men he says use the republic as a base

British officials said Heath has no new ideas to offer in the talks

They gave the impression that Heath will be happy if the session reaches Tuesday's scheduled close without any explosive walkouts

But it is known that the British are worried about the casualties their army is sustaining in its peacekeeping role and about the drain on British military resources. This drain has forced Britain to withdraw key units from its NATO forces in West Germany

Faulkner has made it clear that he will not discuss changing Northern Ireland's border.

On the eve of the three-way talks Faulkner's government was shaken by a key minister's walkout Community Relations Minister David Bleakley quit to protest the government's internment without trial of suspected IRA terrorists. Lynch

Russia Pressed

Floods Take Toll of Red Rice Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence reports that floods have destroyed about 800,000 tons of North Vietnam's rice, 10 per cent of this year's crop.

As a result, these sources said, the North Vietnamese government has had to dig into food stocks earmarked for next year in order to cope with the emergency situation.

Communist China and Russia are delivering additional construction supplies and medical materials to the North Vietnamese, and are expected to increase food shipments, intelligence sources said.

However, U.S. analysts suggested China's response to North Vietnam's flood caused food difficulties could be slowed if rumors of internal political crisis in Peking are true.

Russia has been a major supplier of wheat and flour, agricultural equipment and fertilizers to North Vietnam. But recent reports indicate Russia's harvest may fall about seven million tons short of last year's 150 million tons.

Heavy Spoilage

At the same time, American analysts said, the Russians find themselves with insufficient reserves of bread grain because significant stocks have spoiled under improper storage and because much more wheat is being fed to livestock in a campaign to ease a domestic meat shortage in the Soviet Union.

U S. sources say this all means the Kremlin may have to raise its own wheat imports to meet the requirements of its people, with North Vietnam's food problem an added burden.

In addition to ruining North Vietnamese rice, the heavy rains and floods over the past several months reportedly have set back construction of a new truck fuel pipeline between the main port of Haiphong and the important supply trans-shipment base at Vinh.

Tie In

American intelligence says the four-inch pipeline would eliminate a need to carry oil and gasoline between Haiphong and Vinh by truck or barge. In the long run, U S. experts said, this would release North Vietnamese manpower for other tasks.

The new section would tie in to an already extensive pipeline system which North Vietnam has constructed gradually in recent years for pumping truck fuel southward through the North Vietnamese panhandle and on into Laos.

This fuel powers the thousands of North Vietnamese trucks which shuttle along the Ho Chi Minh trail during the dry season carrying arms, ammunition and other supplies for Communist troops fighting in South Vietnam, Cambodia and southern Laos.

Didn't Treat Mao

Dr. White Finds China 'Quiet'

HONG KONG (AP) — American heart specialist Dr Paul Dudley White said on arrival from Peking today that he saw nothing during his stay in China to support rumors that Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung is sick.

White, an 85-year-old Boston cardiologist who treated the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, said he heard the speculation that Mao is seriously ill only when he listened to a Western radio broadcast

He said he asked Chinese doctors about the radio report and they indicated no knowledge of serious illness White said he had no personal contact with Mao or other government leaders during his 12-day stay.

Rumors began bubbling after Peking canceled its traditional Oct. 1 National Day parade for the first time since the Communists seized power 22 years ago. The talk included speculation that Mao had died or fallen gravely ill or that China's top leaders were engaged in an power struggle.

White said doctors in Peking told him the parade was called off simply because it had become too elaborate.

"They explained that they want more people to take part in the celebrations on Oct. 1, and they are going to divide the population up among several big parks," he added.

White deplored rumors that he had gone to China to treat Mao for a heart ailment and said he had no idea whether the 77-year-old Chinese leader actually suffered from heart trouble. He said he traveled to Peking at the invitation of the Chinese Medical Association.

The American praised standards attained by Chinese doctors and said they "are doing a magnificent job, specially with the rural population in the communes, where 90 per cent of the people live."

He said his 12-day visit was "a remarkably fine experience"

White was accompanied by his wife, Ina, and by Dr. Edmund Grey Diamond of Kansas City and Diamond's wife, Mary.

Monetary Crisis Continues

negotiable item in international discussions.

The gold-price question dominated as delegates to the 118-nation International Monetary Fund gathered today for what may turn out to be its most important meeting in its 27-year history

Loosen Dollar

President Nixon ripped the foundation from the monetary system by cutting the dollar loose from its tie with gold on Aug. 15. The President also imposed a 10-per-cent import surcharge in an effort to reduce the nation's growing balance-of-payments deficit.

"The United States has no hangup, no fixation, with gold," Connally told newsmen Sunday. "We're not committed to the mythology of gold. We would hope that the role of gold in the IMF would indeed be diminished"

The secretary, however, may find that wishful thinking for the moment In Europe and Japan, there is almost unanimous pressure for a dollar devaluation through raising the price of gold to help achieve currency realignments

But the United States appeared to win at least one concession on the gold-price question at a meeting of the "Group of Ten," the finance ministers and central bankers from the major non-Communist nations.

3-Way Approach

In hammering out a three-sided approach to resolving the monetary impasse by the end of the year, the officials focused on currency realignment as the top priority without mentioning the price of gold.

But, when Connally was asked whether the United States considers an increase in the price of gold a non-negotiable issue, in scheduled talks later this fall, he referred newsmen to Nixon's assertion that the United States does not anticipate any change in the price of gold.

The major U.S trading partners also appeared to have won a concession from the American delegation. One of the key issues agreed upon for discussion this year is elimination of the import surcharge

President Nixon said last week the United States will not remove the surcharge until a permanent solution to the world monetary system is found.

President Sees Great Potential in Nuclear Plant

By JACK MAYNE
Associated Press Writer

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — President Nixon says a new test facility under construction at the Hanford Atomic Works gives promise of producing abundant nuclear energy that is both inexpensive and nonpolluting as measured against the use of fossil fuels for power generation.

He said the work is being undertaken by the Atomic Energy Commission in cooperation with the electric power industry, which he said has pledged $200 million to support a demonstration plant in the largest single commitment to research and development in its history.

The power industry's response to development of a prototype fast breeder reactor has been so encouraging, the President said that the federal government's program to develop a new generation of nuclear reactors will be expanded.

Two prototypes will be developed by 1980, Nixon said, but he declined to say where the prototypes will be located.

"We're not ready to drop the other shoe yet and say where," Nixon told a crowd of 14,000 at the atomic works near here Sunday. "But this area has so many brains it has a role to play."

Nixon made the announcement as he stopped off in this Central Washington city en route to Anchorage, Alaska, and his meeting with Emperor Hirohito of Japan, whose nation has been the only country to suffer the fury of the atomic bomb.

The new facility—known as a liquid metal fast breeder reactor, LMFBR—converts uranium into plutonium during the process of nuclear fission.

Fission Process

Some of the uranium is expended in fission process, but more plutonium is produced at the same time. It is then used for fuel. The process, which depends more on plutonium for fission than current reactors, thus is constantly renewing its fuel supply in part.

The new generation of reactors will use liquid sodium for coolant, rather than water. Water will still be used in the new process to cool the sodium, cooling will drive electric generators.

James Schlesinger, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, told newsmen it would be about one year before there is a selection of a site for the first experimental reactor. It will be about six months, he said, before a contractor is selected to build the first facility.

Glenn C. Lee, secretary of the Tri-Cities Nuclear Industrial Council, said Westinghouse Electric Corp., General Electric Co. and Atomic International were all interested in constructing the experimental plants.

Schlesinger said the LMFBR would extend the uranium supply from a few decades to "thousands of years." This would mean that increased uranium mining costs would not be felt very much because relatively small amounts of the mineral would be used, he said.

Church Union Session Starts

By J. HUNTER HOLLOWAY
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — The leaders of nine Protestant denominations embracing 25 million persons began a work session here today, striving to hurdle the barriers of church union.

The four-day meeting is the 10th plenary session of the Consultation on Church Union, the talk phase of possible merger or other unification of the nine denominations.

"It's the watershed of church union," said the Rev. Dr. George G. Beazley of Indianapolis, this meeting's chairman.

"From here," he said, "we will discuss our differences."

Dr. Paul A. Crow Jr. of Princeton, N.J., general secretary of the consultation, said people are realizing that the plan of union drafted by the nine denominations is "not to be handed down from on high, but the revisions must come from the people, the local churches."

Dialogue Stage

The Rev. Mr. Beazley agreed before the first meetings got under way. He stressed that the plan still is in the dialogue stages, and a long way from actuality.

The plan of unification was completed last year and is being studied at the local community church level. By June 1, reports will be submitted for probable revision and then returned to the denominations.

The final plan, by then probably much amended, is expected to take shape in four or five years.

There are 135 delegates here, including 15 from each denomination.

The nine denominations are: African Methodist Episcopal Church, African Methodist Episcopal iZon Church, Christian Church Disciples of Christ, Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, Episcopal Church, Presbyterian Church in the United States, United Church of Christ, United Methodist Church and the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Woman Held in Husband's Death

GRANTSBURG, Wis. (AP) — Sheriff Lloyd Erickson said Angeline Sutton, 38, of Siren was being held on a first-degree murder charge after her husband, Jim, 42, was fatally stabbed at their home early Sunday.

The Burnett County sheriff said Philip Taylor, 49, was charged with obstructing justice concerning the accident.

Muskie Cast in Favorite's Role by State Party Leaders

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie is the predominant choice among Wisconsin Democratic county chairman for their party's 1972 presidential nomination, the Milwaukee Sentinel reported after conducting a poll.

The newspaper said in today's edition that it queried all 72 county chairmen about prospective Democratic candidates, that 47 chairmen responded and 22, or 47 per cent, favored the Maine senator.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., whose supporters are urging him to enter his state's influential April preference primary, received six first-choice votes, or 13 per cent.

Other first-choice replies were Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., 10 per cent; Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., 10 per cent; Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., 8 per cent; New York Mayor John Lindsay, 6 per cent, and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., 4 per cent.

Also Mentioned

Also listed in the poll but receiving no first-choice ballots were Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma.

The Sentinel noted Wisconsin's county chairmen play no direct role in selecting nominees because of the open primary, but "their views are reflective" of their party's grassroots sentiment.

Asked who they think has the best chance of winning the White House nomination, 64 per cent of the replying chairman chose Muskie and 13 per cent said Kennedy.

Smaller Percentage

McGovern and Humphrey had 9 per cent each, Proxmire and Mills had 2 per cent each.

Reasons for Muskie's strength, chairmen replied, include the image he accumulated in 1968 as a vice presidential candidate, a feeling the voters "want someone down the middle of the road," and a feeling of his being "a man worthy of respect."

The poll indicated 85 per cent of the chairmen, despite their personal sentiments, feel the nomination is still up for grabs.

The Sentinel said 52 per cent think even a dark horse could win the nomination.

Half of the responding chairman said Muskie would win Wisconsin's primary were it held today, with McGovern and Proxmire close behind.

Proxmire, were he to make a legitimate bid for the White House, could win the Wisconsin primary, 72 per cent replied.

But most said Proxmire's entry into the race would make the state's primary meaningless.

Hickel's Meeting With Nixon 'Warm'

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — President Nixon and Walter J. Hickel, fired as interior secretary by Nixon last November, got together again Sunday night and had "a great, warm meeting," in the words of Hickel.

Hickel, who has just published a book recounting his term in the Nixon administration, was host to the President, Mrs. Nixon and members of the presidential party at a reception prior to the arrival of Japanese Emperor Hirohito.

Guests at the reception said Nixon and Hickel got away from the buffet table and receiving line to chat privately for a few minutes.

"We didn't get into anything specific," Hickel said later. "It was just a great, warm meeting."

The meeting between the men was the first since the White House announced last Nov. 26 Hickel had been fired because of a lack of "mutual confidence" between Hickel and the President.

The first conflict between Hickel and the White House came in May 1970 when a letter from the interior secretary warning of division in the nation reached the press before it got to the President. Hickel said he wrote the letter only after trying unsuccessfully to reach both Nixon and presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman.

About 200 Alaskan including leaders from government, business and labor, attended the reception at Hickel's 20-room home in a plush Anchorage suburb.

The Nixon party arrived after a nine-mile-long motorcade through Anchorage streets lined four and five deep with spectators estimated by police to number 40,000. A huge banner welcoming the President was strung across the street. One end was anchored to a hotel owned by Hickel.

The Menu

Hickel and his wife Erma Lee provided guests with a buffet that included pate of moose, Alaska shrimp and poached Alaskan salmon.

Singer and actor Burl Ives, a friend of Hickel's, sang while Nixon and his former cabinet member sat nearby on a couch in the sunken living room.

Afterwards, Nixon quipped:

"Wally, it's really impressive for me to come all this way and meet a celebrity—a big celebrity."

FBI Accused Of Violating Gravel Privacy

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — An aide to Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, has charged the FBI with invading the privacy of Gravel's Anchorage office and removing unspecified papers. The FBI denied the allegation.

"From information I have received, it is obvious that the FBI or someone at the direction of the FBI removed papers from my office," said Larry Gage, head of Gravel's office in the Federal Building here.

Gage did not disclose the nature of the papers, the circumstances surrounding their alleged disappearance, or the source of his information.

Gage said the alleged FBI intrusion came Friday after three members of a group protesting the planned nuclear test on Amchitka Island spent some time in the office awaiting word on whether Gravel would address a rally in Anchorage Sunday afternoon.

Gravel, who read the then classified Pentagon papers in the Senate and later distributed copies to the press, said Sunday he planned to make a statement on Gage's charges in the Senate later this week.

"I'm very distressed that the FBI would choose to get into my office or get federal employes to get into it," he said.

"Some agent has certainly overstepped his ground," Gravel said. "The activities I'm pursuing do not in any way warrant this action. The FBI has panicked. This violates to some degree the division of power between the legislators and the executive parts of government."

The FBI denial was issued by Vern Letterly, agent in charge of the Anchorage office.

Land Payment To Winnebagos May Take Year

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (AP) — It may take a year or longer for the Winnebago to collect a $4.6 million land acquisition settlement from the government, tribal representatives have been told.

R. C. Miller, the Bureau of Indian Affairs' Great Lakes superintendent, said Winnebago officials will have to provide an outline of how the funds are to be distributed, and who will handle the task.

In a recent referendum among about 4,500 Winnebago, most of them in Wisconsin and Nebraska, the Indians accepted the settlement for tribal land taken in the 19th century from the Wisconsin Territory.

Miller said one of the problems in distribution involves whether recipients need to be one-fourth or more Winnebago.

Wisconsin Winnebago have decided a tribesman with one-fourth Winnebago ancestry is eligible while the Nebraska branch requires 50 per cent Indian ancestry.

The distribution plan must also be approved by Congress as well as the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Miller told 75 tribal delegates to a weekend meeting.

Nixon and the Court

The new vacancies on the United States Supreme Court, opened up because of the resignations for health reasons of Justices Black and Harlan, give President Nixon the almost unprecedented opportunity of placing four members of his personal choice upon the high bench.

The resignations are of two men, both called dissenters at different periods of the court's history but considerably different in outlook toward many matters. This in itself should ease the qualms of those who may disagree with the current trend of the court or its difference from the Warren court of almost the last two decades. If Justice Harlan could have been a major dissenter to many majority decisions and if Justice Black could be the same but to other decisions and at somewhat different times, it is a clear indication that the point of view of the members of the court is bound to change over the years, precedents or not. Sometimes belatedly and sometimes in advance, it represents or at least recognizes public opinion. This is also obviously true because, while the justices are appointed, they are appointed by a man who is elected to public office and their appointments must be approved by other men and women so elected and who reflect the opinions of their constituents.

Justice Harlan was a conservative who long ago held the point of view prevalent in many of the more recent decisions of the court that local governmental agencies should have quite a bit to say about laws legislated and enforced in local areas without federal interference. Justice Black was a believer in practically the absolute nature of the Bill of Rights or at least of the First Amendment. To him the requirement that Congress should make no laws restraining freedom of speech meant that no government should make any such laws whether alleged obscenity, treason or sacrilege were involved.

There is another aspect in the effects of judicial decisions of the high court in the nation. A defiant Andrew Jackson was the only president who publicly thumbed his nose at the court. In the struggle between Georgia and the federal government over Indian lands, Jackson upheld the state in spite of a Supreme Court decision to the contrary. "John Marshall has made his decision, now let him enforce it," was the famous statement he was supposed to have made. At least Jackson did write that "the decision of the Supreme Court has fell still born, and they find they cannot coerce Georgia to yield."

But other presidential administrations have shown lack of cooperation. President Franklin Roosevelt tried to replace older members with whom he disagreed with his own choices. President Nixon's administration has not cooperated in desegregation decisions even of the Burger court. The way in which Supreme Court decisions are put into effect must always mean a great deal as to their effect.

After the debacle of the two first men he appointed to the court — as well as the example of the outcry against President Johnson's appointment of Abe Fortas as chief justice and the latter's subsequent resignation — President Nixon is apt to be cautious to pick no one merely to please a particular segment of political support or a crony. He is likely to look carefully into the political philosophy of prospective appointees especially their views of the role of the federal government in local affairs.

But the pendulum swings and probably it should and must swing. What is always needed on the Supreme Court — or any court — are men and women of high integrity and responsibility. Their political philosophies are not all that important.

"He must be dead...my mind just went blank!"

Smallpox Is Disappearing

One has only to study old gravestones or read geneological histories to realize how smallpox was once the scourge of the world including the United States. Entire families are listed as wiped out. Those who survived carried the pock marks for life.

But now smallpox vaccination in the United States as a routine matter may soon end and even American citizens returning from foreign travel will not need evidence of recent vaccination unless they have come from areas where the deadly disease is still endemic.

Such areas are limited. They include Ethiopia, the Sudan, some parts of India and Pakistan and near Nepal. There have been some cases recently reported in Indonesia and Afghanistan and some last year in Germany. But in a country like Great Britain in the last twenty years there were only 131 indigenous cases of the disease found and 47 deaths — while deaths from the vaccinations in the same period amounted to 100. In the United States no one caught the disease since 1949 although there was a scare some years ago when a traveler from Brazil passed through the United States to Canada with smallpox — but no one caught it. Dr. Donald Henderson, of the United States Public Health Service, currently working with the World Health Organization, reports that 6 to 12 people in the United States die each year from the vaccinations.

And yet health authorities are wisely cautious about ending vaccination programs. It was only a few years ago that people assumed that syphilis was on the way out because it responded so well to penicillin but its incidence, particularly among young people, is increasing today alarmingly. One reason obviously is complacency, whatever the possible changes in sexual mores. Dr. Frank Perkins, director of immuniological products control at Britain's National Institute for Medical Research, while agreeing with the new British policy of halting routine vaccinations, warns that "proportion of Britain's nonimmune population will now increase and within a few years we shall need immediate emergency action should a case of smallpox enter the country . . . An assumption has been made that the W.H.O. program is going to remove the disease from the world and this must be achieved before the risk of importing smallpox is indeed reduced to insignificant levels."

Smallpox can be eradicated because of its nature but it is still present in the world. There must be speculation, such as expressed somewhat by Dr. Perkins, as to what would happen if the majority of people were not immunized and a few cases appeared.

Juggling Crime Statistics

Reporters who cover the Justice Department are writing of a contest in news management which is supposed to be taking place between publicity men who labor for J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, and those who write for Atty. Gen. John Mitchell. If it continues, the struggle is one in which the nation will be the loser.

The over-simplification of the contest is that Hoover's men are used to turning out press releases about crime statistics with an aim of winning greater congressional appropriations while Mitchell's men are trying to show that things are getting better, just as President Nixon promised they would in his law and order election campaign theme. Some of Hoover's critics find it significant that FBI press releases now are subject to editing or rewriting higher up in the Justice Department, something which couldn't be brought off even when the place was run by Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, who happened to be the President's brother.

But the average American, we suspect, is able to make his own conclusions from what he observes in his own community rather than from the way statistics are packaged in Washington by either the FBI or the attorney general. Mitchell, in summarizing the latest FBI statistics, has made a big point of the fact that crime increased by 11.3 per cent for 1970 over 1969 compared with a 12 per cent increase in 1969 over 1968. Hopefully, there is a dent being made, and there should be. The federal law enforcement budget will have tripled, from $450 million to $1.5 billion, during Mr. Nixon's term.

What the dispute over the latest FBI statistics again has emphasized is that the nation is talking in the past tense. It has to do something about the causes of crime ranging from unemployment, to jammed courts, to prisons which do not rehabilitate and to ghetto housing. There also must be a realization that crime is a local problem despite the national campaign oratory. The federal government can provide the money and the leadership but the battle must be won on the state and local levels.

Conflicting press releases from Hoover and Mitchell may make for an interesting picture of two strong men who may have different concerns about what should come first. But the nation deserves more help in one of its major concerns than statistic juggling in high places.

Portents from China

Shakiness of Red Regime Will Limit Nixon's Chances

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — At a minimum the rumors of trouble in China make it clear that there is a lot of unsettled internal business in Peking. That fact casts President Nixon's projected trip in a curious double light.

On the one hand, Peking's internal preoccupation puts a low ceiling on what the President can actually achieve. On the other, it is urgent that Mr. Nixon open a line to the Chinese regime before adverse developments shut off even that possibility.

At the center of the uncertainty there is Mao Tse-tung. He is 77, and has been out of things for some time. But for more than two decades he has been the source of light and inspiration for millions of Chinese. Anything that happened to him would be bound to shake the country and the regime.

Succession Uncertain

The more so as the succession seems uncertain. Marshal Lin Piao, to be sure, is the designated successor. But his health has also been doubtful. All reports indicate that he is not a dominating figure.

Without Mao, his support would have to rest heavily on the army. But Lin was only one of four field army commanders during the civil war. His claims to primacy among the military are not unrivalled.

No more certain is the final end of that terrible disruption known as the Cultural Revolution. Its foremost promoters have been cut back one by one. Chen Po-ta, Mao's former secretary who was the director of the Cultural Revolution, is clearly in disgrace.

But at least two of his colleagues are not. Chang Chun-chiao, the party first secretary in Shanghai, and Yao Wen-youan, his deputy in Shanghai who some believe to be Mao's son-in-law, have both appeared recently in Peking with Premier Chou En-lai.

What all this means — and the reason the rumors fly so thick — is that the Chinese political structure is shaky. Given this basic shakiness, it is very hard to see how Peking can further this country's diplomatic purposes. On the contrary, a distinct limitation is placed on Peking's ability to act in two major matters currently an issue — the Vietnamese war and relations with the Soviet Union.

With respect to Vietnam, Peking seems never to have favored unification through a quick military victory by Hanoi. Pressure from the Chinese now could dispose the Vietnamese to accept the terms President Nixon is getting ready to offer.

It's Cutting Edge

But the North Vietnamese struggle is billed throughout the Communist world as the cutting-edge of revolution. Only a unified leadership in Peking could gainsay that claim by pressure to settle. The present uncertain leadership practically guarantees that China will be obliged to give Hanoi all-out support.

As for the Soviet Union, the Russian hope is that the next leadership change in Peking can be used to reinstate the old alliance. Any sign of division in China can only foster that hope. Thus there is a diminishing possibility that Mr. Nixon can use the trip to Peking to put pressure on Moscow.

But even as the poor prospects for a diplomatic payoff from the China trip become evident, the need to make the trip is increasingly underlined. The central fact is that the developing relations between Washington and Peking hang by a thread. So far only two Chinese leaders — Premier Chou En-Lai and Chairman Mao-Tse-tung — have become publicly identified with the opening toward this country.

They could easily be snuffed out. So it is particularly urgent that Sino-American relations be widened and regularized in the near future. Though that is probably the most Mr. Nixon can achieve on his trip, it is reason aplenty for going.

Wisconsin Report

New Young Voters Liable to Respond To Specific Issues

BY JOHN O. HOUGH

MADISON — With the passage of the 1970 Voting Rights Act Amendment, the impact of the new 18, 19 and 20-year-old voters on the 1972 elections has become the subject of a great deal of discussion and speculation. Questions tend to center in two areas: What proportion of the new voters will turn out, and who will win their support at the polls.

John Hough, Janesville, pinch-hitting for John Wyngaard, is widely known in Wisconsin Republican politics. He served as Wisconsin national committeeman and is now chairman of its state executive committee.

Speculation about the turnout of these young voters usually notes that their immediate elders, the 21 to 25-year-old voters have registered and voted in far smaller proportions than older age groups. It is pointed out, however, that most 18 and 19-year-olds are still living at home where they are more likely to know where to register and vote, and can do so with minimum effort.

It is questionable whether these young Americans will vote as a bloc. While college students tend to be classified as "liberal," a recent sampling by the Gilbert Research Corp. concluded that non-students are considerably more "conservative" than students.

There is good reason to believe that youthful participation in the election process will relate directly to specific issues and to candidates who address themselves to these issues. Youth wants action on the problems that beset America.

Underscoring this point, a survey by pollster Samuel Lubell has pointed out that many members of the younger generation "want to work on the problems of the country." A problem of particular concern to them is the quality of life in America. Directly related to the quality of life is the quality of the leadership which strives to solve the nation's problems.

The party system in America is one of the most important ways we recruit talented leadership at local, state and national levels. Youth is no bar to leadership activity. The political history of Wisconsin clearly illustrates that young candidates can launch highly successful careers in their 20s and serve with distinction. Many of today's Republican leaders got their start in public life at an early age and credit their election success to the kind of dedication and enthusiasm they inspired among their own generation.

Consider these examples: Congressman William Steiger of Oshkosh was first elected to the Wisconsin Assembly at the age of 22 and was only 28 when elected to the U. S. Congress. Now in his third term he is yet to celebrate his 34th birthday.

Others Were Young

State Reps. James Sensenbrenner and Tommy Thompson both won election when they were 25. Rep. Joe Tregoning was elected at 26 and Jim Azim at 28. Sen. Jack Steinhilber won his first office as district attorney at age 26. Minority leader, Harold Froehlich, came to the Assembly at age 30.

Attaining political leadership at an early age is in the Wisconsin tradition. Election opportunities for young candidates in 1972 should be substantially enhanced by the addition of several hundred thousand new voters in the 18-to-21-year-old bracket. At the same time, the turnout of these new voters is likely to be stimulated by the presence of new young candidates on the ballot.

Why Are Sn Words Often Unpleasant?

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Among the letters piling up, and waiting to be answered, is one from the vice-president of Hiram Walker in Detroit, a man evidently as interested in language as in liquor.

"Some years ago," he writes, "perhaps while browsing through the dictionary, I realized suddenly that almost all the words in the English language beginning with the letters 'sn' have an unpleasant meaning or derivation.

"For example: snag, snake, snap, snare, snail, snatch, sneak, sneer, snicker, snide, sniffle, snob, snotty, snore, snort, snub and snuff. The only truly pleasant 'sn' words are 'snuggle' and 'snooze.' My question, Mr. Harris, is why is the above true?"

And my answer, Mr. Walker, is I don't know. But it has long been recognized by philologists that syllable sounds rule the popularity of words more generally than we realize. Ivor Brown, for one, has pointed this out in his six-volume study of word derivations.

"L," for instance, is the initial of most terms for lust, lewdness, lechery, lasciviousness, libidinous, and so on. "St" is the beginning sound for the quality of endurance, in men of stamina, who are stalwary, stout-hearted, staunch, and also strong, stubborn, sturdy, steadfast stickers-to-the-end.

"Bl," on the other hand, usually begins a word conveying disgust or annoyance — blasted, blithering, blooming, blighted, and (in England, at least) the ever-present bloody.

The "f" sound beginning a word is also one of derision and contempt, which is perhaps why the relatively recent word "phony" has driven the older "bogus" right out of the market. A few positively-charged words such as "fair" and "famous" begin with "f," but they are far out-weighed by filthy, feeble, fatuous, futile, finicky, fatheaded, frowsy, faggish, and so forth.

The "Sl" words give us a sloppy, slippery, slimy association; while the "Sc" words seem especially fitting for scamps, scalawags, and skullduggery in general; on the contrary, the "j" words give us a jolly, jocund, jouncy, jingly feeling.

The "Sq" combination gives us such unpleasant terms as squash and squeal, squawk and squelch, squawl and squeamish, squalid and squat. A "square" is a modern term of opprobrium, just as a "squirt" was in our parents' time.

The sounds of the alphabet are often as important as the sense, in their influence upon our reactions. As has often been remarked by psychologically - minded historians, "Heil, Hitler!" possessed a commanding verbal ring that would have been wholly lacking in "Heil, Schickelgruber!"

Lindsay Building Up Political IOUs

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — The fact that Democratic Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York has now accepted a glittering invitation to travel the state of Indiana for two days next month, extended by old-pro state party chairman Gordon St. Angelo, tells much about Lindsay's long, long-odds strategy to capture the Presidential nomination.

St. Angelo's invitation was

cleared with Sen. Birch Bayh, on grounds that mayoral candidates in six Indiana cities want his help in their campaigns.

But Bayh, an unannounced Presidential candidate himself, can hardly appreciate this intrusion by an out-of-state Presidential hopeful who has more star quality than any other candidate now in the field

For example, Bayh's home-state primary on May 2 is one of the half a dozen Presidential primary states that Lindsay is now giving serious thought to entering. Indiana is also one of the ten primary states in which Lindsay is now spending close to $100,000 in systematic polling to help him choose which ones to enter if, as fully expected, he announces his own candidacy early next year.

First Phase

The Lindsay tactic of raising money for 1971 Democratic candidates and state party organizations across the nation is the first phase of his overall strategy. It is designed to win him broad party acceptance as a bona fide Democrat willing to lend his prestige and popular appeal to almost any Democrat who asks.

At the same time, if he does as well elsewhere as St. Angelo is convinced he will do for his mayoral candidates in Indiana, Lindsay will gain two assets vital for the primary battles next spring: political IOUs and broad public exposure.

The first test of this strategy came last week when Lindsay's No. 1 booster, New York state chairman John Burns, brought him to Syracuse for a major Onondaga County fund-raiser. Chairmen from 30 other counties showed up, along with Democratic legislative leaders, and the take was $30,000.

Port of Strategy

Not a single county chairman or elected Democrat at that Syracuse affair (Lindsay's first real exposure as a worker in the Democratic Vineyard) wanted him to run for President, and several went out of their way to tell him so. But Lindsay intimates expected no different. The first phase of his grand strategy is to ingratiate himself with his new party.

Thus, Lindsay has agreed to be principal speaker at the Arizona state Democratic convention on Sunday (Sept. 26), then on to Los Angeles (for a poorly-organized Democratic party luncheon) and to San Francisco, where he will be the star attraction before the California League of Cities.

California state chairman Charles Manatt wants Lindsay back in his state for two party fund-raisers in mid-October, but Lindsay's commitment to St. Angelo may rule that out.

The heavy Lindsay emphasis in the next few weeks will be here in New York, where Lindsay has already scheduled political tours that will take him to most up-state cities, through Westchester County and into unfriendly territory on Long Island.

Unpopular Mayor

Lindsay's gamble in his New York tour is obvious: to transform himself from highly unpopular mayor (who won in 1969 with only 42 per cent of the vote) to state party leader with credible national aspirations. For Lindsay, that gamble must be won outright. His barely visible prospect either to win the Presidential nomination or to exert major influence on the July 10 Democratic convention in Miami directly depends on his winning his home-state Presidential primary three weeks earlier.

The polls now being taken by Lindsay point to at least four other probable primaries he will enter — Florida, Wisconsin, Oregon and California — with Massachusetts and Indiana as strong possibles. They also show a remarkable "parallel track" between the appeal of Lindsay and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (regarded by Lindsay operatives as the single most powerful political force not among professionals but among Democratic voters).

Hence the great risk in Lindsay's strategy: even if he converts this Kennedy sentiment into Lindsay primary votes, a big "if," and knocks out the front-runner, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, the convention would almost certainly turn not to Lindsay but perhaps to Kennedy himself.

Car Is Located Far From Home

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — For a month Herbert Bischoff had been worried about his stolen car, so he was happy when police called to say it had been recovered. But there's a problem: the car is in Puerto Rico.

Police weren't sure how the 1964 car, stolen from in front of Bischoff's home, wound up on the Carribbean island. But they said it was impounded at Puerto Neuvo, and he could pick it up any time.

Man Charged With Public Intoxication

A rural Pine River man who was jailed for drunk driving early Friday was out of jail only two hours when he was returned to a cell, charged with public intoxication.

Kenneth R. Bahr, 52, was brought to the Outagamie County Jail about 1 a.m. by Kaukauna police who charged him with driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

Alleged drunk drivers can be released on their own signature after four hours of incarceration. Bahr signed out at 6:45 a.m., according to a county jailer.

He was back in the county jail at 9 a.m., Friday after Appleton police arrested him after a south side accident.

Police, responding to a report of a car striking the gasoline pump at Stein Service Station, 2530 S. Oneida St., found Bahr behind the steering wheel. Police, who alleged that he was intoxicated, said he insisted on driving his car home. He told them he believed he was in Waupaca.

There was no damage to the car or the gas pump, according to police.

Bahr was released from the Outagamie jail Friday afternoon. He was ordered to appear in Calumet County Court, since the service station is in the Calumet County portion of Appleton.

Year-Round School Wins Praise, But Does It Save Money?

BY DEBORAH DOBISH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Fox Valley school administrators praise the concept of year-round schools as long as taxpayers don't expect substantial savings.

For, as most of them pointed out, there are two questions to ask about what in school lingo is known as the "extended year." Does it save money? And, does it improve the quality of education?

The answer to one does not necessarily depend on the other. Nor do school systems need both reasons to adopt the plan.

Two systems often cited as examples of successfully run year-round schools — Atlanta, Ga. and Lockport, Ill. — each stepped into the plan with one of the reasons.

For Alanta it was educational quality. School officials made it understood from the outset of planning that the taxpayers would have to spend more. This fall is the start of its third full year of operation.

So far only the high schools in Atlanta are year-round on what is called the quarter system, in which the year is divided into quarters of three months each. Students must attend three. They are allowed to decide which ones

A little more than three-fourths of the district might attend school at any one time, because some students might attend all four quarters. They may be making up for failures, picking up credits for earlier graduation or taking classes in such subjects as driver's education or typing that might interfere with their basic courses during the other three quarters.

Lockport Uses 45-15 On Elementary Level

In Lockport the year-round plan is the 45-15 on the elementary level.

Under this kind of scheduling, students attend school for 45 days at a time and then vacation 15 days four times a year. Three-fourths of the student body is in school at any one time. While one group is on vacation, the other three are in school. As one group returns to school another starts its vacation, so that in the full 60-day cycle each group has its turn.

The school year is still 180 days long, but it is staggered. Lockport has kept the traditional Christmas and Easter one-week breaks.

Lockport, a suburb of Chicago, adopted the plan after 21 consecutive tax increases. The city's district grows at the rate of 75 to 100 pupils a year. Construction, however, was only deferred. Now the district has to spend $7.5 million on construction, because of its growth rate.

So far, no school district in Wisconsin has adopted the plan, but a number of them including Neenah and Menasha, have studied it closely, and one (Racine) has plans to run a trial of it next fall.

The Racine decision has a history somewhat like Lockport's, which, according to administrators, is usually the incentive to look into the idea in the first place — overcrowding.

According to Racine School Supt. C. Richard Nelson, a citizens' committee originally had recommended testing the 45-15 plan on the elementary level. The school board, which was receptive to the recommendation, thought there would be advantages to trying it at the high school level instead.

Racine Hopes to Solve Junior High Crowding

The board's reasoning was that Racine, a rather large system with three high schools, has serious overcrowding in its junior high schools, which operated on split shifts. Using the high schools year-round, Nelson explained, would increase their present capacity of 2,200 to 2,500 to approximately 3,300, an increase big enough to accommodate the city's ninth graders. With the ninth graders attending classes in the high schools, the junior high overcrowding would be relieved.

The district presently is working out this year's class schedule on the computer according to the 45-15 plan to see what problems it would present.

Nelson said that one problem peculiar to high schools under the regular year — underenrollment in certain classes such as foreign languages — is intensified. Already it is difficult to offer more than one section of such classes; it would be more difficult under the 45-15 plan.

Nelson sees more advantages than disadvantages to the plan, however, and is enthusiastic. Like most administrators, he thinks that the success or failure of the plan will depend far more on the community's attitude than on scheduling problems.

If the community were to generally oppose the plan, Nelson said, "it wouldn't be worth it. Nothing will work if forced."

He said that the sentiment is "about the same as that for a referendum," Since the system has a year to "inform the community of our thinking" and the recommendation originally came from a lay committee, Nelson is optimistic

Community Reception Is Prime Concern

Local school administrators questioned about the kind of attention the year-round school plan received in their districts emphasized, like Nelson, that this factor — community reception — influenced their opinions of the plan more than any other.

Most of them see definite educational advantages to the plan, but as Kimberly Supt. Ray Hamann said "The taxpayer wants it no less expensive than the regular year and there is no question that it costs more in the first few years."

In February of 1968, both the Neenah and Menasha school districts wrote extensive separate reports on their studies of the extended year.

The Neenah report did not definitely say that the extended year would be more expensive in the long run, because "there is no year-round experience in the Neenah Joint School District to provide actual cost figures. Much more time and research talent than is now available to the committee would be needed to provide any reliable estimates on comparative costs."

The report did recognize what Hamann pointed out. The first few years will cost more. The schools would have to install air conditioning, books would wear out faster and school buses would have to run all year round, to mention just a few items.

Menasha's conclusion about costs was more definite. "No evidence presently exists that any real economies are realized through an extended school year. "While building costs may be avoided, additional operational costs erode whatever potential savings might be anticipated." Menasha examined both the Lockport and Atlanta systems.

Teachers' Salaries Would Boost Costs

The item both reports said would most inflate the cost of the year-round system was yearlong teachers' salaries. Nelson, of Racine, however, thought that despite the salary increases, "in the long run there won't be much additional cost," mainly because "we won't need to increase the staff."

Salaries aside, teachers are a prime source of administrators' reluctance to embrace the extended year for other reasons. Menasha said in its 1968 report that teacher recruitment might become difficult, since many teachers like summers off for study, travel or watching their own children.

Nelson brought out the other side of the question. "Most of our teachers take courses in the evening or on weekends anyway," and he said the plan would be a boon to breadwinners who scramble for summer jobs.

The problem has a simple solution: Racine plans to offer teachers the option of teaching three or four sessions and the chance to choose which session they want for vacation. if they choose three.

Besides expectation of savings, communities have other attitudes which condition administrators' thinking.

— The traditional family summer vacation. "It's argued that our present school year is basically agrarian," Menasha Supt Alan Osterndorf commented, "but the urban, mechanical society took it over for its needs and now it's geared that way."

Summer vacations, he said, are just a part of the general question. "How much does a community want to change its living patterns?"

In the first place. industry would have to agree to spread vacations throughout the year. Hamann said. "Would a third or fourth want to take a vacation in the winter? Can working people afford the cost of winter ski trips or Florida jaunts?"

Guarantee of Family Vacations Important

Osterndorf said. "There is no way to guarantee that all the children in a family could be off at the same time." In Racine. though. Nelson said the district will make that guarantee and, "if a person can't adjust his vacation, we'll let the kids take the vacation and make it up. No doubt families consider vacation sacred."

Not so sacred. however. that it has disabled extended year plans now operating Lockport Supt. Kenneth Hermansen, when speaking recently to the Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance. said his community thought flexible vacations was one of the plan's pluses.

In Atlanta the first summer's attendance was low at approximately 10 per cent, according to the Menasha report. The Wall Street Journal reported recently. however. that the second summer's attendance climbed to 35 per cent.

— Recreation programs. In the Neenah report. a Boys' Brigade spokesman wrote. "We strongly urge you to keep the school year the way it is." He said that year-round attendance would spoil the brigade's summer camping program.

A number of administrators think to the contrary. "With our number of students," Green Bay Supt. Edward Olds explained, "We see the need for a steady year-round recreation program." The Green Bay School Board, about to begin a citizens' study of the extended year, like Neenah asked recreational groups what they thought of the plan.

According to Olds. most endorsed it. The YMCA, Olds said for example. liked it because instead of "gearing up for many students in the summer, it could operate year-round for far fewer at a time."

Supt. V. J. Wadleigh. Clintonville. thought the extended year could vitalize recreation programs during their off periods

More Students Might Be Able to Get Jobs

— Student summer jobs While at first it may seem that the extended year quashes them. Olds said. "Maybe on a year-round plan more youngsters would be able to work."

Nelson said that employers could fill one slot year-round, instead of only summer-long, by scheduling students to each start work at the beginning of his vacation as the previous one leaves.

— Delinquency. The Menasha report speculated that truancy might be aggravated if students attending school could masquerade as vacationing students all year.

Nelson said one reason Racine is so interested in the extended year is the expectation that it will diminish truancy. The logic behind this: "Give the class a nine week horizon. Anyone should be able to stand it, no matter how boring. And kids always want to go back to school early in the vacation, so the plan should improve their attitude towards school."

— Educational improvement. In the opinion of Neenah Supt. Donald Scott, "Real possibilities for innovation" come about under 45-15. He minimized the benefits of a self-contained classroom with one teacher all year, calling it "mother hen. Over 80 per cent of our elementary teaching is team teaching already. Maybe it is better not to be so dependent."

"Some strategies would have to be changed in the teaching plan," Appleton administrator Orlyn Zieman pointed out. The extended year was one means he also saw of combating reading regression during the summer.

Another educational advantage Olds mentioned was the "chance for high school students to take more electives. Schedules now are jammed up with requirements."

Problems Unique to Districts Considered

Some of the administrators talked about the extended year in connection with problems unique to their districts.

— Waupaca. "We don't have facilities adequate enough for the extended year," was the assessment of Supt Len Brittelli. Before buildings can be shared, they must be "proper," he explained.

— Clintonville. The extended year," was successful in suburbs where industry cooperates by freeing people for vacation," Wadleigh said "We are about 50 per cent farm children," and he thought there were "some disadvantages for the rural school."

— Appleton. This district has recently, like Green Bay, decided to appoint a citizen's committee to investigate the suitability of the extended year. Zieman said that officials have an appointment to visit Lockport, but reminded, "we are just becoming involved."

The concept of the extended year is about 70 years old. A high school in Bluffton, Ind., tried it at the turn of the century and then dropped it after a few years. Aliquippa, Pa., schools started it in 1929 and dropped it in 1938. Other trials followed the same cycle

Despite this record, according to Richard Olson, a consultant with the State Department of Public Instruction presently writing a study on the extended year, 71 Wisconsin school districts have been or are in various stages of studying it.

And Fox Valley administrators who rule it out for their districts think that a number of districts will adopt it within 10 years, and that attitudes within their own districts will change

Wadleigh termed it "exciting to explore," although he expected the plan to be "tested in the larger cities first, and then to filter down to communities like Clintonville."

Scott said "sooner or later" the extended year would be common, because "the life style has changed enough to warrant it."

"In a few years," he speculated, "the district on the regular year will be the oddball."

Salmonella Infection Is Spread by Food

BY G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson You discussed salmonella a few weeks ago At the time it meant little to me so I didn't absorb the contents

I work in a 40-bed home for chronically ill, and recently seven residents were isolated with salmonella I am the housekeeper, not on the nursing staff, so was not required to come in contact with these isolated residents

All employes had stool specimens examined Mine was negative, but later I became ill, and another specimen was positive.

I am required to stay home have a specimen examined twice a week, and will be informed when I may return to work All my questions have been evaded, but I am told no medicine is best

Exactly what is salonella? Since I must stay at home, will I endanger my family? What can I do to hasten recovery? — W M.

"Salmonella" is a rod-shaped germ, or bacterium, that causes intestinal upsets There are, actually, several hundred varieties of this germ Typhoid is one form, the most serious, and it of course requires specific treatment

The rest can be lumped into forms causing "food poisoning" with nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and fever It is possible to become infected but not immediately sick, which doubtless explains the delay in your case

The infection is spread by food (or, of course, utensils in which food is prepared or served), with poultry products and prepared foods being most commonly involved

It isn't always easy to trace the exact source of an outbreak — in your case, the germ evidently got into some food, whether from a person inside the nursing home or some food handler outside. But it got there, and the home is doing the right thing by isolating, or sending home, anyone carrying the germ (the purpose of the stool test is to find out who is)

Drug treatment ordinarily does no good, may even do more harm than good The germ disappears suddenly without medication, but you should stay at home until that happens This is determined by obtaining negative stool examinations

To protect your family in the interim avoid intimate contact; scrupulous cleanliness on your part is necessary, and all cooking utensils and dishes must be thoroughly washed That's all you can or need do You can't hasten recovery Nature sets the pace

If you have diarrhea, medication to relieve that is in order, and you can avoid dehydration by drinking plenty of fluids

For most people, salmonella is an uncomfortable rather than a dangerous condition. Outbreaks

Thosteson

are fairly common in institutions, and are especially serious in nurseries with small babies, since dehydration to a tiny infant is much more dangerous than in an adult

But salmonella outbreaks are a very good reason for having rigid rules of cleanliness in kitchens

Dear Dr Thosteson My son, 16, has much oil in his hair and he has to wash it twice a week, or else it gets oily and looks greasy But it seems to me a boy should be able to go seven days without a shampoo — Mrs J H

Maybe he "should," but nobody can control how oily his hair gets If he were my boy, I'd be glad that he was willing to wash his hair twice a week You are probably being envied by plenty of parents who can't get their young ones to wash their hair often enough

Two washings a week certainly won't hurt him or his scalp. The oiliness will probably decrease in a few years

Paper Plate Becomes Shelf Under Chair Seat

BY CAPPY DICK

A handy shelf can be installed beneath the seat of a chair as in figure three. It can be used to hold lesson material while you are studying.

To make the shelf, start with a paper plate. Punch four strong rubber bands (figure one), all the same length. This is all the preparation that is needed.

The shelf can be installed quick as a flash as shown in figure two. Turn the chair upside down and slip the rubber bands over the legs. It is important that the chair have no cross supports that would interfere with the location of the shelf.

It can be removed from the

chair with equal ease. Simply turn the chair upside down again and slip the rubber bands off the legs.

The shelf will support a surprising load of school lesson material and other notes you want to keep handy while studying. It could even support a paperback book.

It is important to see that the paper plate is level. This is controlled by the position of the rubber bands on the chair legs.

Firm's Board Meets at Fox

Koehring Company's Top Officials View Equipment in Use

The officers and directors of Koehring Co., Milwaukee-based international machinery company which has its farm division headquartered in Appleton, met here Friday for their monthly directors meeting and viewed a demonstration of farm products equipment near Kaukauna.

Orville R. Mertz, Koehring president, said that the meeting at Fox Tractor (the farm division headquarters) was the result of the company's policy to hold two such events a year at field locations to keep directors informed and give them a better feel for product developments and manufacturing operations.

"The products of our farm division, and the Fox operations in particular, exemplify Koehring's philosophy to produce specialized machinery with increased efficiencies and productivity with the end result of helping our customer's achieve greater output at lower total cost," Mertz said. "Koehring does not seek to be a manufacturer of a broad line of farm equipment, but rather to design, produce and sell specialty equipment to this market and especially the forage harvesting field."

Mertz noted that the farm division was a well managed and profitable operation for the company, with a skilled and dedicated work force.

During the morning, the officers and directors viewed a demonstration of major farm product lines at the Schmidt Brothers farm south of Kaukauna. The equipment included Fox forage harvesters, Brady Cultivators and crop shredders, and a new product, a soybean processor. Termed the Brady Crop Cooker, the machine can be used on the farm itself, or by small feed manufacturers, grain elevator operators and retail feed dealers to produce full-energy soybean meal for livestock feed. Developed and manufactured by the Farm Division Brady operations, Anken Iowa, the processor has had company said.

Bill Cosby, left, and Robert Culp, right, stars of the old "I Spy" television series, have teamed up again only this time for a movie. Their producer is Egyptian Fouad Said, center, who owns the mobile movie studio they are using. The trio is cutting corners with the truck equipped with cameras, lights, dressing rooms and power plant. Culp is directing the film.

Rita Plays Movie Queen On 'Laugh-In'

BY TV SCOUT

7-8 — Channel 5 — Rita Hayworth comes to Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In playing, in a good skit, a movie queen who has a problem with alcohol. She also duets a fine special song by Billy Barnes, with Lily Tomlin as the Tasteful Lady. Rita is all through the show, with walk-ons, cocktail party tidbits and another skit in which she is a mean, mean nurse. Jill St. John and James Brolin make cameo appearances and the Mystery Person is back for a third time: he's the masked man they call Johnny and who may have a nighttime talk show.

7-7:30 — Channels 11-9 — Nanny and the Professor, which is pushed around by the football schedule, strikes back. They have a football script with Richard Long heading up a professional touch football team with — ready? — Howard Cosell as one of the players. Anyway, the script is fairly dull.

7-8 — Channels 2-7 — Gunsmoke has a two-parter which started out as a single script and was expanded. Matt (James Arness) the only regular, is chasing a bad guy through wastelands with a young boy searching for his mother as his "partner". Johnnie Whitaker, formerly of Family Affair, is very appealing as the tyke, whose garndfather has been killed by the evening's bad guy.

8-8:30 — Channels 2-7 — Here's Lucy builds up to a guest appearance by Kay Ballard, who plays the Italian bombshell Uncle Harry (Gale Gordon) promised to wait for — no matter how long. Now she's coming to the states and: Harry has to get young and thin in a hurry and Lucille Ball and Lucie Arnaz have to sleep at the office in case she arrives early, because the office address is the only one the Italian lady has.

8-Conclusion — Channels 11-9 — NFL Monday Night Football has the Joe Namath-less New York Jets in St. Louis to play the Cardinals. Frank Gifford, Don Meredith and Howard Cosell are the sportscasters.

8:30-9 — Channels 2-7 — The Doris Day Show has its best episode in the new format with several genuine laughs and a nice touch of Roman romance for Doris, in the person of Cesare Danova. Doris and Jackie Joseph are in Rome for a weekend (Doris is there because of a dog), where her fling with Danova has all kinds of complications because she doesn't know who he is and she has criticized some paintings which are his work.

9-9:30 — Channels 2-7 — My Three Sons continues the romantic saga of Fergus. Steve's lookalike cousin from Scotland (with Fred MacMurray playing both parts). Fergus is getting closer to popping the question to Anne Francis, who plays a waitress, but Steve still disapproves of the woman, who has lied about her age and has been married twice before.

9:30-10 — Channels 2-7 — Arnie has picked up its comic sense this season and while you'll never believe tonight's episode could happen, it's fun. Seems Lillian (Sue Ane Langdon) goes to one of the weekly wives' teas, just as she is getting fed up with Arnie (Herschel Bernardi) always working late. The other women feel the same and she comes up with a plan involving the men working from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m., so that if they have to do overtime, they'll still be home for dinner.

Social Security Benefits for Younger Workers Explained

"I will never get all the money back that I paid into Social Security." is a frequent complaint of the young worker, states Frank M. Donnick, district manager of the Appleton Social Security office.

Statements such as this generally indicate a lack of knowledge concerning the purpose of the Social Security program and the many types of protection it does offer to today's young worker, he said.

"Too often Social Security is thought of strictly in terms of retirement benefits, and the value of the program is measured strictly in terms of what I paid into it, and what I will draw out when I retire," Donnick said.

Social Security is much more than just a retirement plan. It also gives the younger worker and his family much needed protection in case of disability or death. In the case of death, a young worker's surviving dependents would draw benefits; in the case of disability, the young worker and his dependents would receive payments.

"If any club or group would like to know more about Social Security, we have representatives available to discuss any aspect of the program," Donnick added. Write to the Social Security office located at 1801 N. Richmond St., Appleton, or telephone 739-7744 to make the arrangements.

Apple Tree Artisans Have Busy Year

Ideas Galore at Second Annual Show

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

It's been a year since the Apple Tree Artisans had their first very successful sale and show. Their second is scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday in the parish hall at All Saints Episcopal Church.

The elapsing year has wrought some changes for this group of women devoted to original arts and crafts. Some members have dropped out because of other commitments; new ones with new ideas and-or new techniques have taken their places.

The original idea of keeping organization to the bare minimum has given way to greater structure. Putting on a show proved to require more time and attention than the women realized that first year.

Meetings are still held in members' homes because that's the way they want it and they are usually devoted to sharing new craft ideas or techniques. Because the artisans realize that if they didn't get together as a group they would craft anyway, they have found they use the structure of an organization to further their own hobbies.

When they are gathered together they provide incentive for each other. As one brings out some of her projects, others are oh-ing and ah-ing about how great they are. Of course, one of the real benefits has been the strong friendships that have grown as a result of their mutual interests.

One of the offshots of belonging to the group has been requests to speak. Three of the women recently gave a daylong demonstration on the art of pressing flowers; others have been asked to talk and give demonstrations at club meetings.

Some are called at various times throughout the year to make gifts or to duplicate an item that was seen at the first show.

Both of these provide the Apple Tree Artisans with an opportunity to help others who may not be as talented to learn new techniques.

Those who gathered at last year's show voiced much enthusiasm for the ambitious projects. If these same persons attend this year, they will find some of the same kinds of things that were there then — the clay figures used in pictures, dried flowers in lovely frames, little paintings, original needlework and some wood products.

But they also will find some new things. One of the artisans has made patchwork items — long skirts, pillows and baby quilts. Another is doing scissor cuts which she mounts on boards for hangings. Another is interested in textile podge — the art of applying fabric to old porcelain pieces and then finishing them with a deft porcelain.

Another of the popular crafts is being pursued by others. Stained glass is cut into shapes and then leaded. These are original designs, made from real glass and lead, not from the plastic counterparts that are available in kits.

There will be some samples of weaving, of authentic rosemalling on tinware, of hand formed and hand thrown pottery, and of decoupage, papier tole and macrame.

The show is open to the public and offers them an opportunity to own or to purchase original items for their homes or for gifts — all crafted by local women. Some will want to attend just to absorb ideas. All are in for a treat.

Wearing a Patchwork Skirt patiently made by Janet Bingham is Nancy Krucker who holds a handwoven rug in the sampler pattern, also done by one of the artisans.

Mary Ann Turner uses a soldering gun to apply the finishing touches to the lead trim around a stained glass apple. Before her is a cute little mouse with a long tail. These are two of several that have been made for the show.

This Decorative piece will appeal to bird lovers. Made from materials found in nature, it holds birds that were hand-carved and painted by the designer and her husband.

An Array of Items hang on a papered backdrop; others lend their shapes and forms to the arrangement on top of an old trunk.

Many of the Items that will be seen at the show will lend themselves to use in the kitchen. Old coffee pots, for instance, have been painted and hand decorated; breadboards are ablaze with colorful designs and tiny pictures are mounted in bright frames.

First Wisconsin Women's Political Caucus in Madison

Bella Abzug Tells Women How to Develop Political Muscle

BY EDITH BOCK
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The hope of the women's political movement lies in reaching out to all people — in ending discrimination, Congresswoman Bella Abzug (D-NY) said here Saturday in a featured address at the first Wisconsin Women's Political Caucus (WWPC).

More than 500 Wisconsin women crowded the auditorium of the Madison Area Technical College to hear Rep. Abzug talk on the political issues in the women's movement.

Her spell-binding delivery won a standing ovation as she concluded, "I believe that what is good for women will turn out to be good for the country."

The congresswoman's talk concluded a long morning of discussion and workshops as participants learned about developing political muscle and the way to work effectively in party politics.

The day-long session concluded with election of a 15-woman steering committee to continue the work of the group. Another 10 members were elected to represent each of the state's Congressional districts and to convene similar caucuses back home.

A leader of the national caucus, held in July, Congresswoman Abzug presented a long list of issues of particular interest to women and the nation.

Instead of a government by "middle aged and old men," she said a truly representative House and Senate would include proportionate representation of women, young people, blacks, Chicanos, Indians the disenfranchised, the people concerned for and equipped to deal with the needs of the country.

Different Attitudes

Such a government would never tolerate a country without a national health institute; a position 14th among the enlightened nations in infant mortality, where millions of children grow up without adequate care because their mothers must work and the butchering of girls and mothers in abortion mills because their right of privacy was withheld.

It would never allow the cheating of consumers today, nor would it vote for guns instead of schools, multiple warheads instead of homes, nor countenance a war of "slaughter in Indochina that is repugnant to every civilized country in the world."

"These are the issues to remind you that women leaders must represent the real America," Rep. Abzug declared, "not just the white, middleclass elite."

She cautioned that she was not trying to elevate women to the position of saviors of the nation. Women are as good and as bad as men, she reminded.

But the opportunity is here, she said, for "women to lead in the political arena, for change to meet the human and constructive needs of life today."

Women, she said, have had little to say in the development of the present society: theirs is not the mandate to continue war; they are not imbued with the mystique that America must be bigger and more powerful and more potent.

"Not one political organization in the country could survive without our work, and we're coming to collect our debts. We've paid our dues. We're willing to share the work."

Challenges Scarcity

The congresswoman had little patience with the charge that women qualified for leadership posts are scarce.

"If President Nixon could find a Carswell, he can find a dozen women better qualified for the Supreme Court bench," she declared. "Certainly the present visibility of women in high places must change. We must have equal representation in all areas of public life."

The first WWPC was convened by Betty Walker Smith, temporary chairman and former chairman, the Governor's Commission On the Status of Women.

"We need doers, ego-proofed against failure," she told the assemblage. "We have discovered that other forms of persuasion are not working. I just don't think they're listening to us. So we turn to politics and I think the political party is the way to go. Let's learn from the parties, but not stay forever to lock envelopes. We've done that."

Mrs. Smith warned, however, that "there is no second place in politics; you win or you are lost."

Other speakers, all reporting on the National Women's Political Caucus, included state Rep. Midge Miller, D-Madison, and Mary Louise Symon, Dane County supervisor.

"Not a piece of the same old corrupt pie, but let's go into the kitchen and bake a brand new pie," Mrs. Miller urged the group.

She said the converging of four groups has made the time right for women to press for a rightful share in the affairs of the country.

More women are trying the political arena, she said, and added that professional women are seeking recognition for their skills and consumers' groups and civil rights activists are demanding change.

In four workshop sessions, women shot a barrage at panelists, chosen for their experience and success in lobbying, recruiting candidates, and campaigning, and for their knowledge of political appointment procedures.

Throughout the day, women were urged to fill in forms provided with names and histories of women whose special abilities would make them eligible for appointment to state or national offices.

Like most political organizations, there was talk of the need for funds. Mrs. Smith adjourned the meeting promptly at 3 p.m. before the tellers could announce the results of the steering committee elections. Cost of the rented facilities would run over the budget if the meeting lasted longer, she said.

Earlier she had announced the results of a collection as adequate to meet the costs of the meeting. There was no registration fee," "because we wanted this meeting open to all concerned and interested women," she announced.

Pre-Natal Classes To Get Underway

Classes will get underway Oct. 22 and be held on four consecutive Fridays in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building. Pre-registration is not necessary and classes are open without charge to all women in the Kaukauna area.

Living Space Design Begins With People

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEENAH — "Man has been concerned about his environment since the beginning of time," Mrs. Mary Ann Baird told members of Northeast District Wisconsin Home Economics Association during an after-luncheon discussion Saturday at the Ramada Inn. The home economists had gathered earlier in the day for fall convention and had listened to three speakers discussing various phases of child development.

An interior designer, Mrs. Baird is with the home economics department and the campus planning-business affairs offices at Stevens Point State University.

Although her topic was "Future Housing," she broadened it to concern for living space design.

This phrase she called more descriptive. "We no longer live just in a house; we spend much of our time outside. It is important that we realize that living space is more than the single family dwelling we've been talking about so long."

Appalled by some interior decorators who begin decorating a home with things, she suggested space design should begin with the needs of the human beings.

Involves Past

Any study of housing involves a study of the past, she said, but emphasized that it is something that should not be dwelled on in the classroom unless students are particularly interested in a certain period of history and wish to know more about it.

Citing social economic factors and changes in our society as important to future housing trends, she said it is important to know about population trends although these are not always predictable. In spite of the recent population slow down in this country, she pointed to a need in this country for many new housing units in the next 10 years.

The multi-family unit is definitely a trend in this country, she continued, because it is "just about the only way to go if we want to maintain our natural environment. Because space is costly and we have to make the best use of it that we can, we'll be seeing more space planned for multiple uses."

Our affluent society with its constantly rising per capita income and real income, she said, has an insatiable demand for home furnishings. People are no longer satisfied with just a roof over their heads. They are not happy with just plumbing, they want something special — everything from gold plated fixtures to plush fabrics. This is making our young people ask us how we are using our affluency.

We have developed an international awareness of the problems of other peoples and if we don't take their needs into consideration, we are doing a disservice to our young people.

Eclectic Trend

This awareness has resulted in interest in international design and in turn has caused an eclectic trend that is America today. We are using everything from Far Eastern to western to American and African design in our homes, she continued.

We are guilty in this country of assuming that a house houses a wife who stays home, a husband and two children. But we know, she said, that some wives go out to work. Yet, we haven't put this into our house planning. We haven't kept up with the changing life styles. For instance, a family doesn't all sit together for breakfast, lunch or dinner; still we haven't taken this into consideration in our planning either.

We have known for a long time that Americans are becoming more casual in their life styles, she said. Although she didn't advocate the demise of traditional furniture styles, she suggested that not all Americans are comfortable in traditional settings. "It's a fact that some people who like to sit on the floor rather than in a chair.

"We've become an instant society, too. We want instant coffee, instant juice, instant cereal, instant housing and instant clothing. Mail order houses are hard pressed to meet this situation because when we want something we want it now."

Recognize Demands

Mass production, Mrs. Baird continued, is certainly here to stay, because that is the only way we can have instant furniture.

Because each of us spends a great deal of our time in institutional settings every day, there is a trend toward better and more asthetic planning of these settings. Contract furniture manufacture is a growing industry with many of the old line furniture companies getting into this phase of production.

"We're concerned for our total environment because "What good would it do to design a good living room if you can't go outside into air you can breathe and take a walk?" she asked.

This has brought about renewed interest for community planning, she continued, citing apartment complexes that are being designed to include such things as gyms and play areas as one phase of this trend.

Housing costs have risen more rapidly than any of the other areas in our economy, Mrs. Baird said. One reason for this is that the housing industry has probably been the most backward. Single family units, she said, are being constructed today by carpenters cutting board by board just as they have done for years. But, she predicted, there will be change.

With our rapid communications systems, we are all more aware of what is available around us — in our communities, nation and world. We have learned about old and new forms and about several possibilities for solving our housing problems.

She talked about the mechanical core being manufactured by one company. The heart of the house, it includes the kitchen, bath and heating areas — the most expensive part of the house. Pre-manufactured to be set in place, the rest of the house is built around it.

One out of every three new homes started in Wisconsin last year was a mobile home, according to Mrs. Baird, because the cost for conventional homes was out of reach of a big segment of our society.

Besides the conventional mobile homes, she talked about the development of fiberglass modular units that are bolted together. Other units are being made of high density urthane foam, which she says is an inexpensive way to enclose space and one that has great possibilities. "But it still has not been accepted because it doesn't look like conventional housing."

Mrs. Baird, closed by challenging the home economists to lead the way in these new modular designs. "Don't wait," she said, "until someone else has done it and then sit back and complain. Make sure that future housing provides for all the necessities of man and that it is housing that not only supports life but also enriches and sustains living."

Your Problems

Economy Makes Job Hunting Difficult

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is a woman supposed to do when she reaches 40? Kill herself? I'm too young for Social Security and too old to get a job. Personnel directors these days are interested only in girls under 30 with measurements of 36-25-34.

I am an experienced secretary having worked for 14 years for two fine bosses. I quit work three years ago to travel with an elderly woman who needed a companion. Eight months ago the woman died. I've been trying unsuccessfully, to get a job ever since. My shorthand is excellent, typing, spelling, and grammatical construction superb. I can manage an office and do bookkeeping if necessary.

Periodically I note campaigns to hire the handicapped, hire the veterans and hire members of minority groups. — how about a campaign to hire the 40-year-old? We need help. — Re-Tread from Pensacola.

Dear Re: Perhaps you haven't been back in the country long enough to catch up with the news, but the economy is in a slump and most firms are not hiring, they are firing. A woman with your experience and work record, however, should have an easier time than the chick, fresh out of secretarial school — even with her 36-25-34.

Landers

Check the employment agencies regularly, read the want ads in this paper and pass the word among your friends that you want work.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope the guy whose girlfriend keeps throwing his ring back in his face every time they have an argument will see this and get smart. When Maggie and I were going together she used to throw her engagement ring in my face every two weeks. I used to think it was kind of cute the way her eyes blazed and her chin would go up and she'd stamp her tiny foot. I thought she'd outgrow her temper tantrums after we were married, but I was wrong. Maggie is still throwing things — bottles, frying pans, hockey sticks, anything handy. If we didn't have a house full of kids, I'd take off, but now it's out of the question.

I hope the young guys out there who have hot-tempered girls will see this and head for the hills. — Construction Worker Who Wears His Hard Hat in the House

Dear Hard Hat: Thanks for the testimony. For those who came in late, I'll repeat: Don't expect marriage to sweeten the disposition or improve a bad temper. Most changes after marriage are for the worse.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do people ever learn from the mistakes of others? I hope so because I have a story to tell. When I read the gripes from the woman who didn't want to take time off from her high-paying job to go on a trip with her husband, I decided to sit down and write this letter.

My husband and I worked hard all our married life. We kept saying, "When we retire we're going on a three-month trip around the world." Ten months before retirement time my husband became ill. We kept hoping his health would improve enough so we could take that trip, but it didn't happen. Now he is bedridden. How I wish we could turn the calendar back a few years. But we can't, and neither can anyone else. I just want to tell all your readers that if they want to do something, don't put it off. Living for the future is a mistake. Today is all you have for sure. — Idaho

Dear I.: Thanks for writing — in behalf of the travel agencies, the airlines, the hotels, motels and yours truly. You speak the truth.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE ACES

World Champions

ON BRIDGE

by

IRA G. CORN JR.

TEAM CAPTAIN

The beginning player remembers key phrases which can sometimes be confusing — "draw trump." "establish side suits." "ruff losers". The player who grasps at and applies the wrong phrase invites disaster. The one key phrase that should be remembered always and which applies to all hands is: "Count your tricks."

Mrs L. W. Lafitte of Shreveport, La., uses today's hand in her bridge classes to demonstrate the importance of counting tricks.

Vulnerable: Both
Dealer: South

NORTH 9 27

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

South's rebid of three spades invited North to bid a game if he held good values for his two-spade bid. North accepted the invitation, assigning full values to his fourth trump and his singleton diamond.

When the hand was played in a party bridge game, declarer had done well with her bidding lessons but her play had lagged behind.

West led the diamond king and switched to the heart 10 after holding the trick. Declarer won the ace and remembered a key phrase, "Draw trumps". This she did and she ended with only eight tricks, two short of her contract.

If she had remembered "establish side suits," the hand would have suffered a similar fate. If she had remembered "ruff losers," she may have had a chance. Mrs. Lafitte emphasizes how "count your tricks" can never be wrong.

After the opening lead of the diamond king, declarer can count on ruffing three of her diamonds without fear of an overruff. Five high spades in her own hand and two aces total seven tricks. Added to the three diamond ruffs, declarer has 10 tricks and her contract.

Declarer should have timed the play as follows. Win the heart ace and ruff a diamond with dummy's spade eight. A club to the ace and another diamond ruff with dummy's jack. A low club from dummy is ruffed and the last diamond ruffed with dummy's ace. Six tricks are home and declarer's four high trumps remain.

Mrs. Lafitte cautions her students, "It's quite all right to remember key phrases. But it's just as easy to remember the most important one — 'count your tricks'."

Numbed From the Neck Up

BY ERMA BOMBECK

There are some aspects of child-rearing I love. The pride of watching your child come to grips with maturity. The good feeling of hearing them laugh. The special glow of having a sleepy head in your lap when you drive home in the darkness.

But if there is one thing that bores me to death, it's hearing a child tell you about a movie he has just seen. It's like an anesthetic. . .a spinal from the neck up.

The other night at dinner my husband and I were regaled with not one, but a double feature. The first monologue featured "Willard" a warm, tender flick of a child sickie who raises vicious rats.

"First, I want to tell you about the ending," he started. "Willard's rats ate Ernest Borgnine."

"He was a fool to leave McHale's navy," mumbled my husband.

"You see," our son continued. "He killed one of Willard's pet rats just out of meanness. And he put Willard down all the time. It was gross. They were crawling all over him. And here's the spooky part. There was this party and Willard came with his box of rats and everyone was afraid of them. So was the cat. He was sniffing around the box and they just dumped him off at the phone booth and when someone said, 'Whose cat is this?' Willard drove off in the car. The rat bit Willard at the end when he saw the poison. Everyone in the theater was laughing. And did they multiply! Wow. Do you know how fast rats multiply? And Willard used to go down in the basement and yell at them 'Stop multiplying!' "

"I'll bet the rats laughed him right out of the room," said my husband.

"The really funny part was the woman who put on a cape. . .it was a special deal. . .and her teeth grew into fangs and she flew around biting her husband on the neck. It was this real weird house, see, and some realtor was always trying to sell it and one guy goes into the basement and the door closes on him and two coffins open. That was neat. The second feature. . .It was called 'The House That Dripped Blood.' I bet you'd feel pretty creepy if Mom ever bit you on the neck, wouldn't you, dad? Dad?"

He straightened. "Yes, they certainly do multiply at an astonishing rate. Now, during dessert, let's talk about something a bit more pleasant. Mother? Do you want to get dessert? Mother?

My head jerked up. "More pellets . .I mean potatoes, anyone? 'Willard' sounds interesting, dear. But why don't you tell us about the cartoons?"

"It was Mickey Mouse and was it gross "

Mamie Feted To Gala 75th Birthday Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Nixon are expected to attend a gala 75th birthday banquet reunion tonight for former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower.

The Nixons, honorary chairmen of the event, are flying back from an Alaska meeting with Japanese Emperor Hirohito and his wife. Their tight time schedule, bringing them back around 8 p.m., will leave little time to change into formal attire for the big social event at a downtown hotel.

Mrs. Eisenhower is being saluted with a $100-a-plate dinner to raise money for a scholarship fund in her name at the Eisenhower College in Seneca Falls, N.Y. The college was named for her late husband.

The dinner is being sponsored by the Washington chapter of American Women in Radio and Television which hopes to raise enough money to provide one full year's scholarship to the liberal arts college for two students from every state.

It will be a nostalgic party with 14 former Eisenhower Cabinet members, many Eisenhower friends, Washington officials, socialites and show business personalities attending.

A birthday cake and a gala musical show are planned with Ray Bolger as master of ceremonies and Red Skelton, Ethel Merman, Lawrence Welk and the 80-member West Point Glee Club entertaining.

Actually, though, it isn't Mamie's birthday. She won't be 75 until Nov. 14. But the diamond jubilee party was scheduled early because Mrs. Eisenhower will be vacationing in California after Oct. 1.

Story Hour Slated To Begin Oct. 15

A story hour for children from the ages of three to five-years-old will begin Oct. 15 from 9:15 to 10 a.m. at the First Congregational Church, 724 E. South River St. The non-denominational annual venture includes stories, games and crafts and continues until March. Children should be registered prior to the starting date by contacting the church office. Mrs. J. R. Miller is the program director.

Finger Foods Used As Learning Tool

Pre-school children can handle food with more ease and comfort when eaten with fingers. Cutting meats and vegetables into cubes or pieces will help the preschooler like to eat a variety of foods.

Lawrence Campus to be Cheerleading Clinic Site

The November Cheerleading Clinic, sponsored by the Birch Knoll Cheerleading and Pom Pon Camp of Eagle River, will be held during the state teachers' convention, Nov. 4, 5 and 6 with two clinics in Southeastern Wisconsin and the final clinic at Lawrence University, Nov. 6.

The clinic is open to junior and senior high school girls and their advisors. Sessions begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 3:30 p.m. with luncheon included.

The clinic at Lawrence University will be tied in with Cheerleader Day at the university football game and will give the girls a chance to participate in mass cheers at the game and also to participate in a special halftime program.

All one-day clinics give cheerleaders, advisors and prospective cheerleaders the opportunity to learn new cheers, new motions, new techniques and gather ideas for pep rallies, uniforms, fund raising and promoting school spirit.

A staff member from the National Cheerleading Association (NCA) of Dallas, Tex., will direct the clinic. The NCA began conducting the program and camps in 1948 and have trained over 5,000,000 cheerleaders in the U. S. This past summer the NCA conducted 200 cheerleading camps throughout the states and Canada including two one-week sessions at the Birch Knoll Cheerleading and Pom Pon Camp at Eagle River.

Fall Day With the Arts Features Faculty Women

MADISON — Three University of Wisconsin faculty women will provide music and dramatic readings on the afternoon program in the Humanities Building during the 5th Annual Women's all Day with the Arts on the Madison campus Oct. 5.

Sybil Robinson, lecturer in the department of communication arts, will present "Facade," an English work comprised of the poems of Edith Sitwell set to music by William Walton. Pianists Jeanette Ross and Ellen Burmeister of the School of Music will play three groups of two-piano works they have titled "There and Back."

Hysteria in Audience

When "Facade" was first introduced to a London audience almost 50 years ago with Miss Sitwell reading, Noel Coward and others walked out on the performance. According to Sir Osbert Sitwell, the poet's brother, "Seldom has there been such an outburst of critical rage and hysteria in an audience."

Twenty-five years later, when the first Columbia recording was made of the work, Goddard Lieberson wrote:

"A wider public is now capable of recognizing the handsome features which were only dimly seen in the beginning." He continues in this vein, then refers to the "wit, humor, carefreeness, and imaginistic wealth" of the work, and to the "attractive and catchy melodies."

Mrs. Robinson has had wide stage experience in South Africa, where she was born; in London, where she was a Fellow of Trinity College, 1943-47, and in the United States, where she has lived since 1963.

Born in Durban, she was educated at the University of Capetown, where she earned the diploma in speech and drama in 1946, and at the University of South Africa, where she was given the teachers licentiate in speech and drama in 1954. In 1963, when her husband, John T. Robinson, was appointed UW professor of anthropology and zoology, she enrolled in the department of communication arts to earn the M.A. in 1968 and the Ph.D. last June. She now conducts voice training and fundamentals of acting classes.

Afternoon Schedule

The afternoon program continues with Profs. Ross and Burmeister playing "Sonata for Two Pianos" Hindemith; "The Fringes of a Ball," Robert Starer; and "Waltz from the Suite No. 1, Opus 15," Anton Arensky.

Prof. Ross holds the bachelor of music degree of Northwestern and the M.M. of the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago. She taught at Monticello College and Northwestern before coming to Wisconsin in 1957.

A graduate and M.M. of the University of Wichita, Prof. Burmeister studied at the Aspen School of Music and in Santa Fe with Victor Babin. She taught at Iowa State University before coming to Wisconsin.

Mrs. John C. Weaver will speak during the afternoon, making her first appearance on a Women's Day program.

The group will leave Kaukauna at 8:30 a.m. from the high school. Traveling by bus, the tour group will visit the ship during the morning with afternoon activities including a smorgasbord at an area restaurant followed by a tour of a Marinette glove factory.

Those interested in the program should contact Mrs. James Van Toll, tour chairman, today for reservations.

Teaching Sisters Feted in Darboy

Your Money's Worth

Despite Wage Freeze Now Is Time to Buy

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Is this a good time to buy?

Yes! Because:

(1) During this freeze, prices are holding unnaturally steady. Many price hikes which were scheduled for these weeks have been postponed, and when made, they may turn out smaller than originally projected. But don't expect much more than that. An across-the-board freeze on prices and wages could not possibly be effective for much longer than 90 days and you're just about at the halfway mark. So if you need or want a fairly expensive product or service, take advantage of this phase of unnatural and only temporary stability.

(2) No matter what the precise details of the restraints to be imposed in Phase II, prices will start up again on a broad front after mid-November. Rigid prices are an impossibility in a dynamic, growing economy — and you wouldn't want the rigidity even if it were possible. Built into our economy are basic pressures which suggest the best we can hope for in the years ahead is an annual rate or rise in the 2 to 3 per cent range — and it'll be a long time before the pace of inflation slows to that level. You can live with this rate of inflation. It means a doubling of prices in a quarter-century or a generation, and that's tolerable. But the long-term trend of prices for just about everything is UP — and thus this makes today a good time to buy.

(3) These are the weeks before the traditional big-spending period of Thanksgiving-Christmas — under normal circumstances excellent weeks for shopping. A price freeze certainly turns this into a better than normal circumstance.

Goods Plentiful

(4) Goods are plentiful. Most shelves are stocked with what retailers call "fresh merchandise." There are no shortages, no bottlenecks of importance. Stores actually comfortable to shop in stores now.

(5) The vast majority of Americans haven't started buying freely yet — and so you're still ahead of the mobs. In fact, before the freeze, a consumer survey by Commercial Credit Co. telegraphed an "intensified retrenchment in buying," and produced what Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier, of Columbia University, calls "some rather scary results." To put it in plainer language, the survey suggested our modest 1971 recovery was fading and another recession was a clear danger.

Now, though, mounting public

confidence could lead to a major spurt in consumer buying from coast to coast. People have money to spend: The savings rate has risen to a fantastic 8.2 per cent, more than 8 cents out of every after-tax dollar. Tax cuts are on the way. A strong pick-up in buying by consumers could easily develop.

(6) And interest rates have slipped well below their 1970 peaks, have declined perceptibly since the freeze was announced. Getting a loan will not be difficult and the rates charged you won't be as stiff as in the recent past. You'll be able to finance your house or big-ticket appliance or automobile.

These are all excellent reasons to buy what you need and want. What's more, you'll find this an especially favorable period to buy such products as:

—Back to school clothes and school supplies. Your kids can use school clothes and supplies throughout the year, of course; at this time, school clothes and supplies are traditionally marked down.

Bargain Months

—Used cars and car seat covers. These are bargain months for second-hand cars and accessories.

—New cars. The price freeze plus the almost certain repeal of the 7 per cent excise tax underline the appeal of new cars.

—Bicycles. Traditional bargain period.

—Women's and children's coats. Housecoats too. You'll see sales advertised; take advantage of them. Style changes aren't nearly as important as in years back and you can get attractive deals.

—Housewares, furniture, lamps, ranges, water heaters. Bargain week.

—Piece goods. Quilts. Ditto.

—Paints. Off season sales.

—Gardening equipment. If you can still find this sort of equipment on sale and if you know you'll need it next summer, buy it now. You'll get significant markdowns from reputable dealers.

—Men's and women's shoes. Traditional sales coming up.

—Batteries and mufflers. Same for these.

—China and dishes, glassware. September is a usual bargain month.

—In the next four columns, I'll add to this basic advice by giving you rules which will help you slash as much as 50 per cent off the costs of key items in your cost of living — even though the prices of these items will be rising. Tomorrow: auto insurance.

Net second quarter earnings increased $2,183,967 to $18,419,902 compared with the same period in 1970. Net six-month earnings showed a gain of $4,382,876 to $35,697,204 compared with the year before.

Second quarter sales increased $59,143,050, or 13 per cent, to $513,750,643. Six-month sales showed an increase of $120,704,905 or 14 per cent, to $1,007,605,390.

Figures for the second quarter and first six months ended Aug. 31 have been restated to include sales and earnings of companies acquired in poolings of interests in the year ended Feb. 28, 1971, Karnes said.

Beatrice Foods' common stock has been listed on the Basel, Geneva, Lausanne and Zurich, Switzerland stock exchanges, effective Sept. 20.

Beatrice has purchased a major interest in Ybarra Beatrice S. A., Seville, Spain, Karnes said. Ybarra Beatrice is a new Spanish company created by the combination of Hijos de Ybarra, Seville, and Beatrice's Mario's Food Products Division, Detroit, Mich.

The new company will process and pack green olives and related products at the Ybarra plant in Seville and the Mario's plant in Detroit for marketing in the United States under the Mario's brand and in other countries under the Ybarra label.

School Board Ready To Begin Work on $11.4 Million Request

The ago-old battle of the tax dollar and level of services promises to resume tonight as the board of education takes on the 1972 budget proposal.

An added element is board members' trust that the members of the Fiscal Board, the school district's financial arm, will believe bare-bones budget arguments and not cut additionally. Those pessimistic about Fiscal Board approval without cuts have justification based on past years' cuts.

The administration has presented an accumulation of individual schools' requests totaling about $11.4 million, about 13.5 per cent over the current operating budget. The Fiscal Board cut last totaled $600,000 the highest ever.

The budget discussions will be complicated with a major unknown — what the teachers master contract settlement will be for calendar 1972. Negotiations with the help of a state mediator have been going on for several months.

Board members received the accumulation last week and voted to study the requests a week in preparation for a full-scale expenditure budget discussion and decision tonight and Tuesday night if necessary.

The only board member who publicly made clear his position was John McKenzie, generally considered one of the most financially conservative board members. He said he wouldn't support any budget request over $11 million, meaning the current accumulation would have to be cut over $450,000.

McKenzie said today he is standing firm on that statement. "I feel that $11 million is the absolute maximum that we can ask the community to provide in view of the economic climate."

Up to Board

He said he had found about $250,000 of the $460,000 in items that must be cut to meet his $11 million limit.

McKenzie said he didn't know how the fiscal Board would react but said he believed the board of education had a responsibility fiscally as well as educationally, regardless of the Fiscal Board.

His proposal would mean about an 8½ per cent budget increase — about half that presented to the Fiscal Board last year. However, he admitted that the teacher contract settlement will have a major effect on the school budget.

Mrs. Harold Danford, another board member, said she couldn't find significant reasons for cutting out of the $11.4 million accumulation. She said she found "no glaring Errors" from a budgeting and need standpoint.

Mrs. Danford also expressed pessimism on whether the Fiscal Board would make more cuts. She noted past years' cuts and questioned if it's politically feasible for the Fiscal Board members not to make cuts.

She said she would vote against McKenzie's position.

The two board members generally reflect two positions which divide the board often in fiscal matters.

Appleton United Fund . . . 1

Golden Agers Demonstrate True Spirit of Cooperation

Busy minds and happy hearts. There's no medicine that can replace them. With them, fun-filled longevity is every Golden Ager's reward.

Does that sound like someone's planned philosophy? It is. It belongs to all the members of the Appleton Golden Age Club, a United Fund agency.

Some people refer to their clubhouse as the house that pancakes built. It isn't. It's the house that love and sharing and a concerned community built. There's not one dollar of government money in the $250,000 facility.

"The building is wonderful and beautiful, and we're grateful to the whole community that we have it," says Mrs. Neola Thompson, the volunteer director of activities. "But it's really the human warmth of all the people who helped and all the club members that makes this place worth having. That's what makes it a viable organization," she says with emphasis.

Mrs. Thompson is a firm believer in not standing still. She never does herself, and that's why the new approach at the Golden Age clubhouse is diversity — expanded programming for different interest groups.

"Not everyone likes to play cards, or come to potlucks and dances, or fix broken toys," Mrs. Thompson points out. Some want to pursue intellectual interests, like art, music and lectures, while others wnat to perform a service for the community.

Because of this public attitude, the talents of a group of retired business and professional people are being melded. It is still in the organizing stage, so there haven't been any projects chosen yet. A variety of ideas are being explored.

A new afternoon of bridge is being conducted every week. The coffee pot is always on and free. Golden Agers brown-bag any snacks they might want, just as they do their lunch on Sundays.

There were coffee hours called OPERATION GAB (Golden Age Building). A number of interested women invited 10 others to each of their homes for coffee and conversation. The idea caught on and groups of 10 multiplied like wild fire. Each woman donated at least 50 cents. Most gave much more.

Then there were PHANTOM TEAS. Invitations were sent to hundreds of persons. The way to attend a tea was to respond with a contribution by return mail. Donations ranged from $1 to $15.

Four years after the clubhouse was purchased, a neighboring home to the south was bought to have room for expansion. Another three years later and the mortgages were burned.

That second home was torn down to make way for the new addition. Ground was broken in October, 1969; the building was put in use in June, 1970; and was dedicated in October, 1970. The construction project included a new front all the way across the original clubhouse.

A community fund drive was conducted to raise money for the $180,000 addition. One local industry came across with $30,000, and several gave $10,000. Numerous smaller donations flowed in and today the debt on the addition is down to $60,000.

Volunteer Work

But all that brick and mortar does not make a club, the members believe. So they try to return something to the people of the community who helped them. They've done work for the Christmas and Easter Seal groups, United Fund, Boy Scouts, and sent out the original mailing for a local survey on housing needed for the elderly. Today, that housing, Oneida Heights, is a reality.

The idea of a Golden Age Club here was born back in 1956 and 1957, Mrs. Thompson explains. She's the founder of the Appleton Welcome Wagon,

26 Per Cent Increase

FVTI Enrollment Up 342 Students

A total of 1,729 students, 342 more than last year, have enrolled in the full-time day programs at Fox Valley Technical Institute.

The figure constitutes a 26 per cent increase from 1970-71, which is well over the increase reported for the entire state and the nation.

A 9 per cent increase in vocational-technical students was reported for the entire state and the same percentage is predicted for the nation.

According to information released by Russell Van Straten, FVTI registrar, the majority of the students are in the central facility, despite the fact that it is only half completed.

A total of 671 are in the new facility; 455 still in the Appleton quarter; and 603 in the Oshkosh School, which is owned by the Vocational, Technical and Adult Education (VTAE) District 12.

The increase of students was heaviest in the home economics division which showed a 47 per cent rise, and went from 67 to 142 students. Health occupations is next, with 146 students, constituting a 37 per cent increase from the past school year.

Trades and industry has 661 students or 25 per cent more than last year; agriculture, with 285 students, showed a 4 per cent increase and business education, with 471 enrolled, had a 2 per cent hike.

An increase in vocational-technical enrollments has been recorded by the 17 districts within Wisconsin, bringing the record number of students to 41,059, compared to 37,711 and 33,247 in the fall of 1969.

Part of Fox Cities Powerless Briefly

Thunderstorms accompanied by moderate winds swept through the Fox Cities early today, causing little damage but a short power outage in most of Little Chute and northern Kaukauna, as well as rural areas north of both communities.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Green Bay said that more showers are expected tonight and Tuesday, with a possible clearing Wednesday but slightly cooler temperatures.

Kaukauna city electric officials said the initial outage began at 3:31 a.m. and lasted six minutes. It was estimated that 9,000 persons were affected.

The second outage came at 4:31 a.m. and lasted 19 minutes, with fewer persons affected. The trouble then was found — a visible short circuit in the high voltage switch at Outagamie County Trunk OO and State 55.

Kaukauna firemen were on the scene to protect against fire. The storm caused a sudden power surge that tripped the Little Chute village fire alarm.

Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. officials said that just over half an inch of rain fell since midnight. The rain subsided later this morning, but threatening skies remained.

The thunderstorms struck most of the south and central portions of the state. Madison recorded .4 inches of rain while Green Bay had .37, and Lone Rock and Eagle River .33. Hilbert recorded a quarter inch.

The wet weather was accompanied by quite a bit of fog early today, some of it persisting after daybreak.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted a high of 77 Tuesday in the Fox Valley with a low tonight of 60.

Overnight lows early today were considerably higher than Sunday as a result of extensive cloud cover and warming southerly winds. The lowest reading was a 49 at Park Falls.

Land O'Lakes, Eagle River and Superior all had 51, Phillips and Wausau 53, Rhinelander 54, Green Bay 55, Hilbert 59, Lone Rock 60, Madison 61, La Crosse 62 and Beloit 64.

Sunday's highs were generally near seasonal norms, with readings ranging between 71 at Beloit and 51 at Eagle River.

Former Kaukauna Alderman Dies Today at Age 77

A former Kaukauna aldermen, Otto G. Hass, 77, of 106 E. Division St., Kaukauna, died early today after a short illness.

He had served as an aldermen of Kaukauna's first ward in 1926 and second ward in 1947-49 and was a member of the Trinity Lutheran School board.

Hass had been an electrician and worked as a service station attendent at Andrews Oil Co., until his retirement 10 years ago.

He was a member of the American Legion Post 41 and served in the Army during World War I.

Survivors are his widow, two daughters, a son, six grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Visitation will be from 2 p.m. Tuesday until noon Wednesday and after 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Kaukauna. Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the church. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Burned Out Line Leaves Many Without Power

A total of 1,725 customers of Wisconsin-Michigan Power Company were without electricity for an hour or more this morning when a high-voltage transmission line burned out and fell on a local distribution line at 10:40 a.m.

WMPCO officials said that the cause of the burn-out has not been determined at this time. The area affected included homes south of Roeland Avenue and east of Greenview Street.

A total of 750 local subscribers were affected, with 600 having their power back by 11:35 a.m. The rest were still without service at noon.

The transmission line serves the towns of Harrison, Dundas, St. John, and Hilbert or about 1,045 customers of the company.

They lost their power at 10:40 a.m. and had it restored by 11:25 a.m. when the transmission line was replaced.

Company officials said that the higher transmission line is used to provide power to substations while the distribution lines are those that service homes.

Body Decapitated

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Brown County Sheriff Norbert Froelich today released further information into the death Friday of Neil L. La Fave, 32, and has ruled out the possibility of accidental death.

"We're looking at first degree murder," Froehlich said.

He also termed La Fave's death as a "very vicious crime," but said police presently had no good suspects in mind.

Numerous persons have been questioned since the body was found buried in a shallow grave in the Sensiba Game Preserve in Suamico Saturday morning. "But none of them can be considered suspects," Froehlich said.

La Fave, a game technician who lived at route 1, Suamico, about half mile from the murder scene, was out posting "no hunting" signs within the preserve Friday and failed to return home that evening.

Froehlich said that an autopsy showed that La Fave was shot twice in the back of the neck. The first shot went through the lower neck near the left shoulder and fragments of the bullet exited through the muscle of the left upper arm. The other bullet also entered the neck and severed the spinal cord.

Head Severed

A sharp object was then used to completely sever the head. Froelich said the head also was mutilated with slash marks, some running from the ears to the mouth.

La Fave's body was found in a freshly dug grave, about 15 inches deep. His head was discovered in another smaller grave about 40 to 50 feet away.

Froehlich said indications are that La Fave's body was buried about 50 feet from where he was shot.

Authorities are withholding the type of gun or guns used in the slaying, pending further investigation. Several casings were found at the scene but the murder weapon and the "sharp object" used to sever the head have not yet been located.

No Motive

Police have not been able to establish a solid motive behind the killing. Froelich said investigators are looking into several possibilities, including a "grudge" killing or La Fave surprising a poacher.

La Fave was a technican with the game division of the Department of Natural Resources. He was posting signs in the Sensiba Game Preserve that indicated no hunting would be allowed during duck season.

Friday was La Fave's birthday, and his wife was planning a birthday party for him. When he didn't come home about 4:30 p.m. she started looking for him but found only his truck parked on a dead-end dirt path off Sunset Beach Road in the state preserve.

She then notified Brown County police. A massive ground and air search was begun. Late Saturday morning the body was found.

Crime Lab Called

Technicians from the State Crime Laboratory were called.

Froelich said La Fave apparently was last seen alive by his wife at 11:30 a.m. Friday at her

Little Lake Bridge Link Undecided by State Planners

MENASHA — Engineering for the Little Lake Butte des Morts bridge is proceeding on schedule but the state still needs answers on how to design the east approach to the span, which is set for 1974 completion.

According to Clem Mertens, District 3 chief design engineer, Green Bay, "We're hoping to get together with the town, city and county to iron out the difficulties" with the east side touchdown.

The west side interchange is included in frontage road design which will be aired at a public hearing Nov. 9 on the closing of U. S. 41 to on-grade access points

The hearing, according to Mertens, will be on closing the expressway between State 150 and the northern Winnebago County line at County Trunk BB. Hearings have already been held for the area from Lake Butte des Morts at Oshkosh to County Trunk G just south of Neenah. Between "G" and State 150 there will be no on-grade access points.

Mertens said the preliminary data gathering process was almost completed and "it'll be about a month before we get the information to the bridge section." The bridge will be designed by the State Highway Commission's staff in Madison.

Before the bridge can get on the drawing boards, the District 3 staff in Green Bay will have to settle on the east side touchdown.

The preliminary plans, considered to be temporary, called for the bridge to come down to grade east of Tayco Street with a direct link to Racine Street, just north of Calder stadium.

Adams, however, took issue with the plan saying it should swing to the south for traffic to tie in with Racine Street. This is the problem which must be solved.

The environmental statement, which is now a requirement for all state and federal road projects, has been prepared and is being circulated. Mertens said there had been no major opposition to the span.

Within the next couple of months, the U.S. Coast Guard is expected to approve the project as it must for all bridges over navigable waters. However, Mertens said that a Coast Guard public hearing probably won't be held since no opposition has surfaced at this point.

Adams Vetos Menasha Move to Join COG

MENASHA — Mayor James Adams has vetoed council action to make this city a member of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) in 1972.

At least two influential aldermen say they must hear more of the mayor's reasoning before deciding whether to stick to their guns or switch their votes and support the veto.

"I'm surprised at the veto," said Third Ward Ald. Sumner Parker today. "If he (Adams) had that on his mind, I think he ought to have let us know about it before we voted on the matter" last week.

"If we're not going to get any more aid than we've been getting in the past from COG," said Fifth Ward Ald. Herbert Batley, "then I'm not for staying in it either." He voted for rejoining the COG in the council floor last week, however.

9-3 Vote

The council vote last Tuesday, approving joining COG if other large-member municipalities also join for 1972, was passed 9-3. To sustain the mayor's veto, the vote would have to switch to 8-4.

The decision last Tuesday to re-join COG followed another decision by the common council in June to step out of the organization after 1971. The switch was mainly the result of a belief last week that a new planning organization hoped for by most aldermen was not in the offing, plus a belief that eligibility for federal and state aid would be enhanced by membership.

Adams, who made his veto Friday, said that the chances for changing COG's present function of "planning for the sake of planning" and "not for the sake of implementation and development," and his belief that federal and state aids will not be easier to obtain through COG membership, were among the reasons for his veto.

Rubber Stamp

He called COG a "rubber stamp organization in terms of policy development" and said that even "though the 'carrot of financial aid' is dangled by state officials as a reason for regional planning and a regional planning agency, the state officials are not willing to bend or modify their rules based on the needs of an individual case and the recommendation of a regional planning agency, thereby eliminating in my mind any need for a regional plannig agency to obtain financial aid and program development."

Pre-Trial Conference for NM

NEENAH - MENASHA — A veil of secrecy surrounds a pre-trial conference to be held Tuesday in Madison on the public nuisance complaint filed against the cities and the sewerage commission for failing to comply with pollution abatement orders.

The meeting, expected to be conducted in the office of assistant attorney general Steven Schur, will be attended by the commission's attorney, William Giese, and the mayors and attorneys of both cities.

To Pay Fine

Schur said today that "generally speaking," the conferrees were attempting to "settle the lawsuit by agreement." When asked whether the state intends to stand fast on its promise of levying a fine, Schur replied, "There's going to be a fine paid."

He said, "I have no idea" when asked if a compromise could be achieved tomorrow.

'Generally Favorable'

Schur said the recommendations made in a report filed with his office and Department of Natural Resource authorities from sewerage treatment plant manager-engineer Ronald St. Laurent was viewed as "generally favorable."

The local attorneys had "no comment" 10 days ago when asked about proceedings on Sept. 16 when an earlier pre-trial hearing was held in Madison. Apparently discussed then however, were the results of a wet hauling experiment which lasted 15 days here and cost $15,000 in late August and early this month.

The attorney general's office had requested the wet hauling of sludge from the plant's secondary system to prove that a "good faith" effort existed that would not permit the discharge of those wastes into Little Lake Butte des Morts.

The complaint charges that for 176 days, solids were bypassed into the lake. The defendants face a possible maximum fine of $5,000 for each day of the bypassing.

Census Recount Prompts Scrutiny

County Takes New Look at Reapportionment

BY PETER BACH

OSHKOSH — Reapportionment in Winnebago County is under fresh scrutiny today following the release last week of certified population figures and a corporation council's opinion which was interpreted as meaning a supervisor could not jointly represent parts of a city and town within the county.

County board chairman, Orrin King, who is also a member of the board's coordinating committee which has been doing the preliminary work on redistricting within the county, said this morning that a letter he requested from Aldwin Seefeldt, Washington County corporation council, had not yet arrived.

Seefeldt spoke to delegates from 61 Wisconsin county boards last week at the Wisconsin County Boards Association convention in Fond du Lac.

King said that in a lengthy discussion with Seefeldt after his address last week, he was led to believe a supervisor could not legally represent jointly parts of a city and town within a county.

The coordinating committee, which has been working with Dr. Milan Vuchich, director of the bureau of urban and regional research at Oshkosh State University, on mapping of revised districts, had given tentative approval of a plan to cut the present 47 supervisory districts in the county down to 41.

That 41 supervisor plan, however, could, under a present informal regrouping, only be realized if districts were altered so that several of the 41 supervisors represented parts of the cities and towns of Neenah, Menasha and Oshkosh.

In an attempt to find out if this would be illegal, King has asked for a copy of Seefeldt's address, and approached Winnebago County corporation council Gerald Engeldinger for an opinion. King said he will contact Vuchich once the materials from both attorneys reach him.

For further clarification, King said he will write the attorney general for an opinion. The county board chairman hopes to have enough material gathered so that definite answers can be given the coordinating unit when it meets again Oct. 12.

The certified population of the county, 129,931, which King received last Thursday, will have little effect in itself on the final redistricting. The count was just 715 more than preliminary figures.

The coordinating committee, in an attempt to adhere as closely to the "one man one vote" principal as possible, had figured that in order to remain fair, by the preliminary count, each of the 41 supervisors would represent 3,167 county residents. Under the figures received Thursday, each of the 41 legislators, if the 41 member plan was adopted, would have to represent 3,169 persons, or two more people per supervisor.

Seefeldt also told delegates last week that according to one state guideline, boards were required to remain within 6 per cent above or below the equal. King thinks this is too large a margin, especially when measured against unforseen growth trends in the next 10 years.

Engeldinger said this morning that here, in his opinion, the board must answer the question, "What is the best district configuration assuming that the board goes to 41. I just don't see how it can't work," he said, figuring that the county will attempt to remain equitable in its redistricting.

He said he believed the 6 per cent figure cited by Seefeldt was "arbitrary." Coordinating committeemen had worked on a 5 per cent marginal figure.

"Something's got to give somewhere along the line," Engeldinger commented today. He expected to have completed a legal study of the matter by later this week.

Here's a Typical Sunday Afternoon

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — "Harry . . . Harry will you stop looking at that stupid football game and listen to me? There's a very suspicious man lurking in front of the house . . . What do you mean find out what he wants? You find out what he wants . . . You're the man in this house . . . Harry, I think he's getting into your car . . . Yes, he is getting into your car . . . Let's call the police.

"How can you say that Harry? Even if the car is insured you should at least make some effort to stop a thief . . . I don't care if it is fourth down and one to go, you can't let somebody just up and steal your car . . . Look Harry, he's getting out now and opening the hood . . . He's probably trying to get it started . . . I think you should at least yell at him. . .

"Al right, so the Redskins made a first down . . . But if you just come to the window . . . Look he's got the motor started . . . Please, Harry, call the police . . . What? . . . It will ruin your afternoon if the police come. . . . Yes, I know you have your heart set on watching the game, but what are we going to do for a car? . . . I'm not distracting you . . . How can you say I always think of ways of interrupting you when you're watching a football game . . . Am I supposed to let someone steal your car without telling you . . . Harry you're getting up from your chair . . . What happened? . . . Oh, it's a commercial . . . No, the car's gone now . . . The man drove it off . . . Are you going to report it? After the Kansas City game which ends at 7 o'clock? . . . Well, you've certainly made a contribution to law and order today . . .

"All right, I promise I won't bother you again . . . Go back to your game . . .

"Harry, there's a cab pulling up to the house . . . Harry it's our son Jimmy who has been in the Navy for two years . . . I didn't even know he was back in this country . . . Oh, my goodness, he looks so brown and tall . . . Come Harry, let's greet him at the door . . . Harry, you don't want to greet your son after he fought for his country? . . .

"Oh, you can't leave the set now because the Cardinals have just fumbled? . . . No, don't worry, I'll ask Jimmy to come in the side door so he won't disturb you . . . Why are you yelling at me? . . . Be mad at the Navy. They're the ones who let Jimmy come home on Sunday.

"Harry, I know you told me not to bother you, and I've let you alone for the entire quarter, but something has come up I think you should know about . . . Our daughter Gertrude has just called from the hospital and she's about to give birth to a baby . . . Will you stop screaming at me? . . . I know it isn't a big thing to have a baby, Harry . . . Women have them all the time. Ordinarily it isn't worth interrupting a football game to tell you about it, but I would like to remind you of one thing, Harry . . . Gertrude isn't married! . . . This could be a very traumatic experience for a 15-year-old girl . . . "Yes, Harry, I'm as sorry as you are that Bragg missed the field goal . . . it's very wet on that Astroturf . . . Well I'll go to the hospital myself. I'm sure Gertrude will understand. . .

"I'm back Harry . . . Gertrude had a little boy . . . What game are you watching now? . . . The San Diego Chargers. What happened to the Redskins? They won? . . . Isn't that wonderful . . . Then your afternoon wasn't a complete waste after all.

"Harry, I've decided to leave you . . . No, I can't wait until San Diego loses the ball . . . I wish to discuss it now . . . I've given it a lot of thought and I've decided that life is just passing me by . . . Don't turn the volume up, Harry . . . It won't do you any good. I've made my decision, Harry . . . Harry, turn down the set . . . No, Harry, there is no sense talking about it tomorrow night . . . Why not? Because tomorrow night Detroit is playing the Minnesota Vikings."

Froehlich Bases Redistricting Plan On Appleton Lines

State Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, has announced plans to use ward lines currently being redrawn by the City Council as the basis for reapportioning state assembly districts located in the city.

In a letter to the council, Froehlich said, "It will be much simpler for the citizens of Appleton and for the election machinery if the assembly lines within Appleton follow ward lines."

Noting that the city is "proceeding with dispatch" to redistrict wards, Froehlich also said, "I commend your efforts and urge you to complete the local reapportionment of the city at an early date."

Upon the council's completion of ward redistricting, the assembly Republican minority leader said he will attempt to make all bills for reapportionment of the legislature conform with the city's ward map.

The council next week will receive a proposed map rearranging boundaries of wards to bring population represented by each of the city's 20 aldermen into near-equality, based upon the 1970 census.

At present, Outagamie County has three assembly districts, including Froehlich's, which is located entirely in the city, and the district represented by Rep Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton, which includes both rural areas and a portion of the city.

State Democrats have already offered a redistricting bill for state legislative districts, and Republicans are planning to offer an alternative.

Froehlich has predicted a stalemate in the legislature, leading to reapportionment by the courts.

place of employment in Green Bay.

Medical officials have said that because the body wasn't found until late Saturday morning it is impossible to determine the exact time of death.

Froelich said it is assumed that La Fave was killed between noon and 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Police went down to the crime lab in Madison this morning, bringing with them further soil, bone, blood, and clothing samples and the head for further testing.

Froelich said it is hoped that the crime lab will be able to determine the distance from which La Fave was shot.

Although La Fave was shot twice in the back of the neck, Froelich said it is not positive that he was shot from behind. He said La Fave could have been bending over and shot from the front.

Leads Sought

Anyone who saw La Fave alive after noon Friday is asked to contact the Sheriff's Department. Also, anyone who saw any persons or cars in the Sensiba area Friday is asked to notify police.

Police have received reports of several cars in the Sensiba area Friday, but Froelich said that this is not unusual.

Froelich said the killer is probably a resident of Brown County because he would have to be familiar with the Sensiba area and the movements of La Fave.

He said there are no indications that more than one person was involved in the killing, but said that possibility is not being ruled out.

La Fave was not armed at the time, Froelich said.

Police & Fire Beat

Four persons were injured in a two-car collision at 3:46 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Hample and Krueger roads five miles south of Black Creek.

According to Outagamie County sheriff's officers, vehicles driven by Edward J. Danoff, 30, Forest Junction, and Richard L. Strebe, 24, of 721 E. North St., Appleton, collided at the intersection.

Strebe and Danoff each sustained minor injuries, as did Darleen J. Danoff, 31, and Judy L. Danoff, 7.

Damage to the autos was listed at $3,200.

"Poetry and People" was the topic discussed by Dr. Paul Engle, right, nationally known teacher of writing, Saturday noon as the Wisconsin Regional Writers Association met in Appleton. From left, at the speakers' table, are Ray Specht, Stevens Point teacher, writer and photographer; Jack Rudolph, editor of The Spirit, and Elmer Otte, of the Fox Valley Writers Association, host organization. Golden Agers Show True Community Spirit which sponsors the Newcomers Club and Civic League. Newcomers "graduate" to Civic League after two years.

Members of those two groups wanted to do something for the community. Forming a Golden Age Club was a logical choice. The only place of recreation for older men was a card room in the basement of the city hall. The women had nothing.

A mailing list of possible members was compiled and letters were sent inviting them to an organization meeting in the City Council Chambers. Mrs. Thompson says she warned the Newcomers and Civic Leaguers not to be disappointed if the turnout was as few as five people. "I told them that only a few years ago the Welcome Wagon was born around my dining room table with just five members," she reminisced with a smile. "When we entered the council chambers we were greeted by 29 people, most of whom became charter members," she said.

That was in 1958 and the beginning of today's Golden Age Club, which now numbers over 400. It's still growing.

The first club meetings were held in the basement of city hall. Later they were held in the Knights of Pythias Hall, and still later were moved to Jefferson School activities room.

Clubhouse

Then Mrs. Thompson, Newcomers, Civic Leaguers, and a group of businessmen got behind the idea of having a Golden Age clubhouse. They found a large, warm, cozy old home just a few blocks from downtown, the down payment was scraped together through donations and some special activities, and the club had a home of its own.

Members have business meetings twice a month, at night. Also twice a month, on weeks alternating from the business meetings, there are potluck dinners.

Once a month there's a dance and card party for members, and once a month a card party open to the public.

The public card parties and a variety of other projects are the money raisers for the Golden Agers, who believe in a self-help approach to their club. Because they want to do their part, they pledged $3,000 when the new $180,000 addition was built last year. They've already paid off their pledge and $500 more.

Membership and activities at the clubhouse have swelled since Oneida Heights has opened. The highrise apartment building for the elderly is right in back of the clubhouse. Some day maybe an enclosed walk-way will join the two buildings, so that Golden Agers can go back and forth in winter and inclement weather with no fear of catching cold or slipping on ice.

A welcoming committee of Golden Agers visited every resident of Oneida Heights and invited them to tour the clubhouse and join.

'Buddy System'

Another example of Golden Agers concern for each other is the new "buddy system", which Mrs. Thompson is in the process of organizing for them. This system is intended primarily for members who live alone.

It will work like this. Members who live fairly near to each other will call one another daily, preferably at a specified time to make sure both are all right. If one of them goes away for a day or a weekend, he is to notify the other. If one calls the other and fails to get an answer he goes over to the other's house to investigate. A procedure to follow if something is wrong will be mapped out.

Operating costs of the clubhouse are assisted by a United Fund grant of nearly $12,000 and a city grant of $600 a year. The city grant is administered by the Recreation Department, and must be used for supplies.

Annual pancake suppers and the Christmas toy sales earn several thousand dollars for operating expenses and debt retirement. A group of Wisconsin Telephone Co. employees man the pancake griddles, while Golden Agers man booths, selling such things as handicraft products, needle work, aprons, jewelry and quilts. Appleton area residents haul old and broken toys to the clubhouse by the carfull. The toys are given a new lease on life, and the club has some money. Toys are restored so neatly and the prices are kept so low that many families do their Christmas shopping there.

Mrs. Thompson is continually being asked, "How did you people in Appleton make it work all by yourself?" She's been the guest speaker in a number of other communities, and the hostess for delegations that visit the facilities here.

Organizations for older citizens exist in numerous cities, usually owned by the city and operated by the recreation department. Lots of government financing is used, Mrs. Thompson points out, which only adds to the red tape of operation "Many of them go down the drain for lack of enough support, or failure of the programs", she adds. "Here everyone works hard and puts something of himself and herself into the club and its programs. We all feel a personal belonging."

In order to coordinate activities and communicate with members Mrs. Thompson has found a Golden Ager to edit a newsletter called the Golden Age Chronicle, which includes a monthly calendar.

That she didn't make a mistake when she promoted the idea of a Golden Age Club is evident from numerous appreciative comments by members.

Appleton Man Stricken, Dies At Green Bay

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Raymond Korth, 48, 821 N. Morrison St., Appleton, was dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital in Green Bay Sunday evening after he was stricken during professional wrestling matches at the Brown County Veterans Memorial Arean.

Exact cause of death was undetermined.

Korth was owner of the K & K Painting Co.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter and four sons.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Wichmann Funeral Home, with the Rev. Hogey W. Bergholz officiating. Interment will be in St. Joseph Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home from 3 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and from 8 a.m. until the services Wednesday. A memorial fund is being established.

Nearly a Blackout

MENASHA — An interconnection power with the Kaukauna power plant saved this city from at least a partial power blackout when an accident shut down one of two boiler units at the steam power plant at 10:30 a.m. today.

Utilities Gen. Mgr. James Taylor, who noted that the incident was "completely unexpected and unplanned," said it "appears to be a ruptured tube in the boiler."

As soon as the tube ruptured, Taylor said, the interconnection with the Kaukauna Municipal Power Plant began providing emergency power. That power, combined with the juice furnished by the other boiler operating at the steam plant, prevented any disruption of municipal service.

"This is what the interconnection is for," Taylor said today. The 12-mile cable link-up, which was finished last year, cost this city utility $950,000. It was intended both as a way of cutting overall power costs for both utilities and to provide emergency power in emergencies.

Taylor said crews were waiting for the damaged boiler to cool before going in to make repairs. Damage was limited to the immediate area of the rupture.

OSU Communications Building Dedicated

OSHKOSH — Art and the activities of free men are directly related to responsible freedom, a former president of Appleton's Lawrence University said Sunday at the dedication of the new Arts and Communication Center at Oshkosh State University.

Speaking in the building's music hall, Dr. Douglas M. Knight said that true art is communication, making it distinct from propaganda.

Now division vice president of educational services with RCA, Knight observed that "true freedom in art results in something existing that didn't exist before. This is true communication."

Knight said that better understanding through the arts "depends upon the proper use of art itself. "Art," he continued, "brings rediscovery, perception, insight and judgment."

Also speaking to a near capacity dedication audience was John J. Dixon of Appleton, chairman of the Board of Regents' Education Committee.

He presented OSU President Dr. Roger E. Guiles with a symbolic key to the new building.

Dixon said that the structure is the largest, but the least expensive per square foot of construction, of any fine arts building in the state university system.

Dixon told OSU students that the Arts and Communication Center "has been built for you and the thousands who will follow you."

Multifoods' Sales Rise

Kaukauna Dairy Parent Reports Stable Earnings

International Multifoods Corp., the Minneapolis based parent of Kaukauna Dairy Co., has reported record sales and stable net earnings for the first six months of 1971, ending Aug. 31.

Six-month sales were $220,315,000 compared with $205,156,000 a year earlier, or a 7 per cent increase. Net earnings were $3,227,000, compared with $2,966,000, a 9 per cent gain.

Per common share earnings were 97 cents, the same as a year earlier.

The diversified foods company said that second quarter sales were $113,795,000, a 5 per cent increase over the $108,813,000 of a year earlier. Second quarter net earnings, before preferred dividends, were $1,953,000 compared with $1,916,000, a 2 per cent rise.

However, earnings per common share for the second quarter were 58 cents, down 8 per cent from the 63 cents for a year earlier. Multifoods had a 300,000 common stock public offering during the second quarter.

In spite of dilution from addition shares, earnings per share from company operations were significantly better this year than in the second quarter of a year ago when Multifoods experienced a 15-cent per share gain from the freeing of Canadian dollars, said company president William G. Phillips.

During the second quarter, the company opened a feed plant and a portion-controlled meats plant in the U. S. and a corn processing facility in Venezuela. It also disposed of two plants.

Consumer Contact

Life Insurance Puzzle Blocks Bid for Truth

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — This city is noted for press conference that confuse rather than clarify. But one held the other day by the White House consumer office deserves the grand prize.

The conference was called to discuss recommendations for a new system of estimating costs of life insurance for policyholders. A prestigious industry committee concluded 16 months ago that the "traditional method" of figuring net costs should be replaced by a more accurate system.

But little has been done by the industry to change methods, and the President's Office of Consumer Affairs decided to do some gentle pushing by writing letters to industry leaders and calling a press conference.

Letters from and to Virginia Knauer, the President's consumer adviser, were released at the conference. And E.J. Moorehead, who headed the industry committee, was present with an aide to Mrs. Knauer to answer questions.

But neither Moorhead nor the aide, Frank McLaughlin, could explain the committee's recommendations clearly enough to be understood by the gentlemen of the press. Questions only seemed to bring up more complications, and after about 20 minutes, while questions were still flying, McLaughlin declared the conference ended. The result: no news stories.

At least the press was consistent. The biggest news in the insurance industry since Norman Dacey's book, "What's Wrong With Your Life Insurance." has been ignored by the general press (except for this column) for 16 months.

When an industry the size of this one acknowledges, at least through some distinguished leaders who served on Moorhead's committee, that its basic selling pitch is unduly deceptive and needs to be dropped, the occasion deserves more than casual mention by a few magazines and trade journals.

Under the "traditional method" of estimating life insurance costs, the agent simply adds up everything in over a period of time, say 20 years, then deducts expected dividends and cash values. The result is called the net cost.

Then the result is divided by 20 to get the so-called net cost per year. At this point, the result often looks good; it may appear to be about even or show more money coming back than was paid in. This may prompt the salesman to say the policyholder can "make money" or get "free" insurance.

But such a method of figuring costs ignores some important cost factors, especially interest. By paying premiums to a company over a 20 year period, a policyholder not only pays the actual cost of insurance coverage but hands over what interest his money earns when it is invested by the company.

The Moorhead committee recommended that the interest be added to the total of premiums in what it called an "interest-adjusted method" of determining life insurance costs. The result inevitably would make the insurance seem more expensive because of this added cost factor.

Comparisons of costs among competing companies would also be more accurate with such a system.

Because of these probable results, therefore, it is not surprising that the industry has not jumped at the chance to change its ways. And it was not surprising to hear Moorhead, an insurance company executive, say he was pleased at what had been done so far. Only a few firms have adopted the new system.

Prospective policyholders who want to get the full story should write to the Institute of Life Insurance, 277 Park Ave., New York, N. Y., 10017, and ask for a free copy of the Report of the Joint Special Committee on costs.

Rescue Squad Called to Free Boy From Tree

The fire department rescue squad used chain saws and a jack early Saturday afternoon to rescue 8-year-old Mike Richmond from the clutches of a tree in a lot across from his home.

The youngster, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Richmond, 2525 S. Telulah Ave., was playing in the tree when his leg became entangled between two large branches.

Hilbert School Enrollment Down By 13 This Year

HILBERT — Enrollment figures released by the public schools show there are 319 high school students and 182 elementary pupils. This is a decrease of 13 in the overall enrollment from last year.

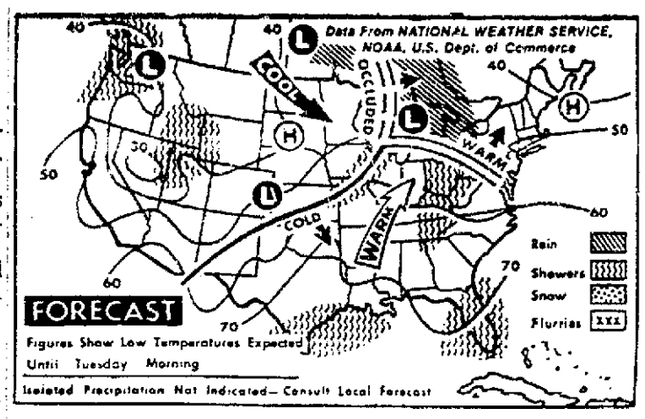
Changes have been made however, because of the exchange of pupils with St. Mary Catholic School, where first and second grade pupils were reinstated in exchange for seventh and eighth graders who make up a junior high school at the public school, causing increased crowding in the high school.

Last year, the seventh and eighth grades were in a self-contained classroom situation, which has been discontinued this year.

Mahalia Jackson Is Seriously Ill

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — A spokesman for American gospel singer Mahalia Jackson says she is being treated in a U.S. Army hospital here for a serious circulatory ailment.

"She was in considerable pain when she was admitted to the hospital Friday," the spokesman said Sunday. "She has a history of a heart ailment and has been consulting physicians for some days about her condition."



Generally Clear Weather is the prospect for much of the nation tonight. Scattered showers are forecast for the Pacific Northwest, the central Rockies, the Gulf Coast, Florida and parts of the Midwest and Great Lakes. It will be cooler in the northern and western sections of the country, warmer in the South and Midwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Intercept 6 of Don's Aerials

Bays Muffle Horn, Drub Denver, 34-13

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Ken Ellis fondled the game ball, appropriately wrapped in cellophane.

"It's my birthday tomorrow," he happily announced, "and this is as great a gift as I could get."

The football had just been voted him by his teammates in recognition of three second-half interceptions, contributions which sealed a 34-14 victory over the Denver Broncos in County Stadium Sunday afternoon.

His timely thefts had proved an intriguing point in the process. Familiarity may or may not breed contempt, but it certainly can be helpful.

Over the route, Ellis and three of his larcenous colleagues, Doug Hart, Al Matthews and Dave Robinson — pilfered six of former teammate Don Horn's passes, four of which led directly to 20 Packer Points. They also effectively laid to rest any lingering doubts about the wisdom of the trade which sent the San Diego slinger to Denver.

Horn, who a week earlier had confidently forecast a Denver victory, called it "just one of those days." But Ellis suggested the Packers' success had been no accident.

A Good Rush

"I think having played against Don in practice helped," he said. "We know he likes the bomb . . . and we knew if we put a good rush on him, he'd probably throw it up for grabs. Other quarterbacks might eat the ball, but we knew he'd throw it up for grabs under pressure."

And pressure there was, from the opening whistle. Horn was sacked only once but Alden Roche, Bob Brown and Lionel Aldridge, in particular, repeatedly stormed their ex-comrade, forcing him to throw in haste.

That, Coach Dan Devine noted, was the secret. "Most of the interceptions came when Horn was hurried," he said, "so it really was a kind of a team thing."

The defensive heroics were admirably complemented by a running attack which is gaining more stature each week. This time, it rolled up 214 yards, despite the best efforts of Denver's Rich (Tombstone) Jackson, a legitimate all-pro on this occasion.

A Distance Threat

Equally as pertinent as the imposing total was the emergence of rookie fullback John Brockington as a distance threat. The former Ohio State All-American streaked 52 yards to score on a second quarter quick-opener that forged a 17-3 lead.

His breakway burst caught the Broncos so unaware that he was quite alone, beyond the Denver secondary, by the time he reached the enemy 35.

The play featured a man-in-motion maneuver, with Donny Anderson cantering off to his left as a potential pass receiver before the ball was snapped. Conceding this was a new addition to the Packer repertoire, Devine facetiously explained, "I put it in to show the difference between college and pro football."

Brockington closed out the day with 85 yards in 12 attempts, one less than the gifted Dave Hampton collected in the same number of carries and Donny Anderson weighed in with 47 in 11 tries.

Anderson Scores

Both of the latter also contributed touchdowns to the cause, Anderson on a 5-yard circle left in the first quarter behind a thunderous block by Gale Gillingham which leveled cornerback Bill Thompson, and Hampton on a 4-yard bolt over left guard late in the third period.

Rookie quarterback Scott Hunter, making his first regular season start, also figured in the scoring while continuing to impress both Devine and the faithful.

Shaken up in the second quarter, the former Alabama field general returned in the third period to engineer a 58-yard scoring drive. He personally capped it with a 4-yard bootleg right, a maneuver which saw him canter into the corner of the end zone untouched.

That one followed Devine's decision to "go for it" in a fourth-and-situation at the Denver 8, a resolve which Hampton promptly vindicated by slashing to the 4-yard-line.

It was the second successful such gamble of the day. Earlier, with fourth-and-2 at the Denver 31 and the Pack leading, 17-3, Donny Anderson responded with a 6-yard shot over left guard.

The drive foundered when Bratkowski was felled for a 12-

Dan Commends Packer Tackling, Running Game

Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — It was a vastly different scene . . . Dan Devine, riding a wheelchair with Gary Lane at the controls, was lustily cheered and applauded as he headed down a County Stadium ramp late Sunday afternoon.

The Packer coach acknowledged the salute with a tip of his green coaching cap.

Only 2 minutes remained and a Packer victory — their first regular session success under Devine's direction — was assured with the score reading 34-6 at that point.

A week earlier, the Packer leader had been lying in a St. Vincent Hospital bed listening to the fiinsh of the darkest afternoon in his coaching career.

Freak Accident

His left leg had just been broken in a freak sideline accident and the Packers were in the process of losing to the New York Giants, 42-40, after contributing two touchdowns to the Giant cause with end zone fumbles.

That was all but forgotten as Devine rolled into his dressing room Sunday afternoon to meet the press after directing operations from the press box for the first time in his life.

"It was a good one to win," he said with satisfaction. "I thought the coaches did an excellent job of preparing the team and the players did an excellent job of getting ready.

Results in Victory

"That always results in a victory," Devine added, then dryly amended that to read, "that sometimes results in a victory I should say."

"I was in contact with the bench continuously, but I think the coaches on the field and the players did an excellent job of coordinating things.

"Actually, if the players aren't ready to go, you're not going to win anyway, if you do all the organizing in the world. They're the ones who have to do the job."

He attributed the victory in large part to improvement in fundamentals. "Our tackling was better," he said. "We just played better today.

"Our coaching staff worked all week on things we thought we could do against Denver and tackling," he noted with just the

San Francisco Still Leads by One

Giants and LA Both Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The San Francisco Giants, wounded and wobbly, are hanging in there in the wild and wacky National League West.

They may win it yet—that is, if they can finish the season with the same cast.

"This team reminds me of the Spirit of '76 with all our injuries," said San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox after the pain plagued Giants smacked Cincinnati, 12-5, Sunday and maintained a shaky one-game edge over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who beat Atlanta 5-2.

Fox has a point, you must admit. With Willie McCovey's tortured knees and ripped hand bandaged, head, the baseball and beanbill victim Dick Dietz' bandaged head, the baseball season has resembled a war for the Giants. Those are some injuries, there have been others.

"Sunday was the first time that we've had our regular lineup together for a long time, maybe three or four weeks," said Fox. "In fact, I don't think we've had our regular lineup together for 50 per cent of the season."

McCovey, held together most of the season with pain-killing shots and leg harnesses because of arthritic knees and a torn cartilege, complicated matters recently when he suffered a gash in one hand during a game. Dietz took 10 stitches in his head after being hit by a pitch last Tuesday and wasn't able to start until Saturday because he couldn't fit a batting helmet over the swelling.

"It was bothering me a little Sunday," said Dietz, but apparently not too much because he drilled a grand slam home run and knocked in five runs.

While the Giants were winning a key game, the hot Dodgers kept things inteersting by whipping the Braves for the third straight day as Richie Allen and Duke Sims hit home runs.

The Dodgers and Giants each have three games left in the regular season, which winds up Thursday.

In Sunday's other National League games, the New York Mets trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Montreal Expos 7-1 and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Chicago Cubs 5-1.

Dietz was a sight for Fox's sore eyes, running from under his hat and displaying a wig of white bandages as he circled the bases with the second slam of his career.

"I was wearing the biggest hat and biggest helmet of anyone on the club," said Dietz, grinning through the pain. "I borrowed Gaylord Perry's."

The tough Giant catcher knew that Wayne Granger's pitch was out of sight when he made contact.

"I knew it was gone," said Dietz. "I hit it so hard, if it didn't go out, I was hurting. Maybe I ought to wear those bandages all the time."

"I think Dietz' grand slam did it," said Fox, with the understatement of the day. "This was a real, real big game for us and this changes everyone's attitude. There's no question that everyone on this club was getting up tight."

Willie Mays and Bobby Bonds applied the crusher with two-run homers in a four-run Giant Sixth.

Allen launched the Dodgers into a 1-0 lead in the second inning with his 23rd homer and Sims hit his fifth of the year, a solo hot in the third. The Dodgers scored the eventual winning run on an unearned tally in the fourth.

Hoyt Wilhelm and Jim Brewer then pitched effectively the last three innings in relief of Los Angeles starter Claude Osteen, who gave up Hank Aaron's

Steelers Beat Bengals, 21-10

Bradshaw Hurls Two Touchdowns; Defense Unrelenting

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Terry Bradshaw passed for two touchdowns and John Staggers returned a punt 67-yards for a third, helping the Pittsburgh Steelers defeat the Cincinnati Bengals 21-10 Sunday in a National Football League game.

Bradshaw completed 18 of 30 passes for 249 yards, a career high for the Steelers' second-year quarterback — but it was a rock-hard defense that enabled them to tame the Bengals.

"We're out there to get touchdowns, not just contain them," said defensive tackle Joe Greene. "We had a lot of fun today."

He repeatedly harrassed Virgil Carter and dumped the Cincinnati passer several times, then rubbed it in by picking him up and patting him on the back. "Just teasing him," said Greene. "I just told him it's going to be a hard day for him. He nodded in agreement."

The defense scored Cincinnati's lone touchdown when cornerback Lamar Parrish ran 14 yards with a stolen ball.

Baltimore Passing Poor

Browns Edge Colts, 14-13

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — The air arm of the Baltimore Colts, once the most feared in the National Football League, has suddenly lost its striking power.

Earl Morrall and John Unitas, each starting his 16th pro season, combined for an incredible 3-for-18 passing record and 41 net yards Sunday, and were intercepted five times as the Cleveland Browns won 14-13.

"We had people open," said Baltimore Coach Don McCafferty, "but when we got the ball to them, they couldn't hold on to it."

The Colts had the same problem in exhibition games, causing McCafferty to comment after one game that "my 9-year-old daughter could have caught some of the passes we dropped."

The Cleveland defense didn't allow a touchdown as Baltimore scored on Jim O'Brien's field goals of 27 and 32 yards, and a 20-yard runback with a blocked punt by Don Nottingham.

Cleveland, which controlled the ball for 67 plans to 50 for the Colts, had to move just six and 38 yards for its two touchdowns, scored by Leroy Kelly.

In the fourth period, following a Baltimore punt, Bob Scott gained 13 yards and a face-masking penalty moved the ball to Baltimore's 22.

Kelly Keys

Kelly, who moved past Hugh McElhenny on the all-time rushing list, then ran 15 yards before scoring from the one.

The Colts, who muffed a scoring chance in the second period when Tom Matte fumbled on the Browns' 22, frittered away another opportunity in the fourth quarter.

After Charley Stukes ran 40 yards with an intercepted Bill Nelsen pass, Don Nottingham fumbled on the next play.

On the next series, however, Nottingham picked up a loose ball after Ted Hendricks blocked a Don Cockroft punt and ran 20 yards for a TD.

A fourth down interception by Clarence Scott, when an incompletion would have given Cleveland the ball at midfield, aided the Colts once more and they regained control following another Browns' punt.

Unitas Cold

But Unitas, the miracle man of old, tossed three more incompletions prior to a game-ending interception by Walt Sumner.

Nelsen, who completed 13 of 26 passes for 161 yards, said: "When the defense gives you the ball that many times, you have to do something with it."

"There was no pressure to go to the long pass," said Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich, "because we had the short and intermediate pass for most of the game."

Gordon Makes 2 TD Catches

Nix Rallies Bears in 4th Period to Defeat Vikings

By PAT THOMPSON

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — With Kent Nix acting like a young George Blanda and Dick Gordon calling his own number, the Chicago Bears are once again looking like Monsters of the Midway.

The Bears, who won only one of 13 National Football League games in 1969 and six last year, toppled the heavily favored Minnesota Vikings 20-17 Sunday with an amazing 17-point fourth period behind Nix's two touchdown passes to Dick Gordon and Mac Percival's 45-yard field goal.

"Certainly we worried when it was 17-3," said Chicago coach Jim Dooley. "Fortunately we had a man like Kent Nix on the sidelines who could come in and do what he did.

"This is a great victory for the entire team — moral - wise, and attitude wise. We're not giving up in the fourth period."

The Bears are 2-0, atop the Central Division of the National Conference.

Nix, who threw the winning touchdown pass in last week's 17-15 last-minute victory over Pittsburgh, came into the game after Jack Concannon was dazed by defense end Carl Eller.

The 27-year-old Nix, cut by three teams before sticking with the Bears, combined with Gordon, who caught 10 passes for 115 yards, for the 36-yard touchdown on the very next play with 8:29 to play.

Percival, who boosted a 44-yard field goal in the third period, kicked a 45-yarder with 3:51 to play.

The Viking offense, which had taken the big lead on Gary Cuozzo's two touchdown passes to Bob Grim and Fred Cox' 14-yard field goal, was going nowhere.

With the Bears at the Minnesota 19 and seconds ticking away, a second-down Nix-to-Gordon pass fell incomplete.

"I had another play called when Dick actually called the touchdown play," said Nix. "He came back to the huddle, and said, run it again, and said that he wouldn't split so wide on the right side.

"On the play, he goes down, in and back out."

Gordon got behind Paul Krause, turning to jump and catch the winning touchdown with 1:42 to play.

"It couldn't have been more beautiful," said Dooley.

Gordon said, "The way they play that zone defense, it's hard to get behind them. But I knew that I had to get behind him (Krause). Somehow I did."

And Nix kind of shrugged off any comparison with Blanda, who came through in the fourth period week after week last year to pull out Oakland victories.

Patriots Lose, 34-7

Landry, Owens Key Lions

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Greg Landry's success on key third down efforts and Steve Owens' power running led the Detroit Lions to a 34-7 National Football League victory over the New England Patriots Sunday.

Landry, a former University of Massachusetts star, came through on five of seven third down situations in the first half as the Lions built a 17-0 lead and went on to even their record 1-1.

After the intermission, he set up a 27-yard field goal by Erroll Mann. Then, early in the fourth period, Landry tossed a screen pass to Owens, who broke through a gang of New England tacklers at the Detroit 40 and sprinted the rest of the way to complete a 74-yard scoring play.

Fumble Recovery

A fumble recovery by Tom Vaughn at the New England 28 led to another Detroit touchdown two minutes later. Owens, the 1969 Heisman Trophy winner from Oklahoma, needed just three carries to reach the end zone.

Detroit's defense checked the Patriots except for one lightning strike in the third period. Jim Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, and former college teammate Randy Vataha combined on a 61-yard pass play.

Mann put the Lions in front midway through the first period with a 23-yard boot.

Detroit stopped a New England drive with a pass interception late in the opening period and marched 71 yards with the help of Landry's passing for a touchdown, Altie Taylor scoring from the three.

Linebacker Mike Lucci picked off a Plunkett pass and raced 26 yards for another touchdown two minutes later.

Butch Hartman USAC Stock Car Champion

'Butch' Wins 1st And Last Race in Capturing Crown

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Butch Hartman won only two auto races this year, the first one he entered and the last one, but today he is the stock car champion of the United States Auto Club.

Hartman, 31, of North Zanesville, Ohio, drove a Dodge to victory in the Pennsylvania 500 at Mount Pocono, Pa. Saturday to pick up about $15,000 in prize money—the largest single payoff in his spotty career—and earned enough points to beat out perennial champion Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz. for the driving title.

Meantime, Bobby Isaac returned to action after setting 28 land speed records in Utah, to win the 250-mile race for NASCAR Grand Title Sedans at Martinsville, Va.

Denis Hulme, who had suffered the agony of defeat in a dozen outings since early June, finally got his team McLaren untracked Sunday and won the eighth race in the 1971 Can-Am series at Edmonton, Alta. in Canada.

Giants Suffer First Loss

Kilmer's Passing Paces 'Skins

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Billy Kilmer pulled penalty-plagued Washington out of a stumbling start with a 71-yard touchdown pass to Charley Taylor in the first quarter and the Redskins went on to whip the New York Giants 30-3 Sunday.

The National Football League game was interrupted by several scuffles and four players were ejected for fighting—Washington guard Paul Laaveg and defensive end Verlon Biggs and New York linebacker Pat Hughes, and tackle Willie Young.

In addition, several players may be hit with $200 fines for leaving the bench to tangle in the third quarter when Giants' quarterback Fran Tarkenton threw the football at Washington defender Jimmie Jones in frustration.

In between the scuffles, Kilmer guided the Redskins to their second straight victory in Sonny Jurgensen's absence and connected on the big gamble that paid off midway in the first quarter after the Redskins had been hampered by six penalties.

Facing a third down and one yard to go situation on his own 29, Kilmer stepped back and quickly fired down the middle to Taylor, who grabbed the ball at the New York 40 several steps in front of defender Spider Lockhart and raced the rest of the way untouched for a 7-3 Washington lead.

As it turned out, the Redskins were never again headed, Taylor grabbing a one-yarder for another touchdown, Jack Pardee racing 20 yards with an interception for a score and Curt Knight kicking three field goals.

Miami Beats Bills, 29-14

Csonka, Kiick's Rushing Wrecks Buffalo Defense

BUFFALO (AP) — Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick ripped apart Buffalo's defense and Garo Yepremian booted five field goals as the Miami Dolphins defeated the Bills 29-14 Sunday in a National Football League game.

Csonka ground out 103 yards and Kiick 108, each carrying the ball 20 times. Only one of them scored, however, Csonka getting a touchdown on a one-yard plunge.

Bob Griese, the Dolphins quarterback, went to the pair when he found it difficult to get his passing game going. He did connect for 10 of 18 passes and 159 yards, including a 23-yard scoring pass to Paul Worfield, during the 60 minutes of play. But it was the running attack that doomed the Bills.

Buffalo's Dennis Shaw, who hurled for 353 yards a week ago against the Dallas Cowboys, was limited to 154 yards, although he did complete 17 of 23 tosses.

The Bills stalled four Miami touchdown drives in the first half, forcing the Dolphins to utilize the left foot of soccer-style kicker Yepremian. He booted field goals from 15, 46, 13, 9 and 48 yards.

Buffalo's first TD came on Wayne Patrick's one-yard burst 59 seconds after Yepremian's first field goal. A 19-yard pass from shaw to Marlin Briscoe in the third period set the stage for O.J. Simpson's 46-yard touchdown run.

Miss Higgins Finally Wins Golf Tourney

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) — Pam Higgins of Groveport, Ohio, sank a 20—foot birdie putt on the last hole Sunday at Round Hill Country Club to win her first tournament after three years on the Ladies Professional Golf Association Open tour.

The petite 25-year-old blonde turned in a winning 54-hole total for the 6,353 yard course of 74-70-71—215 to pick up the $3,750 for first prize and edge the all-time LPGA money winner, Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, who finished with 74-70-72—216.

Pam Barnett of Charlotte, N.C., the second round leader, finished third with 71-72-76—219.

Tied at fourth were Gail Denenberg, Monroe, N.Y., with 78-72-73—223, and Joann Prentice, Birmingham, Ala., 74-74-75—223.

Jean Burkardt Fires 626

Krueger Raps 278

Lynus Krueger smashed a 278 game enroute to a 646 series in the Rare Gems Couples League, at Sabre Lanes Sunday night. Krueger led off with eight straight strikes in his big game before leaving one pin on the first ball of the ninth frame.

Saturday night, it rained national honor counts in the Queens' Traveling Classic League, at 41 Bowl. No fewer than four women broke the 600 barrier.

Leading the way was Jean Burkardt, with a 626. Others exceeding the magic mark were "Corky" Behrent, 618 (223 and 203), Jo Garbe, 255 and 614; and Ruth Schmidt, 613 (214 and 216)

Other high individual counts. Elaine Holschbach, 203, 213 and 593, Angie Leavy, 220 and 587; Lou DeCleene, 232 and 578; Kathy Sodermark, 215 and 581; Delores Jacobs, 225 and 567; and Evelyn Myers, 213 and 559.

The 41 Bowl team compiled a 1,045 line, while T & O had a 1,006.

Blue Blanks Brewers as A's Win, 7-0

Jackson Slams 31st, Seek AL Home Run Crown

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's and star southpaw Vida Blue have some titles cinched during a banner baseball season, so now it's Reggie Jackson's turn to go after some honors

Blue made his final regular season appearance Sunday, hurling seven shutout innings as the A's blanked the Milwaukee Brewers, 7-0

In the process, Blue raised his record to 24-8 and finished with 301 strikeouts in 312 innings, virtually sealing the American League earned run average crown with a 1 82 mark

Jackson contributed his 31st home run to the Oakland attack, placing him one up on Detroit's Norm Cash and Chicago's Bill Melton—and Reggie makes it clear how much the home run title means

Trying for Homers

"All I've been doing this last week is trying to hit homers," says the slugger "The race is over, so I'm swinging at every thing and going for walks.

"Of course," Jackson adds, "If we're in a position to win a game and I have to move a runnerup, I'll do it. But otherwise, I'm swinging for the fences."

"The total isn't important," Reggie reasons. "I just want to win the title because that's what counts most. I've helped the club more with 31 homers this year than I did with 47 in 1969 "

Sal Bando and Dave Duncan also contributed home runs to the A's nine-hit attack. Starter Skip Lockwood, 10-15, suffered the loss as Oakland finished with a 15-3 season series bulge over the Brewers

Blue, as is his custom of late, did not seem overly eager to answer reporters' questions, labeling his performance "okay because we won."

Asked if he were tired, the Cy Young Award candidate answered· "How do you guys feel after writing since May? Tired huh? Well, I'm tired too "

Harris Garners First Tour Win

Birdies Third Extra Hole to Defeat Yancey in Robinson

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — "I think there's a certain amount of fate involved "

Big Labron Harris was talking about his sudden death playoff victory over Bert Yancey for the $20,000 first prize in the Robinson Open golf tournament, Harris' first triumph in seven years on the pro tour.

"If you're going to win, you're going to win," Harris said Sunday after canning a five-foot birdie putt on the third playoff hole.

"That is, if you've got the game. And I think I have a game capable of winning. I've been in position to win several times, so I think that shows I have the game. Then you have to have the right attitude.

"I think I went into this playoff with the right attitude."

Catches Yancey

Harris, a 6-foot-4 Oklahoma State graduate, caught the front-running Yancey with an eight foot birdie putt on the 17th hole of regulation play, then preserved the tie when he made a par putt of four feet after missing the green on the final hole.

He and Yancey each had four-under-par 67s in their final round over the 6,585 yard Crawford County Country Club course and finished at 274, 10 under par.

Yancey collected $11,400 from the total purse of $100,000 for his second place finish.

Rams Tie Saints on Late Kick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Placekicker David Ray boomed a 47-yard field goal with no seconds showing on the clock as the Los Angeles Rams battled to a 20-20 tie with the Atlanta Falcons Sunday in a National Football League thriller.

There were 91 seconds remaining when the Rams took possession of the ball on their own 21 after Atlanta gambled—and lost—on a fourth and one situation.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel, who had been booed lustily by some of the 57,895 fans most of the afternoon in Memorial Coliseum, managed to guide the Rams in nine plays, milking the clock all the wa,tdnehyam Rams reached the Falcon 40

There was one second showing on the clock when Ray, a three-year veteran from Alabama, lined up the kick and then sent it sailing directly through the goalposts for his longest in the NFL.

Bitter Blow

It was a bitter blow for Atlanta, which was near its second major upset in two weeks after beating the San Francisco 49ers last Sunday 20-17.

The Falcons' quarterback Bob Berry had driven the team 77 yards midway in the third quarter and Joe Profit had scored from the four to pull the Falcons from behind and lead 20-17.

The game had one climax after another.

The Rams took a 10-0 lead in the first period but Berry took Atlanta with a brilliant passing arm to two field goals by Bill Bell and a scoring 27-yard aerial to Jim "Cannonball" Butler to give the visitors a 13-10 halftime lead

Running back Willie Ellison electified Ram fans with a 50-yard touchdown run down the sidelines midway in the third which gave Los Angeles its temporary 17-13 lead.

Lamonica Hurls 2 TD Passes

Raider Defense Stops Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "Our defensive performance from the overall standpoint of steadiness was the best we've had since I've been with the Raiders." Oakland Head Coach John Madden said Sunday after his team had just demolished the San Diego Chargers 34-0

The Raiders, coming off an embarrassing 20-6 loss opening day to New England last week, also gave a first-rate offensive performance in the second half when they scored 28 of their points.

The Chargers head coach, Sid Gillman, said his team had no alibis.

"We just got beat badly," he said "We could not put anything together."

Spark Fireworks

Oakland quarterbacks Daryle Lamonica threw scoring strikes of 36 and 13 yards to wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff sparking the Raider second-half fireworks

"We've got a lot of pride and we have to come back and prove ourselves," said rookie running back Clarence Davis of the University of Southern California, who scored one of the Raider touchdowns

Ageless George Blanda kicked first half field goals of 37 and 42 yards to get the Raiders going. Lamonica put the game away after intermission before a San Diego Stadium record turnout of 54,084

Lamonica wound up hitting 11 of 17 for 162 yards and two touchdowns. Reserve quarterback Ken Stabler came on late in the final period and ran one yard on a rollout for a touchdown that capped the Raiders' 28-point second-half explosion

Rugged Charge

Charger quarterback John Hadl connected on 14 of 29 passes for 174 yards but always was stalled by a rugged Raider charge which held San Diego to just 73 yards rushing.

Oakland began its rout midway in the first period following linebacker Dan Conners' first of two interceptions, giving the Raiders possession on the Chargers' 36 San Diego's defense held at the 29 but Blanda came on to boot a 37-yard field goal for the only points of the first quarter

Conners' second theft midway in the second period killed a Charger drive and set the stage for Blanda's second three-pointer. Lamonica, taking advantage of the break, moved his squad 27 yards to the San Diego 35 where Blanda made it 6-0 with a 42-yard boot

Moved Club

Lamonica moved his club into a more comfortable 13-0 advantage early in the third quarter when he combined with Biletnikoff for a 36-yard touchdown

Later in the period the Raiders put the game out of reach with a 57-yard touchdown drive following a Charger fourth-down gamble which failed

Facing a fourth and two situation at the Raider 43, Charger Coach Sid Gillman elected to try for it Mike Garrett tried to sweep right end for the yardage but was tackled for no gain

Lamonica once again capitalized on the situation, hitting Biletnikoff with a 23-yard pass to start the march Rookie Clarence Davis capped the drive with a 2-yard plunge to make it 20-0

Denver Quarterback Don Horn is hit by former Packer teammates Fred Carr (53) and Lionel Aldridge (62) for a loss during Sunday's game in Milwaukee

Oilers Bow, 20-16

Chiefs Wipe Out Fine Showing of Pastorini

HOUSTON (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs rallied in the fourth quarter on a four-yard touchdown dash by Warren McVea Sunday for a 20-16 victory over Houston which spoiled a fine second-half performance by Oiler rookie quarterback Dan Pastorini

The Chiefs, who blew a 13-point lead last week in losing to the San Diego Chargers, almost did it again as Pastorini sparked the Oilers into a 16-13 lead in the second half

Pastorini took the Oilers on two long drives that led to a 15-yard field goal by Braden Beck and a 12-yard touchdown pass from Pastorini to wide receiver Charley Joiner

That pulled the Oilers from a 13-7 halftime deficit for 16-13 lead with 8:42 to play

But Chief quarterback Len Dawson whipped the Chiefs 80 yards in nine plays with McVea going the final four yards with 5:21 left to play

Dawson hit his wide receivers Otis Taylor for 32 yards and 12 yards

The Oilers came right back when rookie defensive end Alan Aldridge fell on a fumble by Dawson at the Kansas City 31 with 3:57 to play

Pastorini immediately hit Ken Burrough on a 22-yard gainer to the Kansas City 9 However three straight incomplete passes saved the day for the Chiefs

Kansas City took its first half lead on field goals of 45 and 11 yards by Jan Stenerud and a 1-yard run by Wendell Hayes

The Oilers got on the board in the second quarter when defensive back Ken Houston scooped up a fumble by McVea and raced 68 yards for a touchdown trace of a smile, 'was one of them We wanted to tackle better today, and we did'

Moved Ball

Ability to move the ball on the ground also had loomed large, he said "I felt we gained some confidence in our running game, and that confidence helps a lot"

Inevitably, he was asked if rookie Scott Hunter's performance had enhanced his chances of retaining the starting assignment at quarterback

"I felt Hunter played well" Devine replied. "I thought Zeke did an excellent job, too I think Scott had a good chance of starting next week, considering he played well this week

"But, as I said three weeks ago and six weeks ago, I think we'll be glad we have both of them before the season is over"

Michaels Impressive

Devine also pronounced himself "very well pleased" with the efforts of Lou Michaels, whom he established as the Packers' placekicking specialist last week after releasing Dave Conway

"I'm not surprised" Devine added, "but I'm pleased"

Michaels kicked two field goals in as many attempts and now is 3-for-3 as a Packer

Bucks Score 110-103 Win Over Lakers

HONOLULU (AP) — Lew Alcindor and Bob Dandridge prevailed in a torrid four-way shooting match to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 110-103 exhibition victory over the Los Angeles Lakers here Sunday night

Alcindor scored 34 and Dandridge 32 to out-duel Lakers' Jerry West and Gail Goodrich, who had 28 points each

Los Angeles fell behind early, but West and Goodrich sparked a third quarter rally which threw the Lakers as close as one point

Alcindor, outplaying Wilt Chamberlain all the way, outrebounded the Lakers' center 20-5

Dallas Thumps Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Dallas Doomsday Defense intercepted a record seven passes recovered one fumble and allowed only 32 yards on the ground as the Cowboys thumped the Philadelphia Eagles 42-7 Sunday in a National Football League game

In recording their second victory in as many games, the Cowboys had to scrap their two quarterback system when starter Roger Staubach was shaken up early and veteran Craig Morton came on to direct the offense

Morton who led the Cowboys into the Super Bowl last season, fired 15 completions in 22 attempts, two for touchdowns and ran for another Calvin Hill, with 80 yards rushing, led the Dallas ground game

The Cowboys, after being held scoreless in the first period, struck for three touchdowns in the second and led 21-0 at halftime Hill scored the first on a one-yard sweep, tackle Bob Lilly got the second on a seven-yard pickup of a fumble, and Walt Garrison the third on a four-yard pass from Morton

Dallas wrapped up its scoring in the second half on a 16-yard touchdown pass from Morton to Gloster Richardson and two fourth-period, two-yard touchdown runs by Morton and Claxton Welch

The Eagles only touchdown came with 1:33 remaining on a 101-yard return by Al Nelson of a missed Dallas field goal attempt by Mike Clark.

The Eagles deepest penetrations of the game were to the Dallas 33 and later to the 37, both in the first half.

The Dallas defense, which had a hand in every touchdown but one, held the Eagles to 12 yards rushing in the first half and 20 in the final two periods.

In the secondary Herb Adderly grabbed three interceptions and Cornell Green, Mel Renfro and Charley Waters each one. Linebacker Chuck Howley stole the other pass.

Cincinnati Whips Houston, 128-109

DALLAS (AP) — Cincinnati flashed a balanced scoring attack to turn back Houston 128-109 in an NBA exhibition basketball clash Sunday night

Sam Lacey topped Cincinnati with 24 points Elvin Hayes and Stu Lantz shared scoring honors for the Rockets with 20 each

Ken Ellis: "All three of my interceptions came on what we call a Frank-free defense . . . In it, I have to go with the receiver but Willie Wood is playing deep in the hole, so I could afford to hang back and look for him to come back on the corner pattern.

"I never thought I'd get three, but Coach Hanner told me at halftime, "Go out there and get yourself a couple."

Fourth Oriole to Achieve Goal

Palmer Hurls 20th Win, 5-0

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Winning this one was very important to me," said Baltimore's Jim Palmer after beating Cleveland 5-0 and joining teammates Mike Cuellar, Pat Dobson and Dave McNally as 20-game winners this season.

"Heck, when the other guys win 20, I look bad if I don't," added Palmer. "Can't you just see what would happen next spring training? The photographers all would be taking pictures of the other three guys together with me off to the side. I couldn't let that happen, could I?"

He didn't.

Palmer pitched brilliantly Sunday, thwarting the Indians on three hits and nine strikeouts in raising his record to 20-9 and making the Orioles only the second team in major league history to have four 20-game winners in the same season.

1920 White Sox

The other was the 1920 Chicago White Sox, who had Urban Faber, Claude Williams, Dick Kerr and Ed Cicotte reach the coveted 20-victory circle.

Elsewhere in the AL Sunday, New York edged Detroit 3-2; Oakland blanked Milwaukee 7-0; Chicago defeated California 6-5 in 10 innings; Boston trounced Washington 8-1; and Minnesota and Kansas City split a doubleheader, the Twins winning the opener 6-2 and the Royals taking the nightcap 5-3.

Palmer, in becoming a 20-game winner for the second consecutive year and the eighth 20-game winner in the AL this season, checked the Indians on singles by Chris Chambliss in the second inning and Vada Pinson in the fourth, and a double by Fred Stanley in the fifth. He walked only two in pitching the Orioles to their eighth straight victory and saddling the Indians with their sixth loss in a row.

The Orioles broke open the game with three run in the seventh inning off Alan Foster, 8-12. Merv Rettenmund's single, Ellie Hendricks' double and an intentional walk to Dave Johnson filled the bases with one out. Mark Belanger's sacrifice fly delivered the first run. A double by Palmer sent in the second run, and Johnson scored the third on a wild pitch.

Brooks Robinson's two-run single in the eighth completed the scoring.

Detroit's Mickey Lolich, the winningest pitcher in the majors, failed for the second straight time to win his 26th game as the Yankees overcame the Tigers' stubby left-hander on Rusty Torres' two-run homer, his first in the big leagues, and Roy White's tie-breaking homer in the sixth inning.

However, Lolich, 25-13, struck out 10, boosting his season's total to 301—a club record and tying him with Oakland's Vida Blue for the American League lead. It was his 44th start, equalling the team record.

Back Lonborg

Home runs by Rico Petrocelli and Reggie Smith backed the four-hit pitching of Jim Lonborg as the Red Sox won their sixth straight game and nine in their last 10 decisions. Rookie Doug Griffin added four hits for the red-hot Red Sox.

The White Sox overcame California when Bill Melton dashed home from third base with two out in the 10th inning on a passed ball by Johnny Stephenson.

Melton opened the 10th with a walk, advanced to second on Rick Reichardt's single, moved to third on a force out, and scored on Stephenson's passed ball.

Reichardt triggered a five-run Chicago seventh with his 19th homer. Ken McMullen, honored by California fans before the game, hit his 21st homer, the most of his career, with one on in the fourth.

Harmon Killebrew's two-run homer, his 28th of the season and the 515th of his career, helped Minnesota beat Kansas City in their first game. Jim Perry, who gained his 17th victory, combined with Tom Hall for a six-hitter.

In the nightcap, the Royals wrapped it up with four runs in the fifth inning. Paul Schaal keyed the rally with a two-run double and scored on Joe Keough's single.

Tom Seaver allowed just one hit, Vic Davalillo's seventh-inning single, as the New York ace notched his 19th victory in the Mets' triumph over Eastern Division champion Pittsburgh.

Rookie Jorge Roque, playing his first game this season for St. Louis, banged three singles to help the Cardinals defeat Montreal.

Roger Freed knocked in four runs with a home run and double, leading Philadelphia over Chicago.

49ers Beat Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers got two cheap touchdowns in the first half, then poured it on for a 38-20 victory over the New Orleans Saints Sunday in a National Football League Western Division game before 81,595 fans.

The Saints played most of the first half without rookie quarterback Archie Manning, who suffered a minor eye injury. However, Manning did play in the second half.

The first 49er touchdown came on a 58-yard blocked field goal return by Bruce Taylor.

The second was a one-yard run by fullback Ken Willard after the 49ers tackled Saint punter Julian Fagan at the New Orleans one after he had fielded a high snap from center.

San Francisco added three touchdowns in the second half on a 34-yard run by Vic Washington, a seven-yard run by Doug Cunningham on the first play after a Manning fumble at the Saints seven and an 11-yard pass from quarterback John Brodie to wide receiver Dick Witcher.

Bruce Gossett kicked a 43-yard field goal in the third period for the 49ers.

Wide receiver Danny Abramowicz accounted for all the Saints' touchdowns. He caught a 25-yard scoring pass from Edd Hargett late in the second quarter and pulled in touchdown passes of 40 and 9 yards from Manning in the fourth period.

The 49er victory left both teams with 1-1 records.

Backstop Work Begun By Sherwood Legion

SHERWOOD — Work has begun on installation of a backstop and fence around the baseball diamond at the American Legion Park.

Estimated cost of the project to the Thomas E. Kees American Legion Post is $2,000, but more than half of that amount has been donated by Mrs. James Bergstrom and the Sherwood State Bank. Because of the voluntary work by Legion members, the balance of the cost is expected to be cut. Work parties are being organized. Julius Schmidt is the groundskeeper.

The post will also be represented in the Calumet County Oratorical Contest this year. Jeff Huelsbeck, a student at St. Mary High School, Menasha will be one of the contestants. Any student in grades 9 through 12 is eligible to compete in the competition which offers thousands of dollars in scholarships to top winners. Interested students should seek further information from post officers. Date of the local contest will be announced.

District child welfare chairman Louis Schmitz has reported on funds available and urged veterans to check on veterans' widows with children to insure they were not in want. He said that the American Legion can help with child welfare needs such as food, clothing, medical expenses and jobs.

Casey Jones urged legionnaires to visit the Grand Army Home at King. Jones encouraged the veterans to visit aged and disabled veterans there to offer them cheer because he said some are very lonely. Because of the Governor's budget, Jones said the home may have to do without about 54 employes. Because of his duties at King, Jones, a former state commander, asked to be relieved of his duties as Legion legislative chairman.

Two sixth district Badger Boys, Jon Williams, Manitowoc, and Alan Deda, Oshkosh, who represented Wisconsin at Boys Nation in Washington, D.C. gave reports at the meeting. Both senators, said their biggest thrill was meeting head Senators from all over the country. They said "it was like a god coming off his pedestal and talking to peasants" they said. They couldn't get over the fact that the Senators were just ordinary humans like everyone else. They also met and shook hands with President Nixon.

Veterans benefits, schools aids, loans and compensation were discussed by David Kreter, rehabilitation chairman.

Various other reports were given and the district bowling tournament was set for January 23 at New Holstein.

Sharon L. Loveall, 12, 910 E. Atlantic St., escaped with only a hip bruise when her bicycle was struck by a car driven by Marian M. Jones, 37, 1125 Rankin St., at Atlantic and Rankin streets Friday.

Vandals apparently used spray paint to write "We Pollute Your River" on the wall of a Fox River Paper Corp. building early Saturday.

The two-foot-high lettering, which stretched across most of the wall facing S. Lawe Street, was applied between 1 and 4 a.m., according to police.

MENASHA — Glass in a door and window on the east side of the UWGB-Fox Valley Campus building was broken early Saturday morning, according to Menasha police. A glass globe which covered an outside lighting fixture also was smashed. police said.

Potter Man Named to New Calumet Post

CHILTON — A Calumet County native, DuWayne Klessig, 23, Potter, has been appointed code administrator, according to Roland Tonn, county planner.

His appointment is effective Oct. 1.

Klessig will enforce Calumet County's development codes and ordinances, such as zoning, shoreland, floodplain, subdivision and sanitary, in order to promote accepted principles of development and sanitation.

He will participate in educational and training programs to improve environmental sanitation standards. The administrator also will act as a liason between private groups and various state departments.

Klessig was graduated in 1970 from Stevens Point State University with a bachelor of science degree in resource management.

He is a 1966 graduate of Chilton High School. While at Stevens Point he was active in the Nu Alpha Tau Conservation Fraternity; the Save Lake Superior Association, Stop Sanquine Committee and the Lutheran Human Relations Council. Klessig is interested in hunting, fishing and outdoor activities.

Rep. Celler 83 Will Run Again

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm going to run again. I want to die with my boots on," says Rep. Emmanuel Celler, at 83 the oldest member of the House of Representatives.

"The older the fiddle, the sweeter the tune," Celler said Sunday in a television interview in which he said he will again seek re-election to the House next year, which will mark his 50th year in the chamber.

"I have a last breath that's very precious to me and I'm not going to use it for a long time."

Packers Intercept 6 Passes, Rap Broncos yard loss on the next play and the green and gold ultimately went empty-handed when Anderson fumbled the snap on a scheduled 51-yard field goal attempt by Lou Michaels and was smothered for a 5-yard loss.

Kicks 2 Field Goals

But that was Michaels' only disappointment of the day. He turned in a statistically perfect performance, toeing 36 of 44-yard field goals in emphatic fashion during the second quarter and adding four conversions in as many attempts.

The first of these was set up by Matthews' interception, on which he made a 20-yard runback to the Green Bay 35, and the other by Robinson's theft, which he returned to the Denver 40.

Ellis' first interception was productive, leading to Hampton's scoring stab, and the second, registered in the end zone, aborted a Denver drive. The other, made at the Bronco 41 just before going out of bounds went unrewarded when Fred Forsberg returned the favor by intercepting a Frank Patrick pitch and returning to the Denver 12.

Donny Anderson's scoring run was triggered by Doug Hart's 69-yard runback with an interception, a play which Denver coach Lou Saban labeled the game's turning point.

Jim Turner had just presented the Broncos with a 3-0 lead by connecting from 28 yards out after a roughing-the-kicker penalty on Hart had extended Denver the opportunity. Cornell Gordon had then waylaid a Scott Hunter pass and returned it 21 yards to the Packer 31.

A Horn-Jack Gehrke pass carried the Broncos to the Green Bay 3-yard-line, but a potential 10-0 Denver lead suddenly vanished when Hart intercepted at the one and set sail up the south sidelines.

"Robby (Dave Robinson) got a little bit of a block on Don Horn on the play," Hart said. "and the next guy in the picture was Floyd Little. But Dwight Harrison, who was the intended receiver on the play, caught me from behind (at the Denver 30)."

"Actually, I wasn't anticipating the pass. I was just in the right place at the right time."

Horn saw it the same way. "It was a slant-in intended for Jack Gehrke," he said. "I saw Hart. He wasn't looking when I threw it, but he happened to turn at the right time."

Hart admitted he was "feeling bad about knocking down the guy on the punt" when the opportunity intercept arose. "I felt a little better when I found out it cost us three instead of seven points."

Devine dismissed Horn's pregame prediction as an incentive factor. "If we hadn't won the game, the players knew they would be 0-and-2," he said. "I think that was the big thing. Nobody wanted to be 0-and-2, including me."

The Packers, he was reminded, are now 1-1 and back in the National Football League's Central Division race. Surely this puts a different light on the subject, it was ventured.

"I would be less than honest if I said I didn't feel we could win the division," he said. "But everybody else is in the same position.

"I think we have a heckuva lot harder schedule than the Vikings do. On paper, it's a lot harder at the end."

4 Spectators Killed at Ecuador Race

GUARCOCHA, Ecuador (AP) — Four spectators were killed and 25 injured Sunday when a Datsun plowed into a crowd during the 12-hour Marlboro Auto Race of Ecuador.

Officials said the spectators had pushed onto the track and Angel Cuesta of Ecuador, the driver of the Datsun, apparently was unable to avoid them.

Tony Adamowicz, of Torrance, Calif., won the race in a Ferrari 512-S with an average speed of 141.666 miles per hour for 206 laps. Gary Belcher, also of the United States, was second with a Porsche 911-S and 173 laps.

GB Rush Hurt Him

'Some of Those Guys May Not Like Me,' Concedes Don Horn

BY WILLIAM E. SCHULZ

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A glum Don Horn traced his interception miseries to a touch of over-anxiousness Sunday, but gave full credit to the rush by his former Green Bay Packer teammates.

Horn, who had predicted his new team, the Denver Broncos, would handle Green Bay, spent the cloudy afternoon fleeing the pass rush of Bob Brown, Alden Roche, Clarence Williams and Lionell Aldridge.

He did complete 16 of 33 passes. But six were intercepted, three of them by Ken Ellis. Green Bay converted four of the interceptions into two touchdowns and a pair of Lou Michaels field goals.

"I felt the rush," Horn conceded. "There are a couple of guys in that front four who may not like me."

He named no names, but said some of his former teammates just didn't like him—"I know it."

Rush Key

Dan Devine, who traded Horn to Denver in one of his first acts as new Packer coach and general manager last January, agreed the rush was the key.

"Everybody's got a good thrower in this league, but most of the time Horn was under a pretty good rush," Devine said.

"I haven't seen Horn that much," he said. "I didn't expect he'd hang up his passes and didn't see that he did. But we did expect more deep passes today."

"We felt one or two long passes might work," said Horn, whose proclivity for the bomb in his Green Bay days often clashed with the conservative attack favored by former coaches Vince Lombardi and Phil Bengtson.

Horn had a 3-0 lead and seemed about to make it 10-0 in the first quarter. But Doug Hart intercepted a pass at the Packer one-yard line and returned 69 yards to set up Green Bay's first touchdown.

Turned Right

"The pass was intended for Jack Gehrke," Horn said. "It was a slant-in. I saw him (Hart). He wasn't looking when I threw it. He happened to turn at the right time."

The game may have been entirely different if Denver had scored at that point. But Devine said a touchdown would not have changed the Packers' game plan, at least not yet.

"We would have tried to stay with it," he said. "We didn't change our strategy last week when we were down 28-7, and we almost pulled it out."

Bronco Coach Lou Saban said Horn, who had completed more than half his passes in the preseason, was still his No. 1 quarterback.

"That's the way it has to be," said Horn, adding it hadn't been that way at all when he played second fiddle to Bart Starr at Green Bay for four years.

Liked Trade

Horn said it was "that and 15 other reasons" he was glad he was traded and is happy with Denver. He had played out his option with Green Bay.

Saban said several things surprised him, including the effectiveness of the Packer rush.

"They ran on us and threw on us," he said. "We just didn't play well. Bob Brown (defensive tackle) gave us the most trouble."

Saban said he thought the Packers consistently ran at the right side of his defense because rookie Lyle Alzado was playing end on that side.

"This may be the worst game we've played in three years," Saban said, "and I've got no reason, no explanation."

Brave Little Soldier

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN Neb. (AP) — Robert M. Ruddell says that when he winds up a career of working with disadvantaged children and youth, he hopes to write a book entitled "Brave Little Soldiers."

It's going to be a book about little kids who've been forced to make adult decisions and who have had to try to understand why big people do some of the stupid things that big people do," he said.

And one of the book's characters, he's certain, will be 5-year-old Bruce Edward Sherer.

Bruce is the boy who captured attention last month when he was turned out of the family car near Falls City, Neb., to fend for himself.

About 11 p.m. on Aug. 13, Bruce knocked on the door of the Quallis Mc Ginnis home outside Falls City.

"Daddy told me to get out and then he closed the car door," he explained to a reporter later, referring to his stepfather. "I tried to get back in, but he drove off so fast I couldn't."

About a week later, the boy's mother, Mrs. Sharon Bell, 24, and stepfather, James Marion Bell, 29, of Mission, Kan., formerly of Edina, Minn., were taken into custody in Kansas They subsequently pleaded guilty to child neglect charges and were sentenced to three months in jail, a term they are still serving.

Mrs. Bell and two younger children were in the auto when Bruce was forced out. The younger children, a boy and a girl, were placed in an Olathe, Kan., welfare home when the Bells went to jail.

Children's Center

Young Bruce was placed in the custody of the Nebraska Welfare Department and was delivered initially to the Nebraska Center for Children and Youth, which Rudell serves as superintendent.

It was a brief stopover.

A potential adoptive home already had been lined up, and within hours, Bruce was beginning to make a slight and tentative attachment to new "parents."

"From what I can gather, he is doing real well and I think it's great that on the surface, at least, he is making this transition," Rudell said.

The location of the youngster is a closely protected secret.

"It isn't good for a little guy to be a celebrity," Rudell explained.

Many persons, responding to publicity, had ideas of their own about Bruce's future, he said.

"We've had people walk in, we've had letters and we've counted 50 telephone calls from people who wanted the boy. The social service department downtown has had 41 inquiries.'

But anonymity is the objective now, he said.

"He's had enough publicity. What he needs is to get lost in the crowd with other 5-year-olds and begin to let some of the memories of the past fade, and have the experiences of a normal boy."

Nixon, Hirohito Visit in Brief, Historic Meeting

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) —President Nixon and Japan's 70-year-old Emperor Hirohito stood stiffly at attention as red-jacketed U.S. Marines, heirs to men who fought Japan on dozens of Pacific battlefields in World War II passed in review.

Nixon and the Emperor—the first reigning Japanese monarch ever to leave his homeland—met for more than an hour on American soil late Sunday night. For those present, it clearly was a moving and historic moment, symbolizing the postwar alliance of onetime enemies.

As Hirohito later boarded his Amerian-made jet transport for an over-the-pole flight to Copenhagen, the Alaskan night sky was illuminated brilliantly by a spectacular display of the Northern Lights.

Before the Emperor's arrival Nixon attended a reception at the anchorage home of Walter J. Hickel, the man he dismissed as interior secretary less than a year ago.

First Visit

Nixon made an 8,140-mile round trip to Alaska to become the first U S. president ever to meet with an emperor of Japan.

Their talks were general in nature—a circumstance dictated by the Emperor's position as one whose influence on Japanese policy can be exercised only in subtle ways.

There was no immediate word on the content of any of the talks, however, and no communique was issued at the conclusion of the royal visit.

The President, welcoming Hirohito at Elmendorf Air Force Base, said:

"Your journey to Alaska symbolizes Japan's growing position in world affairs. We meet in . . . a place which is approximately the same distance between Tokyo and Washington D.C. This fact reminds us that for the past quarter century that we have built a structure of political, economic and cultural ties which spans the space between our two countries . . ."

Work Together

Nixon said he hoped their meeting would "demonstrate for all the years to come a determination of our two great peoples to work together in friendship for peace and prosperity for the Pacific and for all people in the word."

Hirohito said he was "deeply moved" that the President and Mrs. Nixon had undertaken a long journey to meet the Emperor and Empress—Nagako on what was ostensibly a simple refueling stop en route to Europe.

The Emperor, who was commander in chief of Japanese forces that invaded and occupied parts of Alaska's Aleutian Islands chain nearly 30 years ago, expressed "my most sincere gratitude" for what he termed America's "unstinted assistance, materially and morally, after the end of the war in the restoration and building up of our country."

The Nixon-Hirohito meeting was heavy with protocol and ceremony. For the occasion, Army and Marine Corps musical units were flown in from Washington; and the Army "Herald Trumpets" greeted Hirohito by playing a special fanfare composed in his honor by their director.

Formal Meeting

The formal meeting between the President and Emperor took place at the floodlit two-story frame residence of Elmendorf Air Force Base.

With their wives, they sat patiently on beige and white brocade armchairs while photographers filed through their sitting room in four waves.

"Bad custom," Mrs. Nixon remarked to the Emperor by way of explaining the procession of lensmen. As interpreter translated her comment and Hirohito giggled. The Emperor, in fact, laughed with increasing frequency as more and more photographers came and went.

As the seating arrangements were laid out, the Emperor and Empress sat on either side of an American flag which stood in a brass standard. The Nixons were separated by the Rising Sun emblem of Japan.

Holding Flags

The route between their meeting place and the emperor's chartered airliner was lined by troops standing at attention and alternately holding American and Japanese flags.

Although the occasion was longer on ceremony than substance, aides to the President and the Emperor—headed by U S. Secretary of State William P Rogers and Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda—conferred separately and presumably dealt with significant issues.

At the moment, major differences between the United States and Japan center on international economic matters, particularly Nixon's new economic policy of Aug. 15 which is aimed in part at restraining Japanese exports to this country.

While Hirohito headed off to begin a seven-nation European tour, the Nixons spent the night in Anchorage before flying back to Washington

Common Cause Demands Political Donation Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Common Cause the self-styled citizens lobby, has asked a federal court to order a former White House aide to open his records on an estimated $2 million pumped into key Republican races for the Senate last year.

Attorneys for Nixon fund-raiser Jack A. Gelason are fighting the court move with a request to curtail any pretrial questioning and keep his testimony sealed under court order.

The move to open the records is part of a Common Cause suit filed against the Republican and Democratic parties to enforce present federal limits on campaign contributions and spending.

Gleason left the White House last fall to run the fund-raising effort that channeled as much as $2 million into a dozen states where GOP candidates were locked in tight races trying to win control of the Senate.

Nixon Ambassadors

A number of President Nixon's ambassadors have been identified as donors through Gleason. Other Nixon backers, including two members of the Republican National Finance Committee, also steered money through him, according to a GOP campaign official in one key state.

Gleason's court motion two weeks ago asker that pretrial questioning be limited to the fall of 1968 when Gleason was a major Nixon presidential fundraiser as assistant chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee.

It said any deposition taken from Gleason should be sealed and then "opened only by order of the court." To do otherwise, Gleason's attorneys said, would cause him "unreasonable annoyance, embarrassment and oppression."

Common Cause, in a 10-pake reply last week, said "any embarrassment which he may encounter is the product of his own efforts."

Private Firm

Gleason was a White House assistant to political aide Harry Dent before moving into the fund-raising operation last fall. He is now working with a private Washington consulting firm.

Gleason's name appears on Indiana campaign records of defeated GOP candidate Richard L. Roudebush as the sole donor of $117,000 in cashier's checks last fall.

Roudebush's campaign manager, Gordon K. Durnil, listed Gleason as the source of an over-all total of $150 000. He said other checks forwarded by Gleason came from such figures as the ambassador to France, Arthur K. Watson, and two GOP finance leaders, Detroit industrialist Max M Fisher and Boston executive Thomas A. Pappas.

Other Races

Gleason also was known to be active in Republican Senate races in North Dakota, Florida and Maryland, although officials in othe rstates generally denied any link with the fund-raising operation.

Gleason is listed on Florida records as forwarding one check for $2,500 from the ambassador to New Zealand, oilman Kenneth Franzheim II. Maryland reports show another $2,500 check from Walter M. Annenberg, ambassador to Great Britain, also came through Gleason.

Gleason has refused to comment to newsmen on the fund-raising activities.

Common Cause said in its court reply it wants to question Gleason on Republican fund-raising efforts, links with various finance committees and identity of GOP donors.

Expulsion to Proceed

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

LONDON (AP) — Britain said today 105 Russians branded as spies will be ejected despite a Soviet warning of retaliation.

A Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference the expulsion order stands as the first official reply to a Soviet government demand that it be canceled.

Aeroflot: 2nd graf a073

Aeroflot, the Soviet national airline named by the British Foreign Office as part of a spy ring, had announced earlier that all 140 seats on the flight were reserved. That led observers to predict the 90 blackballed Russians would leave Britain today.

But Aeroflot's Ilushin IL62 took off for Moscow with 88 empty seats. Only two passengers boarded at London heading for Moscow. Two others were on their way to Tokyo, and the other 48 passengers had arrived from New York.

The Foreign Office, in its expulsion order last Friday, gave the alleged spies two weeks to leave the country. The crackdown followed what the British said was the defection of a high agent of the KGB, the Soviet intelligence—gathering bureau similar to the U.S Central Intelligence Agency.

The cloak-and-dagger Russians, most of whom live in the fashionable Highgate district of London near the tomb of Karl Marx, worked in the Soviet Embassy, Aeroflot, the Intourist travel agency, the Russian trade center, the Moscow Narondy Bank and other offices, the British said.

There are 550 Soviet officials in Britain with diplomatic passports.

Scotland Yard detectives and the Foreign Office, meanwhile, kept strict secrecy over the defector. He reportedly stole a car three weeks ago, sped to a British government office with a load of secret documents on the spy ring and asked for asylum.

Sources disclosed only that he was still under constant questioning somewhere outside London and at least part of the information he was disclosing was being turned over to the American CIA and other Western intelligence services.

The state-supported British Broadcasting Corp., indicated that its newsmen had identified the alleged KGB agent as a commercial executive in the Soviet Embassy who was frequently seen in night spots and expensive restaurants.

The defector's wife was reported in Moscow with their son, but a daughter was said to be in school in England.

First reports said the defector's documents showed the Soviet network had plans to sabotage the Concorde supersonic airplane and other projects.

Surcharge Removal Urged

Monetary Crisis Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, put pressure today on the United States for quick removal of its 10 per cent import surcharge.

Schweitzer also called on the major industrialized countries to get a new set of values for their currencies to help resolve the international monetary deadlock.

In his prepared opening address to the opening session of the annual IMF meeting, Schweitzer also urged all nations concerned to contribute to currency realignment.

The United States has been resisting devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold, action which many countries believe should be the United States' contribution to settling the impasse.

Balance of Payments

"The surcharge can be justified as a means of improving the U.S. blance of payments only until it is possible to supplant it by effective action in the exchange rate field," Schweitzer said. "Let me stress the importance of moving to an agreed solution on these two issues without delay."

The major 10 industrialized non-Communist nations agreed Sunday on a plan to resolve the international crisis by the end of the year, with meetings scheduled in mid-October and late November focusing first on currency realignment and removal of the surcharge.

Karl Schiller, West Germany's minister of finance and economic affairs, urged longer-term aims: reforms to create a new international reserve system and a new mechanism for changing exchange rates.

"Perhaps we will not be able to get together this week on a unified plan," Schiller said in a speech to the delegates. "But I hope that as a result of our discussion we can express a joint will for a solution of the problem."

International Deadlock

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally has said that a dollar-devaluing boost in the price of gold would not break the international monetary deadlock.

But, while downplaying the role of gold as the keystone to the world monetary system, Connally left the devaluation issue unsettled, dodging a direct question on whether it is a

Soviets Threaten Retaliation

MOSCOW (AP) — A strong Soviet protest note against the expulsion of 105 Russian officials from Britain threatens retaliation against Britons in this country.

The note, given Sunday to Sir John Killick, Britain's ambassador to Moscow, said: "If the British side leaves these measures in force, the Soviet side will have nothing to do but take corresponding reply measures."

Diplomatic observers in Moscow doubted a mass expulsion of British officials, but expected some of the embassy's 78-member staff to be ousted.

The British Foreign Office announced Friday the defection of a Soviet agent had led to the conclusion that mass espionage was being carried out by members of the Soviet Embassy, the Russian airline Aeroflot, the Moscow Narodny bank, Intourist and the Russian trade mission.

"The ministry flatly rejects the allegations that the staff of Soviet institutions in Britain are engaging in activities constituting a threat to Britain's securty, as ungrounded and fabricated with obviously provocative aims, hostile to the Soviet Union," the protest note said.

It charged that the unusually severe diplomatic step taken by Britain was only the latest action "to create obstacles on the road to a relaxation of tensions, especially in European affairs . . ."

As stern as the official Soviet reaction was, the official news agency, Tass, made a more blistering attack, charging that the British spy accusations were "deliberately false" and designed to obstruct detente in Europe.

Supreme Court Appointment Possible for One

Potential Woman Justice Nominees Won't Speculate

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three women President Nixon has appointed to the federal bench are exercising judicious, if not judicial, discretion, each declining to comment on her chances of becoming the first female Supreme Court justice.

Although no one can be sure of the President's support, Mrs. Nixon told reporters Thursday she was "talking it up" with her husband to appoint a woman to the high court. She mentioned that the President had appointed three women to federal courts—Cornelia G. Kennedy of the U.S. District Court in Michigan and Sylvia Bacon and both of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia.

In case "they don't get one this time," Mrs. Nixon said, 'they're grooming them. They'll be moved up to other courts."

The next day, Mrs. Nixon said the White House is giving careful consideration to the idea of a woman on the court bu added· "The trouble is, the best qualified women are too old."

Other Possibilities

In addition to the three women singled out by Mrs. Nixon, others being mentioned in speculation include Shirley M Hufstedler, who as a member of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is the nation's highest-ranking woman judge; Rita Hauser, a New York Republican once named by Nixon as a United Nations representative, and Mary Gardner Jones, a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

President Nixon, asked Thursday night about the possibility of appointing a woman told the Detroit Economic Club that he is more interested in a candidates judicialy philosophy than anything else, and reiterated that he wants nominees who are "strict constructionists" of the Constitution.

Judge Kennedy of Grosse Point Woods was the first woman in Michigan history appointed to the federal bench. She is regarded by her colleagues as a moderate in her application of the law.

Detroit Native

Born Aug. 4, 1923, Judge Kennedy grew up in Detroit, attended the University of Michigan and graduated from the University's law school in 1947, a member of the prestigious law review.

She then clerked for a year for the late U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Harold M. Stephens at a time when few women were awarded such positions Afterwards, she returned to Detroit to practice law with her father, Elmer H Groefsema, a noted trial attorney.

From 1952 until 1967, when she was elected to the 3rd Judicial Circuit Court in Wayne County, Judge Kennedy was a partner in the Detroit firm of Markle and Markle

Asked whether she thinks women have been discriminated against in the field of law, Judge Kennedy said, "Sometimes a woman has to be more fully prepared and has to do a lot better than a man, but personally I've been fortunate."

D.C. Courts

Judges Bacon and Johnson were both appointed to the District of Columbia court a year ago.

Judge Bacon, 40 and Republican, was executive assistant to the U.S. attorney here when she moved to the bench.

Defining her legal philosophy as "generally that of a strict constructionist," Judge Bacon added: "Of course, the case and issue rather than the label are determinative."

She said she is "particularly concerned about the lack of public confidence in the court system that the courts are bearing the brunt of a certain amount of antiestablishment feeling."

Born July 9, 1931, in Watertown, S.D., the daughter of a newspaper publisher, Miss Bacon attended public schools before going East to Vassar College where she graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1952. She was also active in the Young Republicans.

After passing her bar examination in Washington, Judge Bacon was appointed assistant U S attorney in the Civil Division of the Justice Department where she served until 1965 under former Attys. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Ramsey Clark.

Reorganization Bill

Moving on to the Criminal Division, she helped draft the Nixon administration's court-reorganization bill. Judge Bacon is considered a specialist in Washington legal affairs,

Part of Fox Cities Powerless Briefly

Thunderstorms accompanied by moderate winds swept through the Fox Cities early today, causing little damage but a short power outage in most of Little Chute and northern Kaukauna, as well as rural areas north of both communities.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Green Bay said that more showers are expected tonight and Tuesday, with a possible clearing Wednesday but slightly cooler temperatures.

Kaukauna city electric officials said the initial outage began at 3:31 a.m. and lasted six minutes It was estimated that 9,000 persons were affected.

The second outage came at 4:31 a m and lasted 19 minutes, with fewer persons affected. The trouble then was found — a visible short circuit in the high voltage switch at Outagamie County Trunk OO and State 55

Kaukauna firemen were on the scene to protect against fire. The storm caused a sudden power surge that tripped the Little Chute village fire alarm

Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. officials said that just over half an inch of rain fell since midnight The rain subsided later this morning, but threatening skies remained

The thunderstorms struck most of the south and central portions of the state Madison recorded .4 inches of rain while Green Bay had .37, and Lone Rock and Eagle River .33. Hilbert recorded a quarter inch.

'Patch the Pony' Program Begins At New London

NEW LONDON — The Jaycette chapter is sponsoring a safety education program to warn children against strangers.

The program to be conducted in October, is held in cooperation with the school district It is called "Patch the Pony"

Mrs Tim Janke, a Jaycette involved in the program, said "The threat of child molesters is tragically real in every community. Molesters prey on innocent children, who sense no danger in accepting favors or going for a ride in a stranger's car.

" 'Patch the Pony,' in a wholesome, heart-warming manner," she said, "provides a program of educating children to the dangers"

Patch is a small pony that uses the slogan "Nay, nay, from strangers stay away!" to illustrate the dangers to elementary aged children

Children will view the story in a film and accompanying record, and will learn a song about the pony.

Jaycettes working in the program include Mrs Charles Borchardt, Mrs. Janke and Mrs. Ken Serchen.

Vacancies Exist In Classes for Handicapped

WAUPACA — There are several vacancies in the classes of the two nursery centers for mentally handicapped children in Waupaca County, according to Mrs. Florence Buhr, director.

The centers are sponsored by the Waupaca County Association for Retarded Children, Inc.

One of the youngsters at the Clintonville center has graduated to the trainable class at New London, opening a vacancy in the class, she noted.

This center is open from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesdays through Thursdays in room 14 of the Methodist Church on 13th Street. Mrs. Viola Kroll is the teacher. She is assisted by an aide and volunteers

The Waupaca center is open at the same times at the Methodist Church at the intersection of Demarest and Eighth streets. Miss Margaret Miller, the instructor, says one child has graduated from the center and another has moved out of the area

Both centers are licensed, according to the director, and serves children from three to eight years of age. Any child in Waupaca County who is mentally handicapped or has a learning disability are eligible to attend classes if there is an opening. An individual program is planned for each child, Mrs. Buhr said.

Each child is required to have a physical examination and a diagnostic evaluation. The monthly fee is $5, however, scholarships can be arranged.

Waupaca Area C of C Honors Retiring Head

CLINTONVILLE — Howard Bestul, Iola, newly elected president of the Waupaca Chamber of Commerce, presented outgoing president Ray Nellis, of Weyauwega an inscribed plaque in appreciation of his service to the organization during his two year term.

The presentation was made Thursday at the third annual banquet meeting of the organization.

Bestul said that Nellis "has led the organization from its infancy to a real successful organization, and it has been better able to serve the community and organizations in the county. I know that he has dedicated many hours of his free and leisure time ... we would like to thank him now for the many hours he has given us."

Stordock Hall Is Dedicated at Veterans Home

Wisconsin's aging and meets them very well," the secretary said.

Legally Bound

Under the law, Moses explained, the state is required to provide complete personal maintenance and medical care, to include programs and facilities which promote comfort, recreation, and well-being or rehabilitation to all members.

Members of the home are required to surrender to the state all but a small portion of their assets and monthly incomes. Member couples whose physical condition permit may live independently in cottages. Single members live in modern dormitories, for the most part in single rooms.

Those requiring nursing care are attended by a professional nursing care service including four physicians. Periodic physical examinations provided and members have full dental care and receive hearing aids, eyeglasses and any other appliances needed.

"The home is in reality a self-contained community in which old people with widely varying needs and widely varying interests live out their years in security and with as much freedom as their physical condition permits," Moses stated. "So that they may live each day as fully as possible, a comprehensive rehabilitation and recreation therapy program is provided, enriched greatly by a dedicated volunteer services effort.

"Federal payments for care of members and regular member contributions make up more than half the total cost of operating the home, and the net per-member cost to the state as a result is less than the state-county share of the cost of Medicaid nursing care provided in other facilities," Moses continued.

Now Limited

"Completion of this building may have marked the high-water point in the history of the home Although new service facilities have been completed in recent years to serve effectively a total membership of 1,500, the home is presently limited to the 720 members we now serve

"The rapid and continuing development that has seen the home rise, from an old soldiers home with 428 members in 1962 to one of the largest and finest nursing care facilities in the country today has been stopped"

Moses noted that the bed capacity has been cut back from the total of 836 now available by the decision not to use Marston Hall for fully-ambulatory male domiciliary members — in spite of the growing waiting list

The reduction by 60 per cent in the strength of the fire department has also reduced effective fire protection.

The modest building program requests to carry out the next phase of the long-range plans approved in 1964 for the continuing development of the home have been denied

Deficiencies in the old hospital building have resulted in the loss of accreditation and in loss of certification for Medicaid and Medicare participation.

New Proposal

"I propose that the Grand Army Home for Veterans at King be utilized as an efficient and economical public showcase for the sort of care we intend all of our aging who require institutional care to receive — instead of being curtailed at a time when demand for care is growing," Moses said

He further proposed that the Grand Army Home for Veterans at King, the largest comprehensive geriatric care institution in the state, be utilized as a research and training resource in the field of gerantology for all health care-related educational programs in the state

OSHKOSH — Art and the activities of free men are directly related to responsible freedom, a former president of Appleton's Lawrence University said Sunday at the dedication of the new Arts and Communication Center at Oshkosh State University.

Speaking in the building's music hall, Dr. Douglas M. Knight said that true art is communication, making it distinct from propaganda.

Now division vice president of educational services with RCA, Knight observed that "true freedom in art results in something existing that didn't exist before. This is true communication."

Knight said that better understanding through the arts "depends upon the proper use of art itself. "Art," he continued, "brings rediscovery, perception, insight and judgment."

Also speaking to a near capacity dedication audience was John J. Dixon of Appleton, chairman of the Board of Regents' Education Committee.

He presented OSU President Dr. Roger E. Guiles with a symbolic key to the new building.

Dixon said that the structure is the largest, but the least expensive per square foot of construction, of any fine arts building in the state university system.

Dixon told OSU students that the Arts and Communication Center "has been built for you and the thousands who will follow you."

Tax Sharing

Lucey Pessimistic On Compromise

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Friday that he will be surprised if the legislative conference committee appointed to try and reach a compromise on shared tax reform is successful, and that the bill to aid private education has a 50 - 50 chance of reaching his desk.

"I will be very surprised if we are successful in developing a successful reform with this particular conference," said Lucey of the six-member panel named Thursday to try and work out differences in the Senate and Assembly versions of tax redistribution.

The governor's comments came in an interview with newsman Ken Kalish of KDAL in Duluth. Lucey was in the Duluth-Superior area for a bridge dedication program.

GOP Senators

The three Republican Senators named to the panel are Milo Knutson of La Crosse, Myron Lotto of Green Bay and Jack Steinhilber of Oshkosh. The Assembly will be represented by Democrats Raymond Tobiasz of Milwaukee, Carl Otte of Sheboygan and Ernest Korpella of Washburn.

"What the motivation was of the Republican caucus in imposing those three senators on us I don't know," Lucey said.

The governor said it would "demand a very high level of statesmanship for three Republican senators who oppose the question of tax redistribution on principle and are from districts that would lose in an equitable redistribution" to make a 180 degree turn and support it. He said this was "probably more than we can expect."

Lucey said he didn't anticipate a long battle in the conference committee, but that he was "just afraid a precious week will be lost."

Urban-Rural Team

"This is not an urban versus rural bill," Lucey declared. "It is really an urban-rural team on one side against the suburban tax islands on the other side. About 75 per cent of the people in the state live in an area that will gain from equitable redistribution of shared taxes."

Turning to the parochiaid bill, Lucey said, "I think it's about a 50-50 proposition."

He predicted that the measure would pass the Assembly on a very narrow margin, but that it might run into trouble in the Senate because of its differences from one already passed by the upper house.

U.S. Asks Valley Localities to Apply For Works Funding

The Economic Development Administration (EDA) — normally a federal agency which deals with impoverished counties — has requested a list of public works projects for communities in Winnebago, Outagamie and Waupaca counties for possible funding from $2 million alloted to Wisconsin.

Charles Hervey, executive director of Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, said Saturday that he sent a list of projects, as requested, to the EDA office in Eau Claire.

Hervey said the total cost of the projects was $790,000, with federal funding per project ranging from 50 per cent to 100 per cent. The list was sent Friday.

Hanford Olson, EDA representative in Eau Claire, telephoned Hervey on Wednesday to inform him of the available funds and ask for a quickly compiled list. He first told Hervey to compile $300,000 worth but in a second conversation raised it to $700,000, Hervey said.

The projects are for cities and villages in the three counties. The total funding sought includes $465,000 Winnebago, $265,000 of which is for Oshkosh; $275,000 in Outagamie, and $50,000 in Waupaca.

The total cost of the projects, including local shares, would be $1.3 million. Some $740,000 of this is in Winnebago.

The 100 per cent funded projects sought are $20,000 for post-chlorination facilities at Bear Creek; $100,000 for Omro sanitary sewers; $50,000 for Oshkosh storm sewers; $40,000 for Oshkosh public works building, and $50,000 for a Hortonville sanitary sewer interceptor.

The 50 per cent funded projects sought are $125,000 Seymour sewer and water at its industrial park; $118,000 for Appleton sanitary and storm sewers for its northeastern industrial park; $100,000 for Winneconne's well, tank and water distribution system; $175,000 for Oshkosh's Witzel Avenue reconstruction, and Weyauwega's well, pumping station and works.

Hervey said in the letter to EDA that the percentage of funding was based on what is considered the community's ability to pay.

He expressed surprise and delight that EDA would consider funding in these three counties. However, he said the Wisconsin State Employment Service told him that unemployment levels were 8 per cent in Winnebago, 7.7 per cent in Outagamie and 5 per cent in Waupaca, and this apparently would qualify them.

These projects must be finalized in plan form by Oct. 30 and ready for bidding in February.

Parking Problem Debated at Chilton

CHILTON — City officials, Jaycees, and county fair officials met jointly last week in an effort to resolve a problem regarding parking on an area within the fairgrounds on which the Jaycees have a special interest.

Another problem involving drinking by juveniles at the fair also was discussed at the meeting.

Fair officials represented by Martin Bankert, president, criticized the arrest report made by Police Chief Dan Albedyll, which was made public to the council and published in the local newspapers. There were 45 arrests made, a majority of them for teenage drinking. The report suggested use of a fence around the stands or a limit of one or two "beer garden type" stands which would make it better to keep tabs on the drinking problem. However, fair officials noted that most of the stands at the fair are money-making projects for various organizations.

Bankert also felt that the problem of these teenage drinkers should have been brought to the attention of the fair officials during the fair and not after it was all over. He also said that other arrests for squealing tires and speeding were not directly connected with the fair and should not have been included in the report.

The parking question revolved about the use of land on which the Jaycees have constructed a baseball diamond. New seeding and other work has been done by the club.

Protection Asked

Dr. Raymond Plue had asked the council at a previous meeting to give the parcel of land protection so that it could be completed as a ball diamond. At that meeting Mayor Harry Thompson could not recall any authority given to the Jaycees for the construction of the diamond, however, newspaper clippings and a further search of the council's minutes produced it.

Much of the seeding was damaged during the fair by cars being parked in the area. Jaycees felt that before more work is done on the diamond some decision would have to be made by the city for protection of the area during fair time.

Dr. Plue and Richard Zacharius who headed the committee for the diamond construction had appeared at a meeting of the fair board to seek permission to construct the diamond. At that time, fair officials explained that the property was owned by the city. The request was brought to the City Council last September by Richard Zacharius and construction of the diamond took place.

However, at the meeting Thursday, Bankert denied that such a statement was made, although the fair officials do not object to the diamond but do object to ending parking on it.

Legal Question

Dr. Hans Kalinka pointed out that the deed stated that the land be used by the city for park purposes, fairs, racing or any municipal use. Bankert felt that this was a legal question and that some type of a legal opinion on the deed should be had before any decisions were made.

Kalinka further pointed out that several feet of the old fencing around the race track was taken out and weeds and debris were cleaned from the area. Bankert told him that no authority had been given to take the fence down.

Bankert contended that there is no quarrel with the construction of the diamond, but that their privilege of parking should not be taken away.

Dr. Plue also told members present that many businessmen helped pay for seed, the county donated equipment use, and many hours of volunteer help were given to put the diamond in readiness for use next summer. "We can't keep going back every year asking for help if it is going to be ruined by parking," he said.

Thompson asked the fair officials if they would go along with fencing off the diamond for "no parking" if the city provided them with another area in the fair grounds for parking. Bankert said he did not have authority to make a decision like that. He felt it was a legal matter as to the use of the park and the city's jurisdiction over it.

Thompson said the city owns a six-acre parcel of land adjacent to the fairgrounds which could be used for parking.

He suggested that the three groups meet this week to see if the land is suitable for parking.

Waupaca Council to Weigh Comprehensive Urban Plan

WAUPACA — The City Council and residents will have a close look at the six-part study and 20-year comprehensive plan for the Waupaca urban area at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers.

This will be the first overview of the plan which the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission spent approximately 14 months developing for the Waupaca Area Council of Governments (WACOG).

The Towns of Dayton, Farmington, Lind and Waupaca approved the plan four months ago and the City Council has taken no action. Mayor Edward Kramer asked aldermen to fully review the plan before approving it.

One startling disclosure in the report, as it concerns the City of Waupaca, is the evidence that young workers are leaving the city to earn higher salaries elsewhere and that a good share of business is leaving because of high prices.

Industrial Park

The study recommends that a new industrial park be developed on the city's east side and that the downtown business area be revitalized.

After studying the plan, Iver Oerter, former city engineer, now with Phillips Associates, the city's consulting engineers, made his views known about the report.

"The section on future land use recommends that the planning committee and the City Council exercise tight controls on future development in the city.

"One recommendation in the neighborhood analysis has been proven fact in this city — that is that the installation of curb and gutter and rebuilt streets will help remove blight. I can think of two major street projects where the houses were in different stages of neglect and where homes have been fixed up and lawns improved shortly after the streets were rebuilt. The street rebuilding program should not be dropped from the city's budget," he said.

Endorses Recommendations

"Implementation of the 10 recommendations for improving transportation, as shown in the study, should begin without delay.

"The population and economic base study sounds a loud alarm as to the future of this area if the overall objectives are not changed," he continued. "This area has been exploited as an area for retirement people. If an area is to grow in a healthy manner it cannot support the dependency ratio that is here unless the wage scales are much higher than they are now."

"Perhaps this trend has come about because of the many who vacation here. If so, the tourist trade is a double - barreled threat.

If Waupaca adopts the comprehensive plan, it will be eligible to apply for federal and state funds and remain an integral part of WACOG. It has paid 41 per cent of the cost in developing the plan.

Representatives from the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, Phillips and Associates and WACOG have been invited to the public hearing. Kramer announced at last week's council meeting.

Hearing on Qualifications Of COG Set

A senate public hearing has been rescheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday in Madison on a bill which is the Fox Valley Council of Governments' best chance to regain federal aid being withheld because of a legal entanglement.

The bill, A731, would qualify COG as a recognized comprehensive planning agency, under the attorney general's interpretation of state law. The attorney general's office ruled recently that COG and similar agencies were not so qualified.

About $100,000 in 1971 and 1972 U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development 701 grant funds hangs on the ruling.

The bill wasn't initially considered controversial. It had an Assembly hearing and was passed 93-5. Then it was endorsed unanimously by a Senate committee, but was stalled when certain senators and others, including Gordon Buholz, chairman of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, contended it was controversial.

An earlier Senate hearing date was cancelled.

Steiger Push for Court Review Of Employment Act Defeated

WASHINGTON — Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh, was among the minority spokesmen for an alternative Equal Employment Opportunities Enforcement Act (EEOC) that eventually received house approval last week.

The 6th District congressman favored the substitute bill because it would give enforcement power to the Circuit Courts rather than to the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission, which he believed would take more time and be less fair than bringing cases before the Circuit Court.

Steiger also said the result of the provision of the original bill that would have extended provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights Act to state and local employes could have been "very strained relations between the different levels of government."

The original bill was reported out of Steiger's Committee on Education and Labor on June 2. The alternative was authored by John N. Erlenborn, R-Illinois.

Enforcement

The purpose of both bills was to provide adequate enforcement power for the EEOC, which was established following passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Until now, the commission's role was limited to investigation, mediation and conciliation in helping persons denied employment, promotion, union membership or other job-related opportunities on the basis of discrimination.

Steiger said the original bill would make the EEOC into a quasi - judicial body much like the National Labor Relations Board, with the ability to issue cease - and - desist and other orders.

The alternative bill, which would provide for cases to be heard in federal courts, would mean that "rather than the commission serving as investigator, prosecutor, and judge, the courts could reach a decision in a more effective and fair manner," Steiger said.

It also would result in a quicker decision, he said.

"The 18-24 month backlog currently existing at the EEOC, the time needed for an administrative proceeding, and the average time lag of 630 days between a board decision and a court order (as found by the NLRB) could make enforcement of an EEOC decision take nearly four years," Steiger said.

Steiger said a study of median time interval for nonjury trials in 29 district courts shows that 21 had a median time of 12 months or less, while eight others had a median time of six months or less.

"The time element is especially important for the small businessman, since the longer he is on trial, the more expense he will have in defending himself," Steiger continued. "In fact, the small businessman would have been severely hurt by the committee bill."

New Stordock Hall Dedicated at Grand Army Home

KING — Sunday was Stordock Day at the Grand Army Home.

Specifically it was the day to dedicate the Home's new $3.2 million nursing care building in the name of the late Gilman H. Stordock, former commandant of the home and prominent veterans leader.

John R. Moses, secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs, spoke at the dedication:

"Completion of the building we are naming Stordock Hall today marks the high point, perhaps the high-water mark, in the history of this unique institution. Appropriately, it is being named for the man who, among all others who have worked to develop the Grand Army Home for Veterans, is perhaps most responsible for bringing the Home to this position."

He also reviewed the home's history.

"The Home was born in 1887, 39 years after Wisconsin became a state and 23 years after the close of the Civil War. It was established as a place in which the aging and disabled veterans of that war could live out their lives in dignity and comfort, an alternative to the poor farm," he continued.

Met Needs

"Within the context of the times, it met that need well for many years. It was not until 75 years after its beginning, with the completion of the Burns-Clemmons Hall in 1962, that the home began its dramatic change from a typical old soldiers home to the skilled nursing care institution it is today," Moses recalled.

"Today, 10 per cent of the total population in Wisconsin is over the age of 65 years. Concern for the rights of minority groups in our nation have dominated domestic affairs for the last two decades, but today the forgotten minority in America is the steadily growing segment of our population over age 65 who have outlived their productive years and who now face the most difficult years of their lives."

"In too many instances the aging are being treated, not as human beings in need, but rather as an economic resource to be exploited, to be provided with shelter and food and limited care; but with little else of what all of us, young and old alike, require to make for a reasonably happy and secure life," he continued.

"The splendid institution spread all about us, which Gil Stordock helped in so many ways to build, does meet the needs of a significant number of
